Some Schools To Open Regardless

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering New Contracts

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 223 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 28 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7537, according to Supt. James Ervitt. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 60 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team."

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 232 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teachers' Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Holiday Inn, 1008 Duane Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,800.

Heads Of 9 Teacher Groups Back Strike In Dist. 59

Presidents of nine Northwest suburban teachers associations have thrown their weight behind the Teachers Council strike in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59.

In a statement unanimously approved Thursday, the presidents asserted that they strongly recommended to their associations to "support the Teachers Council of Dist. 59 in their withholding of services."

The statement was sent as a telegram to Richard Hees, president of the Dist. 59 board of education, by George Ergang, a teacher at Elk Grove High School and president of the Northwest Suburban division of the Illinois Education Association (IEA).

THE NORTHWEST SUBURBAN division represents affiliated teachers in elementary districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 34, 37 and 50 and high school districts 211 and 214.

Ergang said the presidents had also voted to donate the division's fund for the defense of teacher rights to the striking teachers. He said he was unable to determine at the present time how much money was in the fund.

Last week the IEA was criticized for formulating the Dist. 59 teachers' strike as part of a "power struggle" with the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

A spokesman for the teachers blasted the board claim Friday.

"There is no power struggle between the IEA and the federation," said J. Michael Arisman, who is with the National Education Association (NEA).

"It's just not true," he said. "There are 475 teachers in this district in the IEA, NEA and Dist. 59 Teachers Council and only six IFT teachers and I don't know if they are even dues paying members."

Arisman added, "They're (the board of education) just trying to shift the pressure off of themselves so they've dreamt up this 'power struggle'."

HE SAID "They are 'their' teachers striking, not outsiders."

Thomas Lundeen, Dist. 59 Teachers Council president, supported Arisman. said, "The decision to leave the classrooms was made by the teachers."

He added, "The IEA is here serving as advisers. All decisions are still being made by teachers."

Eight IEA and one NEA representatives are assisting the teachers in the strike. They were in the district schools Wednesday talking to teachers about the strike.

Auditor Favors Bisner Rd. Extension

An Elk Grove Township Board auditor has come out in favor of the extension of Bisner Road north to Higgins Road.

Richard Hall, the auditor, said Monday the road extension would improve access from St. Alexius Hospital to the Higgins Road interchange with the I-90 Expressway.

Bisner Road presently deadends at Coonan Road, though years ago it extended north to Higgins, said Ronald Bradley, town highway commissioner.

More than 470 acres of Red Brown Forest Preserve has been earmarked for a lake as part of the Salt Creek Watershed flood control project.

"I'd like to know why we shouldn't take action to open up Bisner Road," said Hall, who may have not known about the proposed lake.

Bradley replied: "Right now is isn't even a good concept."

Quotables

"We may look foolish but by God we'll have the room," said George R. Basse, Elk Grove Township clerk, announcing that this year's annual town budget hearing will be held in larger quarters, possibly in Forest View High School. Last year more than 170 persons attended the meeting under cramped conditions in the town hall.

Cat With Different Colored Eyes Lost

A white cat with two different colored eyes has been reported missing by its owners, George and Rick Radlein, of 644 Brantwood Ave., Elk Grove Village.

The owners have appealed to residents to help them find the cat, missing since Jan. 26. The cat, a female, answers to the name of "Sam."

"Her most outstanding characteristic is that she has one blue eye and one green eye," said Rick, 19, a student at Harper College in Palatine.

Persons seeing the cat may reach the owners at 437-0815.

Dist. 59 Schools

In Elk Grove Village — Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Clearmont, Dana Cook, Grant Wood, Grove Junior High, Mark Hopkins, Thomas Lively Junior High, Ridge, Ira Rapley and Salt Creek.

In Mount Prospect — Forest View Robert Frost, Holmes Junior High and John Jay.

In Des Plaines — Brentwood, Devonshire, Dempster Junior High, Albert Einstein and High Ridge Knolls.

In Arlington Heights — Juliette Low.

Mrs. Schwellenbach Files For 2-Year Term As Clerk

Mrs. Stephen Schwellenbach, acting Elk Grove Village clerk, filed Friday for a two-year term as village clerk.

Mrs. Schwellenbach, of 240 Fern Dr., has been acting village clerk since Eleanor Turner resigned as clerk last summer when she moved to Richmond, Va. She will oppose Gerald Smiley, of 1156 Cheltenham Rd., who filed last month for both the clerk's position and a seat on the Elk Grove Park Board.

Village, park, and library board elections will be held April 20. The deadline for filing is next Monday.

There are three 4-year, and two 2-year terms open on the village board for which five persons have filed.

Incumbent trustees Edward Kenna, James O'Brien, and Ronald Chernick have filed for 4-year terms. Nanci Vanderveer, of 215 Fleetwood Ln., and George Spees, of 140 Crest Ave., have filed for two-year terms.

OTHERS WHO HAVE taken out petitions include Albert Domanico, of 7 Grange Pl.; Jack Ehlebracht, 907 Lincoln Sq.; Mrs. Eugene Keith, 48 Lonsdale Rd.; wife of the village trustee, Harold Sutter, of 756 Love St.; Alvah Stone, 660 Tonne Rd. Robert Lindahl, of 690 Versailles, and Mrs. Donald Todd, 88 Kennedy Blvd., are also reported to be considering filing for clerk.

In the park district race, candidates who have filed for two 6-year terms include Lewis Smith, 171 Shadywood Ln.; Martin Durkin, of 1287 Berthenshire; Kees, of 1016 Brantwood Ave.; Frank Ciangi, of 598 Middlebury, and Smiley. Durkin is an incumbent commissioner.

No one has filed for the library board where there are two 6-year openings.

Gets DAR Award

Diane J. Rasmussen has been awarded the good citizenship Award, according to an announcement by the Daughters of American Revolution.

A senior at Elk Grove High School, Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rasmussen of 388 Ridgewood Rd. The award, given annually, is based on citizenship, community and school service, patriotism, and school activities.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crisscrossed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardians to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Wernher von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians. "We just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Indian city of Taxila lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 270 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Lang Ching, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

Helicopter Mishap At Honeywell; None Hurt

A mechanical failure in a cargo-carrying helicopter caused extensive damages but no injuries during construction work at the Honeywell plant in Arlington Heights Saturday.

The helicopter, operated by Carson Helicopter Inc. of Parkville, Pa., apparently lost a rear rotor blade while lifting a huge air conditioning unit to the roof of the Honeywell plant, located near the junction of Rtes. 53 and 68.

Eyewitnesses to the scene said the helicopter went out of control but landed without further damage in a field some distance from the construction site. A member of the helicopter crew dropped the air conditioning unit, which fell apart on impact (see photos, left).

A spokesman for Carson Helicopter Inc. said yesterday that the helicopter, a Sikorsky S-58, will be repaired on the scene and flown out. The lifting job will be completed next Saturday.

The helicopter pilot, Peter Peterson of Quakertown, Pa., told police he and two crewmen were in the helicopter hovering over the plant roof when the rear stabilizing unit came off the aircraft. The helicopter veered to the west of the building, the crew released the 15-by-15-foot air conditioning unit, and the pilot managed to land the aircraft in a plowed field near the Kennicott Ave. gate of the Arlington Heights landfill site.

Select Audience 'Questions' Housing Plan

Representatives of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corporation (MHDC) were questioned by Arlington Heights residents Thursday night about the corporation's plans to build moderate-income housing in the village.

The first meeting held by MHDC to tell local residents about the plan drew about 60 people, who listened to the proposal in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. Arranged by MHDC, the meeting was open only to invited guests and the guest list included people who MHDC representatives thought would be sympathetic to the moderate income housing project.

After a short presentation, residents asked questions about the project. One question which was repeated during the meeting was, "Is there any way to make this available to local residents first?"

The questioners were hopeful that the 100-apartment complex would first serve residents already living in the village.

Salvatore Ferrara, executive director of MHDC, said the corporation's "hands are tied" by federal restrictions. When the units are ready to be rented, they must be marketed on a totally non-discriminatory basis, he said. The corporation will not be able to give preference to local residents, he said.

ONE QUESTIONER observed, "The only way you'll get community support is to prove that this will take care of people who live here now."

Earlier in the meeting, MHDC representatives showed residents a model of the 15-acre project, planned for the southeast corner of the 60 acres of land that includes St. Victor High School, 1213 E. Oakton St.

The 15-acre site includes more than 600 feet of frontage on Euclid Avenue and runs about 1,150 feet north from Euclid.

The project is planned to include 100 one-bedroom apartments, 48 two-bedroom apartments, 30 three-bedroom apartments and 12 four-bedroom apartments. The number of units are all within the village's building codes, according to MHDC officials.

The project is planned to be built under section 238 of the Federal Housing Act. The Federal Housing Administration will guarantee the estimated $4 million mortgage on the project and will result in a lower interest rate.

Engene Callahan, vice president of M. Myers Associates Inc., which would be the supervising consultants for the project, said FHA 238 usually allows rental of apartments about 30 per cent lower than the normal market rate. The provisions of FHA 238 are such that "no one can bleed the property and run. In fact, there are more restrictions to prevent this than there are for private developers," Callahan said.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE in the complex would be allowed by FHA standards to pay no more than 25 per cent of their monthly income for rent. The project would house families in the $5,000 to $12,000 income range.

Callahan said the FHA financing is "the only thing that makes this different from any other development."

In answering a question, Callahan stated that this project "is the smallest step that one could make to solve the need for housing in the Chicago metropolitan area."

One resident asked if the project would help poor families. Ferrara said that although the MHDC realizes that the poor are "the hardest-hit right now," providing housing for low-income families is the responsibility of the Cook County Housing Authority. "We are tightly within the confines of the program," he said.

However, there is a possibility that the project will qualify for rent subsidies, he said. This type of program has to be undertaken by the Cook County Housing Authority and cannot be discussed until "we're a lot further down the road," Ferrara said. If the authority did approve a rent subsidy program for the project, no more than 20 per cent of the units could be rented under such a program.

As the discussion was closed, MHDC officials said they would be willing to speak about the project "anytime, anywhere to anyone." Residents who are interested in having MHDC officials talk about the project to groups may contact the corporation's offices at 155 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, or call the office at 236-9850.

Breakdown Cuts Power In Suburbs

Thousands of homes in the Northwest suburbs were without electricity for a time Friday because of breakdowns in Commonwealth Edison Co. equipment.

According to Paul Parker, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, a faulty circuit breaker left 4,000 homes without power in the northwest section of Palatine for several hours early Friday. In Schaumburg near Golf and Roselle Roads 125 homes were without electricity because of a faulty wire connection.

High winds reaching 30 miles per hour caused some problems but "most were minor, affecting two or three households at a time and scattered over the Northwest suburban area," Parker said. He said most of the trouble was caused by blown off tree limbs and ice pulling down the wires.

Parker said no home was without electricity for more than two hours. By 2 p.m. Friday Parker said repairmen were "beginning to get caught up." Additional crews had been on duty Thursday night in anticipation of the high winds.

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the 53 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons, but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kilson Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kilson Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the alleged obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the 53 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

Critical Factors To Affect Traffic

Second of two articles

The amount of traffic in Elk Grove Village in the future will depend on the anticipated land uses and the development of a regional highway network.

The $18,000 traffic study completed recently by Bent Aschman Assoc., called these factors critical in determining the traffic volume in 1980.

More than 13 months in the making, the study was done at the requests of the village. It was released last week.

FOR THE FUTURE, Elk Grove Village will see more development of both the residential and industrial area with the likelihood of an increase in multiple-family dwellings, the study said.

"This trend toward higher density residential developments and the addition of significant amounts of commercial and office space land-uses within the village will affect the character and potential of the community dramatically," reports the study.

Population could reach 65,000 to 75,000 by 1985. Trips generated by the village land-uses are expected to triple, from 22,000 in 1960 to 232,000 in 1980, the study said.

Aiding in the handling of traffic will be a regional traffic system to include the

I-90 Expressway which will link up with the Lake Street Extension, the Northwest Tollway, and the proposed Elgin O'Hare Expressway which will follow Thorndale Avenue.

The study makes a number of recommendations to handle the long-range traffic needs caused by the increasing traffic that results from intermixing industry with residential areas.

No cost was put on the recommendations, though it is expected to be in the multi-millions.

SOME OF THE recommendations include:

- Full access interchanges at the Northwest Tollway with Elmhurst, Arlington Heights, and Roselle roads.

- Rejection of the extension of Oakton Road through Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

- Realignment of Arlington Heights Road at the Salt Creek Bridge and south of Devon Avenue to provide access with the Elgin-O'Hare Expressway at Prospect Avenue in DuPage County.

- Realignment of Meacham Road at Medinah Road, and Nicholas Boulevard at Landmeier Road.

- Discouragement of traffic on Elk Grove Boulevard and Touhy Avenue at Touhy Road and on Biesterfeld Road at Rte. 53.

- Realignment of Higgins Road west of Busse Road to extend south to Brummel Street and then proceed east past Busse Road to link up with the present Higgins Road.

- Extension of Pan-Am Boulevard in DuPage County west to Wood Dale Road, extension of Nicholas Boulevard south to Pan-Am Boulevard; and extension of Lively Boulevard south to the Pan-Am Boulevard extension.

- Extension of Landmeier Road north-east to Elmhurst Road.

- Extension and link-up of Devon Avenue to Wise Road in Schaumburg Township.

- Downgrading of the Elk Grove-Kennedy boulevards from primary arterial to secondary arterial streets.

THE STUDY ALSO recommends that the number of lanes of some roads be increased.

Today Last Day For Wine Party Signup

Today is the last day to buy tickets for a wine tasting party to be held Thursday, sponsored by the Grant Wood Parent Teachers Council and the Salt Creek Parent Association, both of School Dist. 59.

The party will be held at 8 p.m. in the VFW Hall, Tioga Post 2149, 25 N. York Rd., Bensenville.

Tickets are $1.50. They may be purchased at either Grant Wood or Salt Creek schools or by phoning Sophie Basile, 437-8261 or Jean Black, 437-0686.

The program will include a movie and talk presented by representatives of the Christian Brothers Corp.

Wine will also be given as door prizes, according to Doris Reehoff, publicity chairman.

Boys' Baseball Group Members Preparing

Members of the Elk Grove Boys' Baseball program are preparing for the coming season.

Officials announced that registration of players will be Feb. 26 and 27. They also said there was a need for adults to serve as managers, coaches, and umpires.

Registration will be held from 12:15 to 4 p.m. on both days at the Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Clearmont, Ripley, and Salt Creek schools.

Teenagers must be 8 years old, and not older than 17 by Aug. 1, 1971.

Fees are based on the number of boys registering from a family. The oldest boy is charged $14, followed by an $8 fee for the second boy, and a $6 fee for each additional boy.

Boys unable to register on any of the two prescribed days should contact Marc Vornatka at 437-0888.

Parents interested in participating in the baseball program should also contact Vornatka, of 606 Love St., or sign-up when their sons register.

Stamp Club Changes Meet Date, Location

The Northwest Philatelic (stamp) Club has changed its meeting date and location. Meetings will be held in the recreation building of St. Marks Lutheran Church, 200 S. Wille, in Mount Prospect. Meeting dates have been changed to the first Friday and third Wednesday of the month. The first meeting at the new location will be held today. (During Lent meetings will be held on the first and third Friday).

New officers of the club are: H. W. Liebetrau, president; D. Knaus, vice president; G. Zages and G. Unglaub, program coordinators; F. Fischer, secretary; and R. Brison, treasurer.

Additional information can be obtained from Liebetrau by calling 250-3833.

Police Investigate Two Area Burglaries

Two Mount Prospect businesses were burglarized last Wednesday, according to police.

Approximately $200 in cash was reportedly stolen Wednesday morning from Hucker's Service Station, 1 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect.

The owner of the service station told police the cash was stolen from a cabinet in the rear work area of the building. Police said burglars gained entry to the station by breaking a window in the door.

Approximately $110 in cash was also stolen from R. and R. Cleaners, 11 W. Prospect Ave. A store employee told police a young man, about 20 years old, took the money from the cash register while the clerk was looking for his cleaning in the back of the store.

The young man was described as having light brown hair, about 5'9" and wearing a red jacket and dark pants at the time of the theft.

Decoupage Will Be PTO Meeting Topic

Instruction in the art of decoupage will be presented Feb. 11 at a mother-daughter meeting of the PTO of Forest View Elementary School, 1901 Estates Dr., Mount Prospect.

The program, "Decoupage on a Budget," is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

For further information on the program, contact Carol Brinkman at 430-1728.

Luxury Rail Travel Alive

by JAMES M. CLIFFORD

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI)—Luxury rail travel is alive and well in Alameda.

Richard R. Reynolds believes so strongly in the future of the passenger train that he has bought six railway cars, several with famous histories, and uses them in his travel agent business. And business is good.

"People want to travel by train and it's just a matter of providing them with good accommodations and food," said Reynolds of Great Western Tours.

"I won't say they want to travel regularly by train but there is a tremendous market for tours."

REYNOLDS HAS patterned his operations after the Pullman Co., for generations synonymous with elegant service.

"At Great Western we are continuing the tradition of the Pullman Company by operating our own small fleet of sleeping, dining and lounge cars on our tours. With our own handpicked employees, we can control all service on the train," he said.

Great Western has its own staff of porters, chefs and waiters on call for its many rail jaunts.

"One chef cooked for President Roosevelt," Reynolds said with pride.

Reynolds, whose offices are in San Francisco, keeps his cars at a railroad yard near here. "We attach our equipment to existing trains or have the railroad furnish a locomotive," he explained.

The cars include the former Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Pullman car named Samuel King Tigrett, after a pioneering railroad executive.

The Tigrett was on the famed "Midnight Special," written about a convict watching the train go by his jail cell each day.

ANOTHER CAR, which Reynolds now

'Talent Bank' Plan Announced By State

A plan to create a "talent bank" to provide expert help and advice to municipalities and counties in Illinois has been announced by the state's Department of Local Government Affairs.

The plan would allow counties or municipalities to borrow the services of experts from other communities, with the lending community receiving recompensation from the department. The service would not cost the borrowing community anything, according to Robert J. Lehman, director of the department.

Communities in need of expert help would apply to the department, which in turn would ask another community if the help could be provided.

The plan will be directed by Roddey N. Edelstein, the department's inter-governmental coordinator.

The Doctor Says:

Electrocution -- What Happens

Dear Dr. Lamb — My 18-year-old brother was electrocuted when a conveyor belt cable broke three months ago. He was unconscious for 12 hours and in critical condition for several days. He was burned on his arms and had deep burns on his pelvis and legs. His doctor said he may go insane later in life. Is this possible? Will it affect his memory? Also is it true that he will be sterile? I would like all the information you can give me about a person who has been electrocuted.

Dear Reader — No one can guarantee that any person, including you and me, will not be insane or sterile with or without having been electrocuted. But let me assure you that as a rule there is no permanent damage to a person who recovers from a severe electric shock.

An electric current can affect the brain temporarily. After all, it is still used for shock therapy in treating psychiatric illnesses. The current may induce loss of consciousness or stun the individual. As the current affects the brain or if it moves through the body, it can cause the muscles to contract violently.

The electric current can cause an irregularity of the heart that prevents it from pumping blood. If this persists, death ensues. This is how most electrocutions work.

Severe shock can cause the tissues it comes in contact with to coagulate; it literally cooks them. This can result in muscle damage and burns on the body.

Electrical burns are usually at the point where the current enters and leaves the body. If the current passes through a small part of the body and doesn't reach the brain or heart, it will cause only local effects in the part of the body involved. Current often doesn't do a lot of damage inside the body because blood and inner organs are good electrical conductors. Burns on the skin occur because the skin is relatively resistant to electric currents. The resistance is what causes the heat and the burn. Shoes and clothing may literally have holes burned in them.

After the shock, affected arms or legs may be stiff or paralyzed for months but usually recover. There may also be mild personality changes but these, too, are temporary. About the only permanent effects are those of actual burns — usually on the surface — and, rarely, a later formation of cataracts in the eyes. The exception to this is the person whose heart is stopped and not started soon enough, resulting in brain damage. This occurs only when the heart has been affected and artificial resuscitation of the heart was required.

Lightning is a special form of electric shock. It doesn't always kill. People have had their clothes torn off and have only been stunned.

About 700 persons are killed by electricity at work each year. Another 150 are killed by lightning and an equal number in the home.

1916 E. Higgins Rd. Elk Grove, Ill.

State Rep. Robert Mann, D-Chicago, the proponent of anti-Vietnam War legislation in the Illinois General Assembly last year, is waging a more intensive effort in the current legislative session.

Mann reintroduced his bill last Tuesday and has sent copies of the bill to press outlets in the state, along with a statement of his reasons for introducing the bill, a legal opinion on the proposed legislation and a letter from Mann explaining why he was sending all the material.

We have not previously been on Mann's mailing list so apparently the recent package is an indication that he hopes to drum up considerable support for the legislation on a grass roots level and hopes to translate that support into votes in the House of Representatives.

The proposed legislation is similar to that passed in Massachusetts last year. It states that no resident of Illinois who is serving in the armed forces would be required to serve outside the territorial limits of the U.S. "in the conduct of hostilities not authorized under the powers given to the President or to Congress by the Constitution of the United States."

SINCE THE Constitution clearly gives the right to declare war only to Congress, and since Congress has not declared war in Vietnam, Mann's interpretation is that the war is unconstitutional.

"The bill I am proposing is not a states-rights bill," Mann said. "It is a people's bill. It would permit Illinois servicemen to refuse to serve in foreign wars not authorized by the United States Constitution."

Mann and his legal consultant, Anthony D'Amato of the Northwestern University School of Law, think the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court on the Massachusetts bill is an indication that the law could be upheld in Illinois.

The Court was asked by Massachusetts to rule on the law and, although the Court refused to rule, it did not kill the bill, which it could have done.

"Even more significant," Mann said, "is the fact that three Justices dissented from the court's basic ruling. In the meantime, three lower federal courts have, in recent rulings, come half of the way in acknowledging the awful truth that the war we have been fighting for 10 years in Southeast Asia may be indeed unconstitutional."

Mann's bill was killed in the legislature last year and, because the current session of the General Assembly is expected to be the busiest ever, it is doubtful if he'll be able to convince many of his colleagues to spend much time on it when they must still implement a new Constitution, redistrict state and congressional lines, and appropriate funds to keep the state running.

But Mann's efforts thus far, only a week after reintroducing the bill, indicate that he does not plan to give up without a fight.

APPARENTLY SOME newspapers don't like to let good taste interfere with their political ambitions and goals.

A Chicago daily, which bills itself as the "World's greatest newspaper," has never expressed any particular fondness for the Kennedy family but its personal bias reached a low ebb recently.

In an editorial comment on a satirical proposal in the House of Representatives that the U.S. Senate be replaced by a House of Lords, the paper said the idea should not be disregarded completely because it did have some merit.

The paper suggested that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., could be awarded one of the new titles of nobility, "First Baron Chappaquiddick," with a coat of arms that would show a drawbridge over a moat.

We can't argue with the paper's political dislike of Kennedy but we do wonder if jokes about the death of Mary Jo Kopechne are in good taste and necessary.

Kennedy's political future looks bleak, particularly after his own Democratic colleagues in the Senate, supposedly the more liberal of the two parties, replace him with a senator who once was an officer in the Ku Klux Klan. (Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W Va., new Senate whip, was a KKK ideologue once, but now admits it was a mistake.)

We're getting tired of hearing about Kennedy and Chappaquiddick.

Governor To Show Annual Budget?

A bill that would require the governor to submit his annual budget to the Illinois General Assembly no later than the second Wednesday of February has been introduced by State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner's bill was one of three he introduced during the recent legislative week.

He said the budget deadline bill "is to give the legislature ample time to analyze the proposed budget before acting on it; in the past there just hasn't been sufficient time for the General Assembly to do a realistic job in investigating budget requests."

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will present his annual budget to the legislature in March this year, a month earlier than he did last year. The earlier submission this year is a result of complaints by many legislators that they did not have enough time to study the state's budget.

IF THE REGNER bill is approved, it would take effect next year.

Regner, who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, also introduced a bill which would require records of township and county assessors to be available to the public during normal office hours.

"Many times when there is a question of wrongdoing in an assessor's office he refuses to allow investigators or representatives of the news media to check for the alleged wrongdoing on the basis that the records are not public records," Regner said. "This proposal clarifies the point of public records."

A third Regner bill would appropriate $246,000 for continued improvements and flood control measures in Weller Creek in Mount Prospect. The funds would be used for the fourth of five stages in Weller Creek improvements which Regner launched in 1967.

MSD Chief Hints Pay Veto

Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) Board Pres. John E. Egan is considering using his veto power to knock down a resolution calling for annual salary of $5,000 for district trustees.

Egan said Friday he wasn't in favor of the resolution when it was presented late last month and since then nothing had developed to change his mind. However, Egan stressed, he still had not made any final decision whether he would veto the measure.

The resolution, which asks the state legislature to boost board members salaries from $15,000 to $20,000, was passed in the wake of expressed opposition from several trustees.

When the matter came down to a vote, only Trustee George Thiem answered the roll call with a "No."

Opposition from Thiem and reservations from other trustees, including Egan, is based on the fact the board received from the state legislature in 1968 a hike from $10,000 to $15,000. All but four trustees are receiving the higher salary. The four are still being paid $10,000 because the Illinois constitution prevents elected officials from collecting pay boosts approved during their current term. Once the four trustees' terms expire, they or their successors will receive $15,000 salaries.

THOSE OPPOSING the increase also point out the trusteeship is a part-time job, and board members are allowed to hold other jobs.

Asked when he would make a decision, Egan only replied, "It will be soon."

'I Feel Very Rewarded'

Miss America

Pays Us A Visit

"I'm an individual. I'm a human being. I'm thinking. I get tired. I'm a college student experiencing an education while I'm not in school."

She's Phyllis George, Miss America 1971. And she was in Des Moines Friday sitting in the showroom of Ladendorff Oldsmobile greeting some enthusiastic fans.

She's 21 years old and is from Denton, Tex. In the fall she will be a senior at North Texas State University, where she is majoring in elementary education and minoring in speech.

Since she was chosen Miss America last September, she has traveled throughout the country meeting and greeting church and civic groups and school children and military men. And she's been very busy answering questions.

"You know, a lot of people ask me how it feels to keep smiling and what I think about being on exhibit. Well, it doesn't bother me to keep smiling — only if someone doesn't smile back. Then I get very tired and smiling becomes difficult.

"IT DOESN'T bother me to be 'on exhibit,' either," the tall, soft-spoken beauty said in her Southern accent. "When I see how much happiness it brings to people when they meet Miss America, I'm very rewarded."

Miss George thinks the title of Miss America is very respected. "People throughout the country know who Miss America is and they respect what she stands for.

"Miss America is looked up to by many young people," she added, "because she represents them. She influences their conduct, values and goals. I think it's great that children want to grow up like her."

Phyllis George believes that in spite of her hectic official calendar, she still has a lot of personal freedom. "I can answer anything I want, I can date and I have lots of time to go home and visit with my family."

She does admit that she will have to make a big adjustment when she gives up her crown. "After the glamor and excitement, I'll have to adjust. But I know I can — after all, all the other girls before me have."

MISS AMERICA 1971, Phyllis George of Denton, Tex., stands huddled against the wind Friday during her visit at Ladendorff Oldsmobile.

'Sing Out Palatine'

"Sing Out Palatine" will perform for the Schaumburg School PTA Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., in the school gymnasium.

The young people in this group are between the ages of 15 and 25. Starting with 10 members in 1967, the group has grown to about 100.

An ice cream social will follow the program.

Elgin YMCA Sets

Scuba Diving Class

Registrations are being accepted at the Elgin YMCA, 111 N. Channing St., for the SCUBA diving class that begins March 30.

The class will meet from 8:30 until 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday until June 1, said James Kiever, YMCA physical director. "Instruction will be both in the YMCA pool and in classroom sessions."

Enrollment is open to both men and women 15 years of age and older. They must be competent swimmers. Kiever added. Maximum enrollment is 30 swimmers.

YMCA membership is not required for enrollment, but Elgin YMCA members may enroll at a reduced fee, Kiever said. Instruction will be by the Illinois Institute of Diving.

Students will learn skin diving techniques, the proper use of equipment, safety measures and complete the course by doing an actual open water dive, Kiever said.

For registration information, contact the Elgin YMCA, 695-1100.

Dist. 214 Board To Eye

Bus Contracts Tonight

The High School Dist. 214 board, meeting at 7:30 this evening, will look again at three-year bus contracts for the district.

The school board meets at 799 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect. Two weeks ago, the board deferred action on the contracts in order to explore possible cooperation between the district and Elementary Dist. 59.

Davidmeyer Bus Lines had included in its bid a 5 per cent credit for cooperative use between the districts, and the board wanted to explore the savings involved in cooperation.

Cook County Bus Co. and Ritzenthaler Bus Lines Inc., which currently serve the district, also submitted bids.

In other action, the board will act on a proposal to slightly alter the system of selecting valedictorians and salutatorians at commencement.

THE PROPOSAL is to allow students who graduate in six or seven semesters to be compared with their classmates at the time of graduation and to be identified as valedictorians if they have the highest grade point average at the time of their graduation.

A committee of administrators, teachers and students surveyed other students and wrote to other schools to see how the situation was handled. The committee found that a majority of students did not favor abandoning the present system.

The board will also receive a progress report on construction at Rolling Meadows High School, receive a report on a Life Safety survey at Forest View High School in southern Arlington Heights and hear a presentation from Thomas Mead and Dr. E. J. Jacobs of the Scarsdale Estates Association in southern Arlington Heights.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several airlines have run into financial difficulty and are now cutting back on plane orders, reducing flight schedules and otherwise tightening their budgets.

These measures may be all right as temporary expedients but they fail to reach the root of the problem, which is that airlines aren't being used for anything except flying.

When a plane isn't airborne, it sits idly on the ground, taking up valuable space and giving no return on the investment. In these days of the jumbo jet, this is a terrible waste.

One airline has moved to rectify the situation by offering its huge 747s to companies for business meetings. It is clear, however, much additional diversification will be needed to pull the airlines out of the hole.

Assume for illustration purposes that the Great Speckled Airline wanted to raise some extra revenue. It could quickly undergo corporate reorganization to become the Great Speckled Airline and Junior High School.

CLASSROOM SPACE is at a premium all over the country, with many school districts going heavily into debt trying to keep up with the demand. If instead of building more schools they simply bused the kids to the airport, it would . . . well, I'm sure you get the picture. You also could get a picture from the Great Speckled Airline, Theater and Concert Hall.

Almost all of the jumbo jets have at least one motion picture screen. Meanwhile, almost all airports have a bunch of passengers waiting around the terminal with nothing much to do for a couple of hours or so.

Selling them tickets to a movie aboard one of the grounded planes should be as easy as taking off a log. Which brings us to the predicament of rock music promoters who are having increasing difficulty finding places to hold concerts. They undoubtedly would pay handsome fees for the use of 747s.

It is likely, however, that the greatest potential for ground-level use of airliners lies within the field of aviation itself.

NEARLY EVERY airport in America is cramped for space and millions of dollars are being spent to expand their facilities.

Yet right out there on the ramp are planes that are larger than many of the terminals.

Okay. So knock off the construction and let the airliners on the ground serve as passenger lounges for other airliners.

Properly managed, an airline soon should be financially able to give up flying altogether.

Oswald: "Back in the early days of contract a few enterprising bidders might get to six hearts with the North-South cards. North would double one diamond just as North did today and South would make the same one-heart response. The old time North would follow up with a jump directly to the heart game and it would be a most unusual South player who would find another bid."

Jim: "Today's North players follow bidding has indicated that the club fineness will work."

Jim: "There is still some confusion at the average player level about the meaning of this bid but there is none in JACOBY MODERN where the cue bid that follows a double is used as a forcing bid."

Oswald: "When you do hold the enemy suit you can jump in it if your holding is overwhelming; pass and bid it later or just pass and keep on passing."

In 16 Years With UOP

Hertha Has Built A Division Around Her

by DOROTHY OLIVER

"There's no special handicap in being a woman. If you take the attitude that you're a second rate citizen, you're not going to get anywhere — man or woman."

This is the philosophy of Hertha Skala, and it is this attitude combined with competence that has brought her the position of assistant director of research for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

Born, raised and educated in Vienna, Austria, Hertha came to the United States as a war bride in 1947. She majored in pharmaceutical chemistry at the University of Vienna and managed a drug store before meeting her husband, Victor.

She decided upon chemistry as a career early in life. "The European school systems are very different from here. At 16 you are selecting your career. During the eight years I was in high school, I accumulated credits equivalent to a B.A. degree. After four years of college you graduate with the equivalent of a Ph.D.," she explained.

WHEN SHE WAS 10 she had to choose between the high school which dealt with the humanities or the one which stressed science. Her decision to go into a scientific field was reinforced by chemistry courses taken when she was 11.

"I think it is a good system. High schools here are too much an extension of grade school. If I had my choice, I'd go to school there and do graduate work here," she said.

Hertha worked at three companies before beginning with UOP to get the "feel of the industry. I saw them building UOP, looked into the company and decided I'd work for them come hell or high water," she laughed.

Getting the job took some doing, but once Hertha was interviewed she was hired on the spot. The job was not what she wanted to do (isotopic studies), but she decided to give the company two years before quitting.

"I HAVE NOT moved. I have built a division around me. There is a tremendous amount of knowledge available in this company, but I always felt there was not enough known about what makes a catalyst a catalyst."

"If you can show management you have usable and saleable ideas from a certain field, they go for it." Management decided to back Hertha's interest in catalytic function, and she now supervises 8 chemists.

"A woman does have advantages in a man's world," she said. "You have a different relationship with the people you work with. Women have intuition and a little more understanding of personal problems."

Dr. Vladimir Haensel, vice president and director of research, confirms this — at least as far as Hertha is concerned. "Hertha has been very valuable to us with her sixth sense. She is on the interviewing committee (which interviews all scientists who apply) and we respect her opinion on how the people we hire will work out."

DR. HAENSEL, who has been her boss for six years, added, "In any event she improves the average appearance of the research staff."

Since her promotion in 1967 to assistant director, Hertha spends little time in the laboratories working with the machines. She and her staff are the "problem solvers." They are given a project and expected to find answers.

"Pollution is one of my major areas of work at this time. We are working on a catalytic converter for automobile exhaust. We want to convert noxious gases emitted in exhaust to something that won't hurt you. It is a very rewarding piece of work."

Hertha has no intention of retiring from UOP ("They'll have to kick me out") and recommends her field to women. "There's always a new challenge and a new area to look into. The opportunities are there for women. More advanced companies are completely open to women. Here more than 10 per cent of research center personnel are female — much higher than the national average."

"We have yet to meet anyone who said they didn't want to work for a woman director," Dr. Haensel said. "In fact, we've had many who said they'd rather work for Hertha."

"That's because they knew me," Hertha grinned.

DATA FED FROM A mass spectrometer is examined by she has built a department around her and her special Hertha Skala, assistant director of research at Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines. In 16 years with the company interest.

That's Just Sherry Nonsense

When A Jill Needs A Jack

by MARY SHERRY

Last Monday, which was one of the coldest of the cold days we ever had, my car refused to start. I talked to it, pumped the gas pedal, pushed the gas pedal all the way down and tried every trick I knew — a total of three — to get it started.

As I sat stewing in the car, ready to give up, I heard a tap on the window.

"Having trouble?" It was my next-door neighbor, Alice Flaxton. "Let me give it a try."

I slid over as she jumped in the car, and I watched while she tried to start it.

"It sounds bad," she said, cocking her head to listen to the cold, reluctant grinding of the starter. "We'll have to jump the battery."

"But Alice," I protested, "our husbands aren't here, and —"

"WHO NEEDS HUSBANDS at a time like this?" Alice sniffed. "Come on in and warm up while I move my car next to yours and find the jumper cables."

I followed Alice inside and gratefully accepted a cup of coffee. Alice disappeared and after a while came out in a very chic insulated jumpsuit. I was going to mention that she had some spots that looked like grease on it, but she hurried out to her car before I could tell her.

By the time I got out to the driveway, she had already pulled her car up along side of mine and had the hood up.

"Put up your hood," she yelled over the noise of the motor.

It took me a minute to realize she meant the hood of the car, and I stood and looked dumbly at it.

"DON'T YOU KNOW how to get it open?" Alice asked with an edge of contempt in her voice.

I admitted that I didn't.

She looked expertly at the grille and flicked a lever she found concealed somewhere and the hood lock popped open. "Now," she ordered, "help me straighten these cables." She handed me some heavy rubber-coated wires that were stiff with cold and clung to my arms like pythons.

"When I say 'tut,' run and start your car," Alice instructed. "Until then, keep holding these cables." She hooked the end of one on a little knob protruding from the battery in my car. "Red to red, black to black," she muttered.

I wasn't sure, but I thought she was murmuring a sort of incantation. She hooked the other end to a knob on her car's battery. Then she took the other cable from me and hooked one end up to another knob on my battery.

"I THINK THAT'S right," she said with a hint of uncertainty that I never would have detected if I hadn't known Alice so well.

"Alice," I cautioned, "if you hook it up the wrong way, can't... I mean, it could blow up or something." I started backing away, eyeing a large tree that could provide a hasty shield.

I was still close enough to see that as soon as she touched the remaining cable end to the other knob on her battery, sparks flew all over.

Still visibly composed, she unhooked everything, turned off her car motor and hurried into the house without a word.

I followed her, and when I got inside I could see she was on the telephone.

"Henry, dear —?" I heard her croon.

There was something about this experience that makes me think Women's Lib has a long way to go.

B&PW Plans Fashion Benefit At Arlington Park Feb. 27

"Eyeful of Fashions" will be the theme of the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club annual fund-raising luncheon-fashion show.

The benefit will be held Saturday, Feb. 27, at the Arlington Heights Park Towers Hotel, Arlington Heights. A cocktail hour will precede the 1 p.m. luncheon in the Round Table Room.

Saks Fifth Avenue will show spring fashions with a fashion coordinator from Saks, Bernice Donnet, as the commentator.

Tickets are available from Mrs. B. Bolanos, 438-1418, or may be purchased from any club member.

Mrs. Marian Baker is serving as general chairman for the annual fund raiser.

Chairmen assisting her are Mrs. Dolores Haugh, decorations; Mrs. Norma DeVito, prizes; Mrs. Mary Cocklin, Saks certificates; Mrs. Bolanos, reservations; Marian Bessel, cocktails; Mrs. Barbara Johnson, "goodie" bags; Mrs. Laura Wolf, Surprise Escape Weekend; Mrs. Ruth Avakas, treasurer; Mrs. Ann Rosegren, secretary; Mrs. Charlotte Shaugnessy, publicity.

Proceeds are used for the club's philanthropies. In the past the B & PW has given financial assistance to someone in the mature women's education program of Mundelein College and to educators of the mentally handicapped. Local projects also have benefited, this year mainly efforts to solve the drug abuse problem.

Fashion
by Genie
Inside
Today

Fashion is going to the birds...literally. Bird prints, bird appliques and bird feathers are all flying onto the fashion scene for spring.

Nobody is quite sure how the birds suddenly entered the picture. Some designers say it's part of the ecology theme; others think it has something to do with the peace symbol of the dove. Whatever, the birds are replacing the butterflies which replaced the snakes. Any bets on what will replace the birds?

Another sign of spring fashion is the huge triangular-shaped fringed shawl worn over most everything...evening and day dresses, pants and, of course, hopalongs, known also as cool shorts and city shorts.

THE SHAWL will be scooping up the business from the long capes. Many are equal in length with back pants reaching the hem of ankle length dresses. Women who knit and crochet are currently in demand.

A basic theme for spring and summer of '71 is the World War II look. It includes short puffed sleeves, football shoulders, ankle strap wedgies, white stockings and splashy artificial flowers.

The fashions are teamed with platform-sole shoes and fluffy side-parted wigs, some with big "Baby Snooks" bows tied to the side of the head. Lips and nails are bright red.

"Have you heard of the latest fancy in waists and are you 'up' on what is to be the fad for the summer...This interesting departure is no less than the preparation of shirtwaists for the different months."

SOUNDS LIKE TODAY. Shirtwaists will be popular this spring. They were also popular in 1962. The quote above is from the 1962 Chicago Chronicle which also mentioned the emphasis on hand embroidery and madras too. Just another example of the fashion cycle.

A picture in that same 1962 Chronicle depicted a stylish blouse with big collar and loose billowy sleeves. It was a pattern selling for 10 cents. Styles may come back, but prices never do.

Another basic message that rang through Paris during the recent spring showings is that hemlines don't count. Even some minis sneaked through. This could be caused by the refusal of many women to midis.

A RECENT NATIONWIDE survey carried out by Virginia Sims indicated that American women dress for themselves. According to the survey, today's female views herself as an individual when it comes to style of dress. She wants to wear what makes her happy and comfortable, not what fashion dictates.

By almost two to one, American women are still playing it short in favor of the mini.

New fashion, women seem to feel, is less a reflection of what women are looking for than what fashion designers want them to wear.

Bride, Attendants Sew Own Gowns

Since Susan Jane Marshall's graduation last May from DePauw University in Greencastle, Ind., she has been a busy bride-to-be planning for her marriage to Richard Alan Reck of Hinsdale. Susan, daughter of the Allan W. Marshalls of 1317 N. Harvard, Arlington Heights, designed and made her own bridal gown for the Jan. 16 ceremony, and her attendants made their dresses, too.

The wedding took place in the Christian Church of Arlington Heights at two in the afternoon, with a reception following for 60 guests at Old Orchard Country Club.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard August Reck, is a senior at DePauw, so he and Susan are back on the campus until graduation time. They are planning a belated honeymoon in Europe next summer after he receives his degree.

SUSAN DESIGNED HER bridal gown in candlelight peau de sole with brocade accents. The Empire bodice, was made of brocade as was the detachable train of the gown. Brocade also formed cuffs on the gathered peau sleeves. The bride's shoulder-length veil was attached to a flat bow of peau trimmed with seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her sister Anita, a student at the University of Kentucky, was maid of honor, wearing a gown sewn by her mother. It was fashioned in mint green crepe with an emerald green velvet bolero fastened with a pearl and gold ornament. She wore a two-tone headpiece and carried a nosegay of citrus and pink stephanotis, pink pompons, birds of paradise and french carnations.

PAMELA CHARLSON OF Springfield, Ill., Alpha Gamma Delta sorority sister of the bride, and Pamela Reck, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids. They also made their gowns, styled identically to the maid of honor's but in sky blue crepe with a midnight blue velvet bolero. They wore matching headpieces and carried bouquets identical to Anita's.

Mark Rahm of Hinsdale was best man, and Gary Foley of Downers Grove and James Toomey of Park Forest, cousin of the groom, ushered. The Saturday following this wedding, Mark was married and chose Richard for his best man, reversing their roles with the week.

As they received the wedding guests, the bride's mother appeared in turquoise crepe with a golden rose corsage and the groom's mother in pale pink with red roses at her shoulder.

Susan is a graduate of Arlington High School and spent her junior year of college at the University of Madrid.

Her husband is affiliated with Delta Chi Fraternity at DePauw.

Dear Dorothy: You may think me a scatterbrain. You once had an item in your column on removing brown stains on white acoustical ceiling tile. It appeared at a time when we were mystified as to what to do with several spots on our ceiling as the result of a leaking roof. I followed the method suggested; it worked perfectly. Now I need it again and even though it was simple I've forgotten, do you mind repeating it? —Mrs. S. E.

We all forget. There were two other letters in the same mail with similar requests. Delighted to hear it worked so well. The advice came from a painter who used a cup of white vinegar and a small paint brush. He worked on the stains three or four times, applying each treatment on a different day. We're told the stains disappeared and your experience confirms it.

Dear Dorothy: I have an old dinette suite with chrome legs. I am moving into a modern apartment and this furniture will be visible from the living room. Do you know any way I can update this set until I can get something more suitable? —Bonnie S.

Round tables are fashionable today so why not put on one of those round tops and use a deep circular tablecloth. A good looking tablecloth will not only hide the chrome legs, but enhance the room's decor.

Dear Dorothy: I want to tell you that I tried cooking a pot roast all day in a warm oven, after browning it — and found it delicious. I went one step further. I added canned whole potatoes, canned whole onions and canned carrots, put them on top and added a little water. When I got home from work, all I had to do was to make the gravy. — Dorothy Alvey.

Dear Dorothy: I had a large family group for dinner and used paper plates. When I removed the linen cloth, there was a white spot at each place where a paper plate had been. Apparently the heat of the food went right through the plate. I've tried to remove the stain but no luck. Any suggestions? —Mrs. R. E. Thompson.

The only way any remedy — home or commercial — will work is if the wood has a highly polished, waxed finish. If you have removed this in working on the stains. There may be nothing more to be done. If the finish is still all right there are good commercial stain removers on the market. Readers have reported using simple home remedies like putting on white petroleum jelly and letting it stay on for several hours. One tried a mixture of salt and olive oil, leaving it on overnight. One mixed cigarette ashes with mayonnaise, rubbed it on, then wiped it off. You may want to try any of these on a tiny, unobtrusive spot but it has to be stressed that nothing may work if the methods you have already employed have taken off the finish.

Dear Dorothy: To keep celery nice and crisp, I put it in a long plastic bag (formerly used for bread) and seal with a plastic wire, then store in the hydrator pan in the refrigerator. Celery seems to keep longer and crispier than just putting it in the hydrator. — Mrs. H.J.S.

Show Goes On Despite Fire

Mrs. Richard Berkshire of Mount Prospect was to have worn a lovely, soft pink suede skirt and vest ensemble. She even bought new boots to go with the below-the-knee skirt.

Mrs. Jerre Frantschy of Arlington Heights was to have worn a blue and white polka dot midly dress with ruffles galore, and Mrs. Ernest Howard of Palatine was to have worn a white sharkskin pant suit with white canvas raincoat detailed with leather lacings.

But the big fire Friday at Martha Weathered's Michigan Avenue shop changed all that. For the Infant Welfare's annual "Lollipops and Roses" luncheon-fashion show tomorrow, the three women will be seated in the audience. In their place on the runway will be professional models who are also members of Infant Welfare, and instead of fashions from Weathereds, the ensembles will be from Bramsons.

Mrs. Carl Owen of Palatine Center of Infant Welfare is one of the professionals, so she will give up her place in the audience to model on the runway. Along with the other models, she will be bringing all her jewelry and accessories to the Conrad Hilton where the benefit is to take place. Just what she will wear with her jewelry and accessories she won't know until she dresses for the show.

Still scheduled for their stint on the runway are the children's models whose ensembles are from Little Bramsons.

ROLLING MEADOWS JUNIORS

Education Co-op Merits Support

The Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), a 10-district cooperative serving northwest suburbs, has come under scattered but sharp fire in recent months from a handful of local school board members.

Representatives of Elementary Dist. 34 and High School Dist. 211 and 214 boards have strongly criticized NEC for a variety of failings.

Primary criticism has included a charge that NEC needs firmer control from its governing board (composed of one board member from each of the 10 districts) and a concern that NEC is taking away control from member districts.

Board members also have asserted that the 19-month-old agency has not cut costs for districts which are supporting cooperative programs through NEC.

In January, the NEC administration presented a cost-effectiveness study to its governing board, whose members studied the report and then reviewed ways of increasing district involvement in NEC activities.

The review was positive and constructive. It was a review for an organization which needs both constructive criticism and meaningful support from member districts as well as the general public.

Executive Director Gloria Kinney stressed in the cost study that NEC's primary purpose is not to save money; rather, it is "educational," she explained in quoting from the group's charter.

"Education" is the method by which NEC can be most effective. In one way, this "education" takes place each month when 10 school board representatives sit down across the table and discuss common problems.

Without NEC, inter-district communication would be limited to superintendents' meetings, newspaper clippings and sessions of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards. In other words, there would be little time for board members and school officials to explore common concerns.

Without NEC, seminars on topics such as negotiations and year-round classes would be difficult to arrange. New board members would not receive the benefits of orientation seminars like the one last spring for just-elected board members.

NEC also has produced cost savings for member districts, although not on the scale anticipated by some educators. For example, a data processing cooperative has produced services 40 per cent cheaper than individual districts could have provided on their own.

A cooperatively-funded transportation study has gathered data for all NEC member districts; that data could not have been collected by smaller, individual districts.

But it is difficult to convince board members — especially those from larger and wealthier districts — that NEC has the potential for saving money and stimulating co-operation.

In fact, NEC dilemma is not unlike that of the United Nations. The UN is viewed by many critics as a failure because it hasn't resolved conflicts, either between superpowers such as the U. S. and Russia or between factions such as in the Nigerian Civil War. Nevertheless, the UN has developed UNESCO and other organizations providing a host of valuable services to all participating nations. And a world forum for rational discussion and debate is available for those who wish to use it.

Likewise, NEC hasn't resolved conflicts between suburban school districts, nor has it blessed districts with cost-cutting methods which ultimately might eliminate often-defeated tax referenda.

But for those districts which have participated in the cooperative, it has offered some cost-reduction and a forum for resolving disputes. The Rolling Meadows border issue involving High School Dist. 211 and 214 could have been at least partially resolved if both boards had utilized NEC to clear up misunderstandings.

Most important in our judgment, however, is that educators can exchange ideas and problems through NEC and thus educate each other. For this reason if no other, we believe the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs and merits the support of all persons concerned about education in our communities.

Suburb Influence Grows

Congratulations are due to two Northwest suburban members of the Illinois House of Representatives.

Last week, Speaker W. Robert Blair appointed State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, was named chairman of the House Executive Committee.

We believe the appointments reflect the hard work Regner and Juckett have put in during their years in Springfield; but more important, they reflect the continually-increasing influence of suburbs in the General Assembly.

This is a good sign. As the population of the suburbs increases, there will be a need for good suburban representation in the legislature. The appointments of Regner and Juckett are a step in that direction.

We wish them well in their new duties.

Helping To Relieve The Crunch

Suburbs Face School Votes

by TOM WELLMAN
Education Editor

It is not the purpose of this column to inflict unnecessary pain upon citizens and educators by bringing up topics which cause pain, teeth-grashing, ulcers and general nervousness.

Nevertheless, a few words must be written about the referenda.

It's an important topic simply because, before summer vacation, area voters are going to face five of them. By fall, all residents will have been faced by a sixth as Harper College in Palatine seeks a hike in its education and building (maintenance) fund rates.

Before the last vote is counted at Harper, citizens are going to be subjected to coffees manned by well-groomed and articulate school officials, earnest pleas in print for passage (or defeat) and, of course, the post-vote congratulations or tear-shedding.

The parade to the polls began Saturday, as residents of Dist. 23 (Prospect Heights) went to the polls. Later, elementary districts 25, 26 and 28 and High School Dist. 214 will seek tax hikes or building bonds for new schools.

Before the thousands of words about deficit spending, tax anticipation warrants, state aid and budgets are written, two thoughts need to be expressed.

First, there's a good chance, because of inflation, the recession and a growing voter wariness towards school districts, that some referenda may get voted down.

For those who vote against tax hikes and bond issues as a rule-of-thumb, it should be pointed out that no local school district in recent years has gone out of business as a result of a referendum defeat.

Of course, students have been deprived of individual attention, recreation and the rooms for recreation, adequate classroom space, and even basic programs which make high school and college education easier.

Perhaps they've also gained a certain cynicism towards voters who don't intelligently examine the needs of education and don't consider what role public education has played in their lives.

Second, teachers have a vested interest in the outcome of referenda to boost the education tax fund, which is the source of teacher's salaries.

The importance of education funds will be stressed this year, as educational associations become more active in demanding more from school boards. If voters reject tax hikes, the teachers will face even less response from board members to their pleas for a living wage.

In Arlington Heights Dist. 25, for teachers there's a real and specific concern about gaining voter approval for a 50 cent tax hike. Without the added revenue, the district is going to slash funds. A first casualty, naturally, would be teachers and their salaries.

Thus teachers in the district have indicated strong support for the tax hike. How far they'll go to work for its passage remains to be seen in the five weeks before the referendum.

Support of a referendum also would give teachers in Dist. 25, or any district, a certain leverage in salary negotiations. Teachers who have supported a tax hike could argue that a reward is due for aiding the district's money-raising efforts.

It will be educational to watch how teachers regard their "vested interest". As both they and citizens consider referenda, both parties should take time to examine carefully how much education matters to them and to their children.

Uncle Sam As Croupier?

New Study Given National Lottery

by DON OAKLEY

The states have often been called "social laboratories" in which experiments in social change are conducted on a small scale. If they prove of value, they may later be adopted by the nation as a whole.

A classic example is Wyoming's granting of female suffrage way back in 1890 when it was still a territory. Other advances pioneered by individual states include wage and hour, child labor and pure food and drug laws and a whole list of reforms now administered by the federal government on a national level.

Because in recent years we seem to have come to depend upon federal leadership — and federal funds — for everything, the "social laboratory" description is not heard so much any more. Yet the test tubes are still bubbling, and one state where they are bubbling quite vigorously is New York.

Not that New York has always been a pioneer. For years it resisted bringing some rationality to bear upon its archaic divorce law. Of late, however, a kind of dam seems to have burst.

Following the lead of New Hampshire, New York has instituted a state-run lottery for education. It has one of the most liberal abortion laws in the nation. Most recently, it has legalized off-track betting on horse races.

Now the majority leader in the state senate has introduced a bill that would legalize Nevada-style gambling casinos to boost state income.

Formerly an opponent of legalized gambling, New York State Sen. Earl W. Brydges reasons that "we've come so far down that road that there is no turning back, and I think as a pragmatic, realistic matter we should tap other sources."

They're being pragmatic, realistic and/or experimental in neighboring New Jersey, too, where a state lottery, overwhelmingly approved by voters, has just been launched.

A senator in that state's legislature is now offering a bill to amend the state constitution to permit casino gambling in

Viewpoint

Atlantic City, with dice tables, roulette wheels and all the other paraphernalia that have made Las Vegas a mecca for millions.

In both New York and New Jersey, opposition to legalized gambling is based both on moral grounds and on the fear that organized crime would take over. Proponents say this need not happen if casinos are closely supervised by the state, or better yet, run by the state itself.

People are going to gamble anyway, they argue. It only makes sense for the state to benefit from this inescapable, if lamentable, fact.

Will these "laboratory" experiments ever boil over on a national scale?

A straw in the wind may be a little noted statement made a few months ago by Carl M. Loeb Jr., president of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Testifying before a House government operations subcommittee, which has been conducting a continuing investigation on the federal effort against organized crime, Loeb recommended flatly that the government legalize, computerize and run gambling at all levels throughout the nation in order to deprive the underworld of a major source of its income.

"I don't mean licensed gambling — which merely attracts organized crime because it is a license to steal — but actual operation," he explained.

"The billions which could be diverted to government," he said, "could help fight the poverty now a result of the widespread betting in the ghettos, and the thousands of law enforcement personnel now involved in arresting petty gamblers could divert their efforts to more important violators."

The possibility of Washington becoming the nation's croupier and bookie is an unlikely one. But don't bet against it in the long run, especially if more states begin experimenting with legalized gambling and it works.

As for the odds of his bill being approved in the New York "laboratory," Senator Brydges says, not entirely in jest:

"Three to two and take your pick."

Expert Report On Phosphate

In a recent article covering the village finance committee's hearing dealing with environmental problems, Mrs. John Macko again urged village trustees to prohibit the sale of high phosphate detergents in Arlington Heights. At the hearing, Trustee Frank Palmatier said he feels the non-phosphate detergents are "inferior" and he does not want to "unduly penalize the housewives of Arlington Heights."

I am a housewife. I have no fancy science degrees; however, I have quite a few hours of laundry time to my credit. I recently switched from one of the whiter-than-white, super-enzymed, phosphate-filled, powerhouse detergents to a low-suds, phosphate-free detergent. My white clothes were still white (although I must confess I must do something wrong on wash day — they never have been whiter than white). Heavy soil and stains were removed as completely as with my phosphate-filled detergent.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

You can imagine my surprise when I read Mr. Palmatier's verdict that my clean clothes weren't really clean! Perhaps Mr. Palmatier shares some wash-day knowledge with Arthur Godfrey, Eddie Albert, and many other of the television personalities who undoubtedly have spent a great deal of their time washing clothes with many combinations of detergents and additives until they could come up with just the right type to do the very best job (a real public service). If this is so, it would be greatly appreciated if Mr. Palmatier would share the results of his testing with the community. Until that time, however, I believe I will go my merry, phosphate-free way in my white as white, bright as bright attire.

'Y' Is A Way Of Life

My name is James Hinde. I am 37 years of age; my wife is, well, she is over 18. We have three children; Pat, Debbie and our youngest Pennie. We like to think of ourselves as an average West Suburban family. Active in several organizations, members of the P.T.A. and attend church. We were content with our lot. However...

A little over a year ago we joined the North Suburban Y.M.C.A. in Des Plaines. We were given the usual tour; that was very impressive. After which, we were introduced to a program of events and available activities. Well, Sirs! We have become a Y.M.C.A. family. My children are active, as well as my wife and myself. The most enjoyable part of the year 1970, was the wonderful people that we met there. The fellowship, the warmth and the many kindnesses that were given to all. Not because it was part of their jobs but a part and way of their lives.

It is everyone, not only the staff. There are the Nickie Doeblers, the Helens, the Walls, the Arts, the D.J.s, the Cliffs, the director Mr. McClellan, the Life Guards, the girls at the counter, the Jacks and the men in the back. It is also the volunteers, the Caryl Crouches and her helpers, the Renees, the Lauras and the Sues. There is no end to the fine, warm people who collectively have made our lives a more full, enjoyable and healthier one.

As a member of the Y.M.C.A., on behalf of my family and I am sure the many hundreds of members, a big thank you for your devotion to a job well done.

Request Is Rejected

The Board of Directors of the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County voted at its meeting Jan. 20 to continue its policy of serving only non-profit agencies, and turned down the request of the Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine to become an agency registered with the Bureau.

We are disappointed that we cannot work with the Volunteer Bureau in our local community because of their restrictive policy. They should understand that they are discriminating against the ill and aged, not against the institution.

The trend in the United States is away from these restrictions in favor of encouraging all institutions to meet basic standards set by the Volunteer Bureau for the proper use and supervision of volunteers. The Chicago Volunteer Bureau accepts all agencies which meet its criteria. They sent a volunteer to Plum Grove several years ago and have since invited her to participate in their training program for new recruits.

The American Hospital Association and the American Nursing Home Association endorse the policy of appropriate use of volunteers in all long-term care facilities. The ANHA says in their Volunteer Service Corps Handbook: "A nursing home's structure — proprietary or non-proprietary — has no bearing on a volunteer program. In essence, the nursing home's role is to act as a catalyst for patient-community interaction... which paid personnel, professional or non-professional, categorically cannot provide."

Plum Grove has been providing an organized volunteer program in Palatine for over 10 years, and we will continue to bring the community to our patients through volunteers.

Go-Slow Attitude On Major Purchases Suburbanites Are In Cautious Mood

by DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor

NEW YORK UPI — Prices on petroleum products, from gasoline for the family automobile to oil for industry, are going up. The question is by how much.

This is the conclusion to be drawn after days of so far fruitless haggling between 15 of the world's largest oil companies, mostly American, and 19 of the biggest oil-producing countries, mostly Arabian.

The two sides agreed in negotiations at Tehran, Iran, that the oil producing countries should get more money for their oil. They disagreed on how much. The current posted price on a barrel of light Arabian crude is $1.80.

It has been estimated that the producing countries in 1960 had a 50-50 split on the profits.

"Now," said one New York oil executive, "they're getting 75-80 per cent of the pie."

THE SHAH of Iran suggested that a way out could be found in a formula adopted last Dec. 15 by Venezuela.

The Venezuelans increased, via the legislative route, a tax on its crude oil from 53 to 60 per cent.

It increased Venezuela's share in the profits to 80 per cent, making it the highest paid oil-producing country in the world.

Delegates from other OPEC countries, Iraq, Libya, Venezuela, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Algeria, Indonesia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar endorsed the Shah's suggestion and called for solidarity among the oil-producing countries. The Shah's suggestion came after talks between OPEC countries and oil companies broke down after there had been reports the Arabs might shut down the pipelines.

THE LOSS of Mideast and African oil could produce an energy crisis in Western Europe and Japan which would spread quickly to the United States, industry sources agreed.

"If negotiations broke down and the Arabs stopped their oil, Western Europe and Japan would be out of energy, and maybe out of business as we know it today, in about 60 days," said a ranking oil executive in New York.

"They'd have to go on oil and gas rationing just like wartime, and so probably would we to protect them. We probably could pull it through, but what a mess!"

While the United States gets only 3 per cent of its oil from OPEC, U.S. companies are involved with 60 per cent of the organization's oil. Three million U.S. shareholders in American oil companies and 10 million persons involved in American mutual funds and pension plans would stand to lose money.

VENEZUELA is in a case in point. In mid-December it legislated a tax increase from 52 per cent to 60 per cent, costing Standard New Jersey $50 million dollars or about 23 cents in per share earnings.

Japan would be hit hard since 90 per cent of the $2.3 billion it spent for oil in 1970 involved Middle East wells. A New York oil consultant estimated a 25 per cent boost in posted price would cost Japan about $800 million in balance of trade payments. The cost of fuel for Japanese factories, apartment houses, power plants and cars undoubtedly would go up.

The fuel bill for Western Europe, which gets 75 per cent of its oil from OPEC countries, would jump an estimated $500 million annually. Oil fills three-fifths of the energy needs of the Common Market nations, and the rest of Western Europe has about the same ratio.

Factories, power plants, institutions, apartment houses and shipping would reflect an oil price increase, undoubtedly passing it along to the consumer. It's estimated that Great Britain, where gasoline goes for 74 cents per imperial gallon, would raise the price about 6 per cent.

THE ARABS also would catch it in the pocketbook. Western products such as machinery would cost more.

The present confrontation dates back to September when the Libyan colonels won a 40 cent per barrel increase on the posted price, 30 cents immediately and 10 cents over the next five years. Three factors worked for them: their proven nationalism, their "sweet" nappo-unt crude which is highly desirable to day because of pollution pressures and Libya's closeness to Europe which cuts down transportation costs.

That increase in the posted price to $2.51 per barrel gave the colonels $130 million in new money. Even though Libya is relatively poor, its central bank ranks 10th in world reserves.

That puts Libya in a good bargaining position at Tehran, one reason the oil companies dropped a demand that any agreements be on an OPEC-wide basis. "We knew it was hopeless to push the point at this time," signed one oil spokesman.

LIBYA'S SUCCESS in September spurred the Persian Gulf countries to go after a bigger piece of the action. At a December meeting in Caracas, OPEC countries drew up demands for more money and concessions and invited the companies to discuss them at Tehran.

Feeling whipped by a series of demands, the companies decided to band together in cartel fashion for the first time in years. It's significant that their governments openly or tacitly agreed not to press antitrust action.

That started a war of nerves which has been building ever since.

Industry leaders admit that their own faulty estimates of world energy demands, the Suez Canal closing in 1967 and soaring tanker costs helped bring about the present bind.

Second of two articles
The amount of traffic in Elk Grove Village in the future will depend on the anticipated land uses and the development of a regional highway network.

The $19,000 traffic study completed recently by Bart Aachman Assoc. called these factors critical in determining the traffic volume in 1980.

More than 13 months in the making, the study was done at the request of the village. It was released last week.

FOR THE FUTURE, Elk Grove Village will see more development of both the residential and industrial area with the likelihood of an increase in multiple-family dwellings, the study said.

Population could reach 65,000 to 75,000 by 1985. Trips generated by the village land-uses are expected to triple, from 82,000 in 1969 to 262,000 in 1980, the study said.

Aiding in the handling of traffic will be a regional traffic system to include the I-90 Expressway which will link up with the Lake Street Extension, the Northwest Tollway, and the proposed Elgin O'Hare Expressway which will follow Thorndale Avenue.

The study makes a number of recommendations to handle the long-range traffic needs caused by the increasing traffic that results from intermixing industry with residential areas.

No cost was put on the recommendations, though it is expected to be in the multi-millions.

SOME OF THE recommendations include:

— Full access interchanges at the Northwest Tollway with Elmhurst, Arlington Heights, and Roseville roads.

— Rejection of the extension of Oakton Road through Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

— Realignment of Arlington Heights Road at the Salt Creek Bridge and south of Devon Avenue to provide access with the Elgin O'Hare Expressway at Prospect Avenue in DuPage County.

— Realignment of Meacham Road at Medinah Road, and Nicholas Boulevard at Landmeier Road.

— Discouragement of traffic on Elk Grove Boulevard and Touhy Avenue at Touhy Road and on Biesterfeld Road at Rte. 53.

— Realignment of Higgins Road west of Busse Road to extend south to Brummet Street and then proceed east past Busse Road to link up with the present Higgins Road.

— Extension of Pan-Am Boulevard in DuPage County west to Wood Dale Road, extension of Nicholas Boulevard south to Pan-Am Boulevard; and extension of Lively Boulevard south to the Pan-Am Boulevard extension.

— Extension of Landmeier Road north-east to Elmhurst Road.

— Extension and link-up of Devon Avenue to Wise Road in Schaumburg Township.

— Downgrading of the Elk Grove-Kennedy boulevards from primary arterial to secondary arterial streets.

THE STUDY ALSO recommends that the number of lanes of some roads be increased.

Elmhurst Road should be six lanes, as should Devon Avenue, Meacham and Higgins roads.

Higgins is expected to be widened to at least four lanes this year.

Additional lanes should be added to Plum Grove Road, Arlington Heights Road, Oakton Road, Brummet Street, Landmeier Road, Nerge Road, and Biesterfeld Road.

The study concludes its long-range plans by encouraging efforts to develop an area-wide transit system.

Lockhead Licenses Anocut

Lockhead Missiles & Space Co. announced that it has licensed the Anocut Engineering Co. of Elk Grove Village to design, manufacture and market machines which mold metallic powders into solid parts. The machines will utilize Lockheed-developed systems.

The process, called spark sintering, is a technique of hot pressing. It simultaneously applies low-voltage and high AC-DC currents and compacting pressures to powdered metal in a mold. This produces parts of high density and pure composition.

Anocut, manufactures electro-chemical machining equipment. It is a subsidiary of Brown and Sharpe Manufacturing Co. SPARK SINTERING is particularly applicable to exotic metals, according to Lockheed. Lockheed has used the process to produce beryllium components for one of its missile programs. Several thousand pressings of eight different shapes have been turned out in this time with a reject rate of less than one per cent. Because of low tool costs, the process may offer economic advantages over conventional powder metallurgy methods for small production runs, according to Lockheed.

With conventional methods, an induction or resistance furnace is used to apply heat to the mold. Spark sintering heats the powdered metal directly and evenly by passing high-level currents through the powder mass.

A MORE RECENT and promising application of spark sintering is diffusion bonding, which bonds together parts made of different metals. Also, powders can be bonded on solid parts. These applications lend themselves to producing complex shapes. Simultaneous spark sintered forming and bonding can be used to join bosses or fittings to jet engine casings, Lockheed engineers believe.

Many exotic metals and alloys can be sintered into near-perfect density, although previously they were regarded as difficult and impractical for any powder metallurgy applications.

Examples of materials which have been tested range from tungsten and tungsten carbide through high temperature alloys such as astroloy and Inconel, and on through light weight metals such as titanium, aluminum and beryllium.

Aluminum, generally considered one of the most difficult materials to fabricate by powder metallurgy, has been successfully spark sintered to 100 per cent density by Lockheed.

Anocut engineers are now designing standard production equipment. Discussions with prospective users are already underway.

Personal Finance

by Richard L. Smith

For sheer annoyance, few household chores can hold a candle to the monthly bill-paying drag. Only a compulsive bookkeeper could pretend to enjoy it.

First of all, there's the sight of all those blessed bills, the total of which will probably wipe out your bank balance. Then there are all those checks to write, envelopes to be addressed and stamps to be scrounged.

At the very least it's a bore, and if you're the kind who does his arithmetic on his fingers, the job can eat up the substantial part of an evening.

Unless you have cleverly arranged to be the sole heir of a wealthy uncle, there's not much to be done about the matter of your bank balance. But there is some hope that the day may be nigh when you can be relieved of all those separate checks, envelopes and stamps.

THE ANSWER is the multipurpose check. Here is how it works:

Your bank gives you a set of long forms, quite similar to laundry lists. Each is in duplicate, with a carbon snap-out between the leaves.

Listed on these forms are the names of perhaps 50 or 75 firms and individuals doing business in your area. Merchants, doctors, utilities, hospitals, oil companies and even the man who collects your garbage are all listed in alphabetical order.

Then — when the 10th of the month comes around — this list replaces all the individual checks you used to write.

Beside the name of anyone to whom you owe money, you simply write in the amount. Twelve dollars for Dr. Kronkheit, $31 for Maple Farms Dairy, $19.50 to Sears, Roebuck, and so forth.

When you have filled in the sums for each bill you plan to pay, you slip the form in an envelope and mail it to your bank. The bank deducts the total from your checking account balance and deposits the amounts noted in the accounts of those whom you've listed.

Aside from filling out the list, your only chore is to deduct the total amount from the balance in your checkbook.

A few banks are already experimenting with such a system. Colorado, Missouri, North Carolina and Massachusetts have all had trial plans of one kind or another. Charges run from 10 cents per item paid to $1.50 per month, whatever the usage.

ONE PLAN even allows for personal variations. The laundry list carries a few blank spaces where any customer can fill in the name and amount to be paid to a business enterprise not regularly listed.

One of the factors retarding these plans has been a reluctance on the part of bank customers to make use of the system. If you ever get a chance to use it, take a close look. It will probably cut your check costs in half, and your monthly chore by two-thirds.

Honeywell Presents $4,000 Grant

A grant of $4,000 to ASHRAE to help further its research activities has been made by Honeywell's Commercial division.

The award was made by N. S. Stake, vice president and general manager of Honeywell's Commercial division, to Frank Bridgers, president of ASHRAE (American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning Engineers) at its biennial convention in Philadelphia.

Speaking at an ASHRAE executive luncheon, Stake emphasized the grant was in addition to Honeywell's regular contributions to the Society's research programs.

In making the presentation, Stake called on other elements of the Society to help support ASHRAE's long-range research.

What will be needed in the '70s will be new techniques and technologies based on broad-gage research, Stake said.

STAKE SAID the country is heading into a "generation of unprecedented growth," one that will bring the air-conditioning industry greater opportunity than it has ever had.

Stake predicted buildings of the future will enclose "environmental envelopes" which will include control of air pollution, lighting and noise as well as temperature and humidity.

As head of Honeywell's commercial division, Stake directs a manufacturing and marketing effort in temperature controls, automation systems, and fire and security systems for commercial, industrial and institutional buildings.

Musical Aids Education

Proceeds from "South Pacific," which opened Friday to enthusiastic audiences at St. Viator High School, will provide money for educational innovations at the school next year.

Six more performances of the great Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway musical are scheduled, featuring boys from St. Viator and girls from Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

Money from the show will be used to purchase books, audio-visual equipment and other supplies for use next year when St. Viator steps up individualized instruction and goes to fully flexible modular scheduling, according to Father James Michaels, St. Viator principal.

Last year's musical, "West Side Story," raised $8,000 for other school expenses.

This year's production stars Tom Barclay of Prospect Heights as Emile, the French planter who falls in love with a Navy nurse assigned to a South Sea Isle during World War II.

Nelle, the Navy nurse first made famous by stage star Mary Martin, is played alternately by two Mount Prospect students, Sue Tardy and Sandy Stavropoulos.

A number of other lead roles in the musical also will see two students alternate. The role-sharing, school officials say, gives more students a chance for on-stage experience and eases the time demands during a three-week run.

LEAD PLAYERS in the musical will also include Mark Francis, Arlington Heights, as Barclay's understudy; Greg Ziomek, Arlington Heights, as Lt. Cable; Eileen Gorman of Arlington Heights and Mari Miller of Mount Prospect as Bloody Mary; Tom Hoeg of Mount Prospect and Frank Del Giudice of Rolling Meadows as Luther Billis.

Other lead roles have gone to Kathy Hume of Arlington Heights and Pamela Zander of Palatine as Ngana; Tim Sullivan of Palatine and Clyde Mundt of Mount Prospect as Jerome; Carl Forsberg of Arlington Heights as Henry; Kevin Bohr of Arlington Heights as Capt. Brackett; Henry Rogers of Mount Prospect as the Navy commander, and Ramona Delio of Prospect Heights as Bloody Mary's assistant.

Additional "South Pacific" performances are set for Feb. 12, 13, 14, 20 and 21 at 8:30 p.m., plus a 2 p.m. matinee on Feb. 14.

Tickets can be reserved by calling the St. Viator office, 332-4050, weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

opens for eight performances tonight in the school auditorium. The show will provide money for books, audio-visual equipment and other supplies. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. for evening shows.

Boasts Six Champs In Impressive Win

Hersey Captures League Wrestling Title

by JIM COOK

Judging from its immediate overall success, the initial Mid Suburban League Conference Wrestling Meet has laid a foundation from which a skyscraper will be constructed.

Interested crowds flooded the bleachers in Prospect's fieldhouse over the weekend to witness the lopsided domination by Hersey matmen. Even if the spectacle is only two days old, and the cement is still wet, what the Huskies accomplished in the tri-season feature may go unchallenged for years to come.

The Brown, Orange and White of head coach Tom Porter justified their 9-0 dual-meet league record by ruling the mats with six of a possible 12 class champions.

By accumulating 91 points, Hersey easily outdistanced runnerup Arlington (62) and budding Glenbard North (48). The host Knights paced a closely-bunched quartet that followed with 28 points. Fremd (26), Palatine (23) and Elk Grove (22) were all involved in a photo finish for fourth.

Wheeling settled eighth spot in the results with 22 points while Conant earned 19 and Forest View 15. The conference meet placement, combined with standings from the dual season, eased each team into its final 1971 position.

50 POUNDS

To nobody's surprise, Arlington's Frank Dal Campo was first to garner a gold medal. The division's top seed completed an undefeated league season by shading Wheeling's Mike Beard in the finals, 2-0.

Conant's Al Gordon landed the third place consolation trophy by virtue of a 3-2 victory over Dave Motta of Fremd. Dal Campo's parade to the winner's circle included an opening 7-2 decision over Prospect's Steve Brice, and a 4-0 blanking of Motta before the finale.

105 POUNDS

This class resembled 50 pounds in that the number one seeded wrestler went on to claim the blue ribbon. Glenbard North's Ed Chavez was the recipient after out-pointing Cougar John Beck, 4-3, in the championship.

Chavez eliminated Grenadier Dale Pankov, 4-1, and Card Jeff Whittemell, 5-1, en route to honors. Viking Len McGuinn, although beaten by Beck in the semis, came back for third in a 2-0 shut-out over Whittemell in the consolation.

112 POUNDS

In only one of two upsets in the final round, Hersey found glory in third-seeded Don Robinson, a competitor of only two matches during the dual season.

Robinson claimed his fame by upsetting second-ranked Ron Cherwin of Prospect in the semifinals, 4-3, before ousting Fremd's number one-rated Jeff Alvis, 5-3, in the championship.

Cardinal Tom Dal Campo trounced Cherwin in the consolation match, 9-0, but the Huskies had broken the ice and the parade was on.

119 POUNDS

Jim Battaglia followed in his teammate's footsteps at 119 by edging the division's third seed in Grenadier Ken Siebold, 3-2 for the trophy.

Prospect's number two-seeded Les Verde, after getting upset by Siebold in the semifinals, came back to nail down the third place award with a 5-0 blanking of Glenbard's Bill Genske.

126 POUNDS

Hersey captain Brad Smith made it three straight for the victors by becoming the meet's third undefeated, untied champion. The class' top seed, Smith buried Conant's Steve Lawson, 10-3, pinned Mark Hynemann of Forest View in 3:35 and then whipped Knight John Layer, 4-2, for all the marbles.

Hynemann rebounded in the consolation for a 5-0 trouncing of Wildcat Kent Lewis.

133 POUNDS

Bob Wilson of Arlington didn't alter the script much in this category. Upholding his reputation as a number one seed, Wilson's path to the top spot included a 5-3 decision over Jim Catanzaro of Hersey, a 6-0 shutout of Dennis Byrne of Elk Grove and an 11-3 romp over Wheeling's Ed Idrisovic.

Pirate Jim Bambrick earned the third spot by whipping Byrne in the consolation, 6-2.

138 POUNDS

Perfection entered the picture again as Card Pete Anderson completed a 12-0 league campaign at the end of his gold medal performance.

The thrilling championship, with Hersey's Jim Adornetto supplying the opposition, came via the narrow margin of 1-0. Falcon Mark Bove, an upset victim as the division's second seed, plowed his way to a 10-3 consolation trophy over Grenadier Paul Morris.

145 POUNDS

In one of the few surprises of the evening, the top-seeded wrestler did not win the championship. Fremd's Tim Tuerk, who earned the top spot with an unblemished 9-0 slate, suffered his first league setback to Hersey's Kevin Immel, 5-4, in the semi. Immel, the class' fourth seed, went on to gain the blue ribbon by conquering Palatine's Jeff Frost, 9-4. Tuerk finished third by whipping Card Jeff Seileck, 3-1.

After the two-class string by Arlington at 132 and 138, Hersey revisited the throne in the person of Tad Deluca. The top-seeded grappler didn't leave much doubt while running up a pin in the quarterfinals, an 8-2 win in the semis and the championship by a 4-2 count.

Knight Scott Szala emerged in third place behind Palatine's Mike Caldwell in the consolation match. Scott Douglas, a seven-time winner for Arlington during the regular league season, had to abandon his second seed position because of either illness or injury.

155 POUNDS

Glenbard landed it second of three outstanding wrestlers in the front spot in Steve Horan. In the only championship match that was decided by a pin, Horan finished off Fremd's Rick Salinas in 3:21 after the latter had worked his way to the finals via two pins, himself.

Knight Mickey Gebert came on to edge Arlington's Mark Chidley in the consolation match, 5-3.

167 POUNDS

Unbeaten Huskie Pat Teehey had a few trying moments before gaining the crown at 167. Elk Grove's Bob Webb battled Teehey to a 2-2 standoff through an overtime in the championship, only to lose on a referee's decision.

Webb, who upset the division's second seeded Jim Walsh of Palatine, finished ahead of Prospect's Rich Brower, a 4-0 victor in the consolation.

185 POUNDS

Glenbard served notice again with Jim Butties fighting his way to the team's third championship. Butties, an undefeated dual-meet candidate, emerged with a 3-1 triumph over Cardinal Pete Harth in the championship. Half of Butties' 12 victories during the year, came via pins.

Huskie Bob Verduynde landed third by virtue of a 3-2 victory over Elk Grove's Bob Gleff in the consolation.

HEAVYWEIGHT

In one of the few surprises of the evening, the top-seeded wrestler did not win the championship. Fremd's Tim Tuerk, who earned the top spot with an unblemished 9-0 slate, suffered his first league setback to Hersey's Kevin Immel, 5-4, in the semi. Immel, the class' fourth seed, went on to gain the blue ribbon by conquering Palatine's Jeff Frost, 9-4. Tuerk finished third by whipping Card Jeff Seileck, 3-1.

HARDWOOD HEROICS. Wheeling's 6-11 center Roger Wood snags a rebound while Hersey pivotman Andy Paneratz watches from beneath. Big Rog, who was limited to only 12 pointers last time the two clubs met, poured in 25 at the Huskie gym Friday to pace a 56-54 Wildcat upset. (Photo by Bob Finch)

19-Year-Old Hits 703

Keith Clark chalked up a goal that is every amateur bowler's dream — a 700 series.

Clark, 19, of Buffalo Grove came up with a 703 series last week in the Wednesday Night Industrial League at the Rose Bowl in Buffalo Grove. Not bad for a 179 average bowler.

He needed a double in the 10th frame of his final game to crack the 700 mark. He did just that. Clark opened with a 213 game, followed that with a 255 including six straight strikes and then a 235 finale.

He also bowls in the Buffalo Grove Men's League on Mondays.

Bears Back In Town

The Chicago Bears basketball team, winners over Hersey's faculty last week, will try to make it two in a row Wednesday night at Forest View High School.

The Forest View faculty team thinks otherwise.

The game, which will begin at 8 p.m., will be played to raise funds for the school. Donation will be $2.

Ned In Hall Of Fame

Raymond (Ned) Wickersham of Palatine, a star with the Aurora Sealmasters from 1964 to 1966, was elected to the Softball Hall of Fame in Tucson, Ariz., over the weekend at the convention of the Amateur Softball Associations.

Dieters Sets Mile Mark

Dave Dieters, more noted for his work in the 300 yard run at Arlington High School, set a McGraw Hill record Saturday in the mile run as his Michigan State team lost to Northwestern, 70-57. Dieters, also a cross country star at Arlington, ran 4:12.3, breaking the mark of 4:15.5 set by Craig Beydston of Northwestern in 1965.

He's Still Adding

Sam Rice, a Baseball Hall of Famer, commenting on Frank Howard's reported bid for a $100,000 salary for the 1971 season: "I started adding up my major league salaries in bed the other night, finally fell asleep about 5 a.m., and never did reach $100,000."

RIDING TIME. Hersey's Brad Smith took command of just one of six individual Huskies to parade to class the 126-pound division by turning back host Prospect's John Layer in the championship bout, 4-2. Smith was honored in the first Mid Suburban League Wrestling Meet. (Photo by Dan Coka)

'It Was Beautiful' Says Coach

Dazzling Wheeling Show

KEITH REINHARD

One good turn deserves another.

Wheeling must have been nourishing such a thought ever since the middle of last month when Hersey came up with one of the most impressive weekends in Mid-Suburban league cage annals — dumping first the Wildcats and then Arlington on successive nights.

This past weekend it was time for the 'Cats to strut. Coming off a breathless win over Hersey just 24 hours earlier, Wheeling capped their back-to-back bonanza by dealing a stunning 73-64 setback to the visiting Cardinals Saturday night.

It was coach Ted Ecker's first victory over the varsity Cards. It was also Wheeling's first win over Arlington since 1965.

"It was beautiful," sighed Ecker after the Saturday verdict had upped his team's win skain to five and allowed them to remain right in the thick of the torrid North Division race. "There's no way the kids could have responded any better than they did."

The Wildcats had gone into the weekend deadlocked with Arlington two games behind front running Hersey after having lost to both teams once this season, including a discouraging 41-35 setback at Arlington. Wheeling had also lost four in a row to Arlington and three in succession to the Huskies over the past several seasons.

Roger Wood helped change all that. The towering junior pumped in 21 points over the two games and turned in what was probably his finest effort to date Saturday, teaming with Mike Groat to supply most of the offensive punch and contributing 21 rebounds and nine blocked shots to Arlington's demise.

"He was something, wasn't he?" exulted the coach. "He's really coming on strong now at both ends of the court and I think he and his teammates are going to have to be reckoned with from here on in."

Wood, Groat and Arlington's all-state candidate John Brennan supplied plenty of fireworks most of the evening. Brennan zapped in long jumpers at an uncanny 80 per cent tempo during the first half and finished with 22 while Groat swept

Knights Hold Edge In South Division

by PAUL LOGAN

Saturday afternoon basketball games are pretty popular in the Big Ten Conference but not in the Mid-Suburban League. In fact, they're almost non-existent. Almost.

Just such a game had to be played at Forest View because of several scheduling conflicts. It turned out to be a break for the Prospect Knights and a blow for the Falcons.

Forest View, tired out by a heart-breaking 80-61 loss to Elk Grove the night before, was back on the court less than 18 hours later. What made it even worse was that the Knights, the best team in the South Division, hadn't played since Tuesday.

Maybe the Knights were too well rested in the first half or took the Falcons — victims of Prospect the first time, 97-68 — a little too lightly. At the intermission they found themselves outplayed by the hosts and losing, 43-26.

The Knights proved they weren't quitters in the second half, however, as their three guard attack — Jeff Badelick, Casey Rush and Rick Robertshaw — hustled them back into the half game.

Prospect's speed took its toll in the fourth quarter as foul plagued, exhausted

Forest View finally gave in, 81-70.

Coach Bill Slayton's division leaders, now 2-2 in the MSL, rang up nine straight points in the opening minutes of the third quarter that went unanswered. Kaying the rally were three steals by the Knights' trio of guard terror. The last interception by Badelick put him at the foul line where he sank the tying and go-ahead points, 45-44.

George Bauer, who played consistently well the entire game, made the first points for Forest View after the long cold spell. Keeping the Knights close was the outside shooting of both Badelick and Robertshaw.

Ed Banskfield, the Falcons' hunting guard, tied the game for the last time at 51-41. Shortly after that he fouled out and the fast breaking Knights began to take charge.

Dave Lundstedt blocked a Bauer shot and the Knights brought it down court and, after three tries, scored a basket by Terry Rohan that put them in front for good, 53-51.

Forest View now 2-4, didn't score until the buzzer when Bob Kasper, filling in for Banskfield, tossed a line drive through the basket from midcourt. But that only made it 59-53 in Prospect's favor.

Coach Ken Arneson's Falcons tried several times to come back in the final quarter, but their strength was lacking when compared to the seemingly fresh Knights.

A pass from Kasper to Bill Campbell cut the lead to five, 71-66, but that's all the closer the Knights would allow them to come. With the Robertshaw-Rush-Badelick combination going full tilt, the Knights built their lead to the biggest of the night at the end of the game.

MAT MUSCLE. Wheeling's Mike Beard isn't about to let his headgear interfere with the task at hand. Arlington's Frank Del Campo managed to escape Mike's clutches to roll to the 98-pound class championship. The Cards finished second in the meet to Hersey while Wheeling finished eighth. ## — Wheeling Wins Again off with game scoring honors at 23. The bucket productions of the Wildcats proved to be more persistent though.

After John had hooked up with mates Mike Mandele and Mike Cleveland to boost the guests into a 14-12 advantage in the first quarter, the 'Cats reared back on Wood's 10-foot turnaround jumper and three straight inside shots by Al Syfert to take a 21-15 command by the end of the period.

Broadman stayed hot through the second stanza and he and Cleveland were instrumental in keeping their team in range through halftime. At the intermission the score favored the hosts 43-34.

After that it was a different story. With Jay Rusek guarding him like a Brinks truck, aided by Tony Schaud, Broadman was shut out through period three and finally had to go inside to get his last two buckets in the fourth quarter on rebounds.

In the meantime Wheeling broke loose on a binge beginning at 3:37 of the third period and the visitors never fully recovered. It was a 49-41 ballgame at the time until Wood struck first on the inside, and then hit again via a high pass in from Syfert.

A little later Groot swished a 15 footer from the corner and still later Groot tallied again on a pass from Schaud off the fast break to enlarge the 'Cat margin to 58-41.

Arlington narrowed the span to ten early in the fourth quarter but were matched, basket for basket, the rest of the way. And at the end Mike and Rog were still going strong, Rog thwarting a Broadman shot, and Groot engineering a steal and dancing full court for the layup to windup the contest.

Test Ecker

Hersey pulled off their caper last month on the road in both cases. Wheeling came home to top off their sweep but Ecker still felt his team had performed the greater feat.

"They had the momentum at the time. We came off a terrible game against Conant last week so I think our challenge may have been a little greater."

What Ecker didn't point out is that the Wildcats performed their task practically without a bench. Wood, Groot and Schaud, all went eight full quarters without being spelled once over the weekend and Syfert, Dave Gells and Rusek filled in the other two slots the whole way.

"We've got our bench back now though. Two key kids we've had figured in our plans from the beginning of the season are fully recovered from injuries."

"In knocking off their fellow powers in the North, Wheeling may have set the stage for an interesting MSL finish at any rate. Hersey still has the 1-4 teams from the South to play while the 'Cats have disposed of both of them."

Iron And Defense Sparkle For Conant

by MARV PRELLBERG

This was the weekend for Coach Dick Redinger's Conant varsity cagers to make its move to sew up the second place position in the South Division MSL.

The Cougars 4-4 league record was good enough for a tie with Glenbard North entering into the two game weekend activity, and its Friday night assignment was against the Glenbard five.

A victory over the Panthers in the Fri-ter the 22 minutes of cage action, Redinger's crew had successfully carried out phase one of this projected plan. The Cougars belted Glenbard 52-45.

The key to the Conant victory appeared to be its tough zone defense and a stellar performance by its ace, Dave Iron.

Glenbard North found it extremely difficult to move the ball into its big three of Bill Wright, George Sodini, and Tom Wihucki all evening. The Cougars zone defenders were quite effective in not allowing either of the big three to get much in the way of good position on the inside of the zone, and its guards were quick to stifle the outside shooting efforts of the home squad.

Put this defensive setup in with the all day encounter and a win the ensuing evening against a struggling Elk Grove quintet was projected to give Conant a two game bulge over its nearest rival for the second spot.

Glenbard North had to take on high flying Hersey high in its Saturday night tussle, and Hersey was an odds on favorite.

That was the picture when Conant took to the Glenbard hardwood court for its Friday night battle with the Panthers. When the smoke finally cleared away at around performance of Iron, and you have the recipe for the Cougar win. It was a triumph which brought a measure of revenge for an earlier three point defeat suffered at the hands of these same Glenbarders.

Iron scored 20 points and was a potent rebounder in this winning effort, but the glow was really on this led in the important third quarter rally by the Cougar five.

Shortly after the second half commenced, Iron pepped in a basket to tie the score at 27-27. He followed this up with a three point play and two more field goals, and Conant was suddenly holding a 32-27 lead.

Iron tallied twice more from the field during the quarter to boost his third period production to 12 points, and the Cougars took a 41-35 lead into the final quarter.

Glenbard North kept struggling away against the tough Conant zone defense but could not narrow the deficit down to a figure closer than three points. With just under two minutes left in the game Conant went into a deliberate stall offense.

This led to numerous Glenbard fouls in attempting to get ball possession, and the Cougar free-throws responded in good fashion from the charity stripe. Mark Hay's bucket at the buzzer for the hosts brought little joy for the home team crowd, as Conant had wrapped up this important second place battle.

A consolation prize went to Wright of Glenbard, who by virtue of his 15 points moved into the second position in the all time MSL scoring totals.

Wild Finish! 'Cats Clip Hersey

by KEVIN KENNEDY
Two passes and two shots in less than five seconds.
Hersey said it was impossible.
Wheeling had another version.
The debate may never be settled. Long before the lights had been dimmed in the Huskie gym Friday night the verdict had already gone into the log book — a rocking 50-44 come-from-behind victory by the Wildcats that kept a great big blatant as Hersey's undefeated league title aspirations.

Dave Gells was man of the hour, slipping in a rebound shot (a) after the buzzer but before the gun, (b) before both, or (c) after both the buzzer had sounded and the gun had blasted off.
How it occurred mattered little to Ted Ecker's canted crew. The ref, in any event, trotted over toward the scorer's table and motioned the fingers down atter Gells' had taken Jay Rusk's stray shot and put it back in.

And while a flock of stunned Hersey cagers stood motionless at one end of the floor, the visitors leaped off toward the dressing room with their first triumph over the Huskies in four tries and the league's first victory over Roger Steingraber's band this winter.
"The kids got tapped," a dejected Steingraber offered of his troops afterwards. "The referee most definitely should have gone to the timer for a decision."

The official scorer, from the best school, admitted that the gun might have been slow in going off. There's a chance had it been a gunfight at the OK cereal instead of basketball game, the trigger-man might not have been around for the great debate.
But Steingraber added, "I was astonished. When that first shot missed I automatically concluded that there would be an overtime. There just weren't enough seconds to get in as much play as Wheeling did."

Ecker's story took a different slant, of course. "I had Paul (Grady, Wheeling's jayvee coach) check at the officials table over which would be final, the buzzer or the gun. He was told the gun and from where I was sitting Gells had it beat."
Gells' bucket in any case allowed the 'Cats their only lead of the halftime. The guests trailed through the first three periods and except for one tie early in the fourth stanza, were still behind as the game moved down to its frantic finish.

With 2:46 to go Roger Wood hit from underneath to forge a 33-32 deadlock but Huskie Mark Leonard, on his fifth trip to the free throw line during the fourth quarter, bagged a pair of charity teases to put the hosts on top again at 3:37.

That slim lead held up until 1:41. With in a two second span on the clock first Tony Schuld of the visitors was fouled by Bruce Frase and missed the 1-1; then Phil Benedict of the home team was fouled by Al Syfert and missed the 1-1; and then Mike Groot of Wheeling was fouled by Benedict and plunked in a pair to deadlock things at 54-54.

For a minute and forty seconds then, or perhaps a second longer, that score held up. Hersey came down and set up but a pass by Andy Pancratz was deflected by Wood over to Wheeling.

The visitors came back and set up but a pass in to Wood went awry and Frase gathered it in. Moments later a skirmish developed under the Huskie net, and with the crowd thundering Pancratz popped in a rebound shot.

When the applause thinned, however, the official whistled no basket and cited Big Andy for a foul. It was his fifth and a cheer from the other side went up as he stalked to the sidelines.

After a time out Syfert, the league's top free throw shooter prior to Friday, stepped up to the line and missed his sixth straight attempt. The hosts snared the rebound and elected to wait out the 48 seconds then remaining for one final shot.

That shot went off with less than ten seconds to go. Leonard came down near the base line and launched a ten footer that bounced off the rim into Wheeling's control. Again there was chaos. Hersey had signaled for a timeout before the shot and regained control of the ball from out of bounds with seven seconds to go.

If Gells was the man of the hour, Groot was the man of the second. He intercepted Leonard's toss in and completely changed the complexion of the game. Again there was a timeout. Wheeling had the ball at the opposite end of the court and there were four seconds left on the clock.

Perhaps 3,500 people had jammed the Huskie gym Friday night and there might be nearly that many versions of these final four seconds. Groot hit Schuld with a nice pass on the run and Schuld flicked to Rusk and Jay shot from the side about ten feet out. Then (a), (b), (c), take your pick.

The clincher by Gells capped a comeback that had Wheeling scrapping from a 12-3 deficit at the opening of the game. With Big Hog leading the way, the 'Cats closed the gap to three by halftime and stayed on Hersey's heels the rest of the way.

"The difference in the two games (with Hersey) is that we got the ball to Wood this time," Ecker noted afterwards. "Gells gave us a great performance too and Mike (Groot) was tough even if it wasn't one of his best offensive nights."

Groot finished with 14 and Wood with 25. Leonard and John Tilhou paced the hosts with 17 and 16 respectively while Big Andy added ten.

Charged-Up Grove Tips Falcons, 53-51

by PAUL LOGAN
It was "Jam the Gym Night" at Elk Grove as the student body came to back the Grenadiers, losers of nine in a row.

A 15-footer from the baseline by sophomore Bob Prince in the last seconds of the game turned the special occasion into "Jam the Floor Night."

Prince's clutch swisher with eight seconds left was never answered as time ran out on the Falcons of Forest View, 53-51, Friday night.

"That's the first time we've had that much excitement in four years," said one observer of the bottom that broke out at the buzzer. Besides the long shot streak which found the Grove winners in the Mid-Suburban League, no Green and Gold varsity team had ever beaten Forest View.

"That's the first win in seven games with Forest View," said Parmentier in the locker room. "This was why we were so charged up tonight."

The first half was a fairly dull affair with the two teams tied at the quarter, 10-10, and the Grove holding a two-point lead at intermission, 20-17.

The second 16 minutes was as spirited as any state tournament game. A couple of minor fights revved up the teams and the crowd so much that both the buzzer and the officials' whistles were hardly audible.

After the Grenadiers took a four-point lead, 34-30, the Falcons tied it on a field goal by George Bauer and his free throw on the three-point play put them into the lead.

With Bauer, Rick Hoyt, Ed Banskfield and Jay Hodges firing away the last three minutes of the quarter, the Falcons took a 47-41 advantage into the final period.

The Grove came back, however, as Forest View missed its first nine shots.

BOB PRINCE

While that was happening, Mark Hopkins hit three free throws and a 15-footer to pull his team within one, 47-46.

Bauer finally put in the first Falcon field goal at 4:29 to make it 49-46. Then the next two minutes neither team could do anything except turn the ball over.

Then Banskfield followed his own shot and the Falcons were in the lead, 51-46, with just a little over two minutes left. Forest View looked like a cinch winner but it was the last basket of the game for Arneson's team.

Hopkins hit a free throw and Prince scored on a 15-footer to bring the Grenadiers to within two, 51-49. Seconds later he stole the ball and, despite being guarded by three Falcons, managed to lay one in to tie the game at 51-51.

Forest View tried to throw the ball up court and it went out of bounds for the third straight turnover forced by the Grove defense.

Then came two impossible moments for the coaches. First the Grove, after setting up a play, threw the ball away. Then the Falcons, after calling a time out, saw their 6-5 sophomore Don Wood-small fouled. The youngster was short with his attempt and Keith Chupeik rebounded the ball.

Chupeik brought the ball the length of the court but couldn't find Hopkins open. He took a baseline shot himself but it misfired and landed in Prince's hands. The rest is history.

"No question," said Parmentier, "that Prince picked us up in the fourth quarter (with three clutch baskets). But it was a team effort. Everybody did the job on defense."

"We were playing a matching zone — that was the difference. We were showing a zone and playing according to the position of the ball. I thought both teams played a tremendous defensive game." Arneson, who met with Parmentier afterwards, made this comment, "I said the only way we'd lose it was to give it to them, and we did."

"And then we'd give it right back to them," chimed a chuckling Parmentier. Then Parmentier went into the Grenadier dressing room.

"You did a helluva good job, boys," he said as they presented him with a high priced cigar. "You think they didn't want that one much?" he said waving the burnable trophy. "We'll bring the people back because we're exciting."

Hopkins and Bauer shared high game honors with 19 points each. The only other double figure player was Prince with 12.

The two teams were pretty even on the boards with Forest View having the edge in field goals made, 22-18. However, the Grove made up for that deficiency on the foul line, 17 of 25 compared to Forest View's seven of 14.

Both coaches were disgusted with the officiating, but that's another story.

Hawks Eye 3rd Straight Tonight

Halftime scores: Harper 50, McHenry 35.

College tonight — win three games in a row.

The Hawks, receiving offensive help from Bob Bachus again, rolled up a 47-30 halftime bulge on hosting McHenry Thursday night and then coasted to an 82-73 victory, as fourth in 16 starts. It was their first Skyway Conference win this season.

Bachus, who was instrumental in the Hawks' 102-96 win earlier last week, cracked the 30-point barrier again this time with exactly 20. He hit on nine of 12 from the field in a game that saw Harper have strong balance.

"Actually what has happened is that Bob has learned a couple of moves under the basket," said Coach John Golch. "He's more comfortable now. He's going to be the backboard now which he wasn't doing earlier in the year."

Another Hawk who is hitting the boards with more authority now is Scott Sibbernson, the only real veteran letterman. Besides his 16 points — all field goals — Sibbernson pulled down an incredible 25 rebounds to easily lead both teams.

Sibbernson helped the Hawks to win the board battle 47-30. Right behind Scott was Bachus with 11.

Kevin Bartholme, Harper's leading scorer, found the range again to lead both teams with 20 points. Other Hawk scorers were Jeff Boyer (12), Frank Schultz (8) and Bob Brown (1).

The first seven minutes was a quiet close contest before Harper pulled away for good. With the score 16-0 in favor of McHenry, Bartholme poured in three straight bombs from the corner and Schultz also connected on a long one. McHenry answered with just one basket and it was 17-15, Harper.

Then the Hawks out-scored their hosts 9-0 to, for all practical purposes, put the game in the win column. The largest lead they enjoyed in the first half was 43-25 after a rebound shot by Bachus.

The second half of the game which was played at the Crystal Lake High School gym saw Bachus and Sibbernson hitting each other with sharp passes and clearing the boards with great consistency. Had the Hawks hit better than 10 of 24 from the foul line (including several missed one-and-ones), the final score would have been much greater.

Harper will be trying to pay back Triton for its narrow victory earlier in the season, 73-71. Since that tough loss the Hawks have jelled and have had a record of 4-3, all three setbacks coming at the hands of the best in the SC.

The Hawks' recent victory puts them in a tie with McHenry with 30 marks of 1-4. If the Hawks defeat Triton, they'll be the first team in the program's three-year history to do so.

Lion Turnovers Costly In Loss

by DWIGHT EBAU

You remember that old Irish saying "his a great day f'de Irish," heard frequently on St. Patrick's Day.

Well, St. Victor's basketball Lions probably wish that old piece of sentiment had never been uttered.

These talented Shamrocks, who really come to play, again made the frustrated Lions, play second fiddle Friday night. The Pats sang their song, and celebrated their "day" about six weeks early, with a resounding 74-40 drubbing of the Lions in the Pats' gym.

Thus the Shamrock express rolled on toward a west section title in the Suburban Catholic League. Only a remaining game with defending champion Notre Dame stands in the way of St. Patrick carrying the momentum of a championship into the March regionals.

The Lions' league record sank to 4-7. But at least they won't have to face these tough Shamrocks again this year, unless both teams make it to the sectional finals in March.

There were few highlights in Friday's game. St. Patrick, now 18-4 on the season and one of the top-rated teams in the Chicago area, just had too much defense, savvy, firepower, and speed for the Lions.

Lion Coach Ed Wasielewski acknowledged all this but said mistakes hurt his team the most. "We had 24 turnovers to their 15, and with them hitting, that was too much."

The Lions didn't play too badly themselves, which probably is the best way to describe how efficient this Pat crew is. At least St. Victor played well enough until they actually got off the good shot they so painstakingly set up. Then that Irish luck, or Shamrock curse, whatever you wish to call it, took over. Time and time again, Lions missed layups or easy close-in shots at crucial moments which killed off budding rallies or let the Shamrocks widen a lead.

Fast breaks were a study in contrasts. Lion breaks usually consisted of badly thrown lob passes or Mike Potemuzko dribbling in alone with Shamrocks hanging all over him. St. Patrick players, on the other hand, cooperated with one another beautifully to get easy baskets.

Once in the third quarter, for example, Mike Potemuzko stole the ball, dribbled the length of the court, went up for the shot, missed it, and Frank Kohn pulled down the ball for the Shamrocks. He flipped it instantly to Tom Staniec, who got it up to Mike Wilson as the Shamrocks attacked the basket like hungry sharks surrounding a wounded fish.

Wilson flipped the ball behind his back, at Bob Cousy, to Staniec, who laid it in around Steve Yellin.

That kind of expertise the Lions didn't have this evening.

And the Shamrock's some press didn't help either. In fact, it forced most of the Lion turnovers, which the gleeful Pats invariably converted into baskets.

After a 14-13 first quarter, Pat guards Tim Lorenz and Pete Schmitt started driving effectively through the Lion zone for easy close-in shots. Lorenz was a one-man show in this session with six baskets as the Pats opened up a 35-25 half-time lead.

In the second half Wasielewski had Potemuzko do some driving of his own to try to draw fouls or get more close-in shots. "It didn't work, however, because we picked up five quick fouls ourselves and we just couldn't catch up," the coach said.

Potemuzko didn't have one of his big nights, although his 20 points led the Lions. He got only five baskets, and he got no consistent scoring help from his mates. Joe Trawinski scored 13, but had only four free throws in the second half.

On field goals alone, the game was a rout. The Pats had 32 fielders to the Lions' 17. Only by hitting 26 of 31 free throws could the Lions keep the score reasonable.

Perhaps the Lions can invent a winning time of their own as they travel to Carmel of Mundelein Friday in the final game of the regular season. They go to Springfield for an exhibition game Saturday. Then it's the Suburban Catholic loop playoffs Feb. 19-20.

At Rose Bowl

The first-place Swingers now have a seven-point lead over the runners-up, Team No. 15, in the Cambridge Quartette bowling league at Rose Bowl, with third place held by the Ups and Downs. . . Yet it was the Alley Cats who won the recent Paddock Publications women's tournament trophy. . . There were four 500 series and a pair of 200 games recorded in recent action. . . High series were a 587 by Glenna Ledenbach, 546 by Connie Draves, 545 by Grace Brown, and 521 by sub Jeannine Thies. . . Best games were Josie Pitzer's 215, Sue Klein's 204 and Sue Peterson's 197.

At Beverly Lanes

In the Elks Ladies Auxiliary league the tight battle for second continues with the Pirates leading a commanding lead of 11 points. . . 200 games with handicap: Peg Holmes 233; Marilyn Roy 212; Lillian Byhring 209; Alice Clark 207; Betty Hennessy 204; Isabel Gibson 204; Jane Warncke 202; and two subs, Ginny Lietz 216 and Marge Kaveny 290.

Card Gymnasts Nip Grove

When you're number one in the conference, you have to expect your opponents to give their best each time out.

That's exactly what Elk Grove gave Arlington despite still coming up on the short end of a 126.8 to 133.94 gymnastics final.

The Grenadier ring team became the first team in the state to topple the 25-point mark in the single event off the superb performances of Jim Malmehdal (8.85), Landy Fernandez (8.45) and Joe Guastadiegni (7.75).

Elk Grove's heroes, though, couldn't rattle Arlington enough for an upset, but there were some anxious moments, to be sure.

The Cardinals got individual winners from Craig Combs (8.25) in free exercise, Larry Bossung (8.2) on the side horse and Joe Tenko (8.75) on the high bar, but the Grove responded with their

Conant Tops Grove For Weekend Sweep

by GREG SHEVELL

More often than not, when a team loses, partial blame is put on the referees.

However, in Saturday night's dual, which found the Elk Grove squad invading the Conant den, this so-called excuse was certainly not the case. And credit should be given where due.

Even Elk Grove's head coach Bill Parmenier will agree to that. "We beat ourselves, these refs were the best we've had in 16 games," he remarked in a very sportsmanlike manner, after his team had just dropped a 70-57 decision to the hosting Conant team.

There was no doubt in anyone's mind as to which individuals were the key to Conant's convincing win. Seniors Dave Irlan and John Macdonald played like the seasoned veterans they are, as they took charge of the Cougar victory.

Irlan alone collected 20 of Conant's points (game high) and also pulled down 14 rebounds, also the game high.

At first it looked like both teams were trying to see who could give the ball away without getting a shot off as both teams committed numerous turnovers in the first few minutes.

Both teams then settled down considerably and played neck and neck the remainder of the quarter.

Bruce Newman started the Cougar scoring at 6:50 with a three foot jumper to put Conant up 3-0.

Sophomore Bob Prince led the Elk Grove attack in the first quarter as he tallied for 8 of the Grove's 11 points.

The first quarter ended as it started with neither team having the advantage as both teams racked up 11 on the scoreboard.

The first minute and a half of the second frame was all Conant, as forward Chet Podlosky tipped a rebound in and cached in on a big three point play for the Cougars.

After an Iron basket the Grove quintet scored twice on baskets by Mark Hopkins and Steve Scholten to bring the score to 10-15 with 3:35 left in the half.

The Grove managed to knot the score at 19 on a pair of free throws by Randy Stenberg.

Conant, however, wasn't waffled with the tie as they scored twice on a 25 foot shot by John Macdonald and a layup by Irlan before intermission.

The double-header weekend for Elk Grove must have caught up with them at half time, as Conant scored five straight points to up their lead to nine.

It took the Grens 2:00 before they could even get back on the scoreboard with a three point play by the Grove's leading scorer for the night Dave Chernick.

But again Elk Grove but a cold streak and the Cougars took advantage by increasing their lead to 12 po nts, 34-22.

The margin Conant was enjoying was maintained throughout the remainder of the quarter as the teams exchanged baskets.

For Elk Grove it was mainly Dave Chernick leading the attack.

Conant's scoring was done by everyone but the manager as each of the quintet hit for a basket.

A 13 foot jumper at the buzzer by Elk Grove reserve Steve Scholten brought the quarter to an end with Conant up 47-36.

The fourth quarter was one Conant official will remember for a while.

After Bob Prince and Dave Irlan traded baskets a strange thing happened.

A Hoffman Estates photographer was on the sidelines. When the play came under the basket where the photographer was located, the referee asked the man to move or the home team, Conant, would receive a technical foul. His reply? "I don't care." So sure enough Conant was charged with a technical foul.

Had the balance of the game rested on this call, the roof on the Cougars' den may be missing right now. However, Conant was enjoying an 11 point lead and the one point didn't seem to bother them.

In fact, the call seemed to spark the Cougars as they reeled off 16 points to Elk Grove's five to put the game on ice.

With a lead of 16 points at the 2:30 mark of the fourth quarter the Cougars coach Dick Redinger brought the sub in to finish the game.

The Cougars hit at a sharp 47% clip from the field as Elk Grove managed a 37% mark.

Lori Forsyth and Grace Lisching both received achievement patches for converting the 5-7 split.

Knight Depth Key In Victory

Despite the fact that Fremd rode the gymnastics gold medals of two performers to the winner's circle, they were no match for Prospect, 123.34 to 97.74.

The Knights' overall depth won out as they hit at least 17 points on every event. Ironically, the Prospect side horse crew drew the lowest rating. Normally, they're the trio to beat.

A new face in Paul Cameron (4.65), Randy Sabey (6.8) and Howard Beck (6.35) combined for a 17.8 to easily outdistance Fremd's response of 7.75 in the horse competition.

Viking Bill Osborne recorded a 6.55 to emerge as the champion of the trampoline and teammate John Williams nailed down a 7.9 on the parallel bar to grab a first place trophy, but it wasn't enough to turn back the potent Knights.

While giving up the two individual first places, Prospect swept every event, including the all-around competition with Rich Valentino at the controls.

Guy Courtney captured the opening free exercise event with an 8.0 while Sabey notched the side horse with his 6.8 routine for the Knights.

Prospect's Jim Lutz continued the winning combination for the Knights by taking the high bar competition with a 8.25, the meet's high score.

Viking Osborne interrupted Prospect's string on the trampoline, but Don Liston came back for an 8.05 on the rings to sew up the Knights' victory.

The Prospect sophomores also rang the victory bell with a 53.52-51.18 triumph over their Fremd counterparts.

Wheeling Posts Gym Triumph Over Conant

Wheeling came on strong in the late events to dump Conant easily in a low scoring conference gymnastics meet in the victor's gym.

Wheeling tallied 119.93 to 96.06 for the Cougars in ringing up their fifth conference triumph against a pair of setbacks. It was the first instance in their last eight meets that Conant had not gone over the century mark and Wheeling's lowest output in several weeks.

The visitors trailed by a slim five point margin after capturing the high bar competition behind Bill Anderson's 7.55 routine and tramp action with the help of Paul Sinnott's winning 6.5 tempo.

The Cats countered on the parallel bars however, Rene Mathis throwing a 7.3, Bill Glenn adding a 6.35 showing and Chris Krolack turning in a 5.9 to forge a 1-2-3 sweep good for nearly 28 team points.

Mathis also captured a first on the aroundlaurelwitha8.13average.

The Pirates, shooting for their first win in seven MEI meets, barely won the trampoline event, but still trailed 52.30 to 41.6 heading into the last two events.

Scherger, Palatine's all-around man, then paced his team on its comeback with a winning effort on the P-bars. After this event he placed second to Yaeger's top performance of the night — an 8.5 — as the Pirates won big on the still rings.

Pirates Shade Falcon Gymnasts

Palatine's gymnastics team has just two seniors — Tom Scherger and Jim Yaeger — but they were the difference in the Pirates meet at Forest View.

Forest View, seeking its second Mid-Suburban League win, won the first three events to lead Palatine by a whopping 44.15 to 32.5 score.

The Pirates, shooting for their first win in seven MEI meets, barely won the trampoline event, but still trailed 52.30 to 41.6 heading into the last two events.

Scherger, Palatine's all-around man, then paced his team on its comeback with a winning effort on the P-bars. After this event he placed second to Yaeger's top performance of the night — an 8.5 — as the Pirates won big on the still rings.

The Falcons still led after the six events, 76.00 to 74.55. However, Scherger's fine 5.7 average for five events was just enough to put the Pirates on the winning side of the ledger, 99.55 to 79.24.

Joe Messina's 3.9 on the trampoline was the first of Palatine's winning efforts that ignited the closing charge. Scherger's 6.05 was the next and then Yaeger's brilliant 8.5.

Forest View jumped out in front early with the help of three Falcon gymnasts — Dan Boli, Dennis Hardesty and Randy Granzow. Best won the free exercise event with the hosts' best performance of the night — an 8.5.

Hardesty followed by winning the side horse with a 5.8 and Granzow took the horizontal bar laurels with a 6.75.

Jim Pergander, Forest View's all-around man, had his troubles and could manage only a 3.24. Had it been slightly higher, the Falcons might have held on.

Free Exercise — Won by Boli (FV) 8.0; 2nd, Scherger (P), 6.8; 3rd, Buckholz (FV), 4.1; 4th, Martin (FV), 2.4; 5th, Pergander 3.5; 6th, Rayley (P), 3.1; 7th, Howe (P), 2.6; 8th, Edwards (P), 1.4.

Horizontal Bar — Won by Granzow (FV), 6.75; 2nd, Scherger (P), 6.8; 3rd, L. Martin (FV), 6.3; 4th, Sweetman (FV), 2.5; 5th, Brown (P), 3.1; 6th, Pergander (FV), 2.5; 7th, Howe (P), 2.7; 8th, None.

Trampoline — Won by Messina (P), 3.9; 2nd, L. Martin (FV), 3.2; 3rd, Hensd (P), 2.1.

Palatine's crack sophomore team continued its winning ways with a 75.60 to 71.34 victory.

4th, Lord (FV), 3.5; 5th, Buckholz (FV), 2.4; 6th, Bailey (P), 2.3.

Hersey Soars In 2nd Half

by MARV PRELLBERG

It could have been a disastrous week for the Hersey varsity basketball aggregation.

The high flying Huskies were sitting on top of the North MSL division with a perfect 8-0 record coming into the weekend, and almost everybody was conceding them the title at this point.

Then came the Friday night shocker. The Huskies were knocked off by Wheeling High in a heart-pounding contest. That loss left them only one game up on both Wheeling and Arlington in the North Division.

Saturday night the Hersey quintet traveled to the Glenbard North division, and this affair was to provide little trouble for the Huskies based on comparative records. However, nobody apparently informed Coach Bill Commers Glenbard North squad that they were to lay down and play dead for the visiting Huskies.

Instead, the Panthers came out scrapping and clawing until the Hersey five was happy to escape to the locker room at halftime and reorganize.

What head mentor Roger Steingraber related to his faltering Husky charges during his halftime oration is possibly not for print, but, whatever it was, the lads got the message.

Paced by a quick spurt as the second half opened by their Mr. Hustle, — Bruce Frase, — the Huskies wiped out a four point halftime deficit and rolled on to a 67-52 victory.

Glenbard North, possibly putting on its best one-half performance of the season, gave the louted Hersey quintet a real battle in the first half.

Displaying a balanced scoring attack, some good position rebounding, and being relatively successful in jamming the middle on defense on the Hersey big boy, Andy Pancratz, the Panthers outplayed the Husky quintet enough so that Steingraber and his followers had to be worried about a possible upset. The count at the end of the first quarter was 14-14, and at halftime 27-23 with Glenbard on top.

Then came Steingraber's halftime message, the second half tip, and it was a new ball game. In the first minute-and-a-half Frase bucketed enough points to tie the score at 27-27. Glenbard then bounced back with a brief rally of its own to regain a four point margin, only to see Frase give Hersey a two point lead on a drive in move with 3:34 left in the quarter.

The Huskies now had the momentum, and John Tilhou and Pancratz carried it forward to a 45-38 third quarter lead.

Hersey continued to build on its margin in the final quarter, as senior forward Tilhou led the victory charge with nine more tallies. When the fireworks were over Tilhou had registered 25 points, and Hersey had claimed a 67-52 win that kept them on top of the MSL heap.

Sportsmen's And Vacation Show Scheduled Feb. 19-28

A favorite harbinger of spring for Chicago's vast army of outdoors enthusiasts is the annual Chicago Sportsmen's and Vacation Show. The lavish 1972 edition of Tom Durant's exposition is coming up Feb. 19 through 28 at the International Amphitheatre, already established as the largest of its kind in the world and expanded even more this year.

The Amphitheatre complex of halls will be transformed into an exhilarating world of woods and waters, where hours of enchantment will be spent by the entire family in pursuit of favorite sports, recreation and pastimes.

It will all be there to delight — Fishing Tackle Row, boats and marine accessories, a great Travel Hall, a complete camping area including tents and recreational vehicles, hunting gear and sports paraphernalia of all sorts.

The show visitor will have the opportunity to participate himself while at the same time receiving instruction from experts — in fishing, casting, archery, skiing and other favored occupations. The live trout pool, where the angler can take home his catch, is back as an annual feature of the show.

The largest travel section in the show's history will have many states, including Alaska, represented. Here vacations can be planned with advice from resort owners, state reps, guides, trappers, Indians and others in attendance.

Durant's fine stage and water production in the center arena — "Parade of Outdoors Champions," starring John Bromfield — will have a stellar array of performers. It will be presented once opening night at 8 p.m. when exposition hours are 6 to 11 p.m. and twice daily the other nine days at 2 and 8 p.m. The show will be open on those days from 12 noon to 11 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. remaining weekdays.

There will always be 6,000 free seats available to "Parade" for show visitors already in the building.

Fremd Bumps Palatine With Late Charge

by LARRY EVERHART

Mix two ingredients like a hot neighborhood feud and a close, well-played game and you're going to have a good dose of emotion and excitement — no matter what past records are.

That was graphically shown Saturday night in the Arlington gym when the Vikings, charging from behind in the last minute like a mad bull seeing a red flag, overtook arch-rival Palatine in a 72-65 thriller.

Any game between these two inter-village enemies that is at all close is charged with victory fever, and this one was certainly no different.

To observe the wildly partisan fans on both sides of the floor, you would never have guessed that they were screaming for two teams that entered the action with a combined total of four wins in 18 Mid-Suburban League games.

"We're always emotional against Palatine," said a jubilant Fremd coach Leon Kasuboske after some of the excitement had died down. "I never have to worry about getting them up for this game.

"At the end, we did a lot of things right. Actually, at the beginning, we weren't making too many mistakes. They (Palatine) were just hot as a pistol."

But down that all-important stretch drive, the hottest gun on the floor was a stocky 5-10 bespectacled guard who was not new in the role of villain for Palatine. Name: Bill Whiteley.

Whiteley, who also broke the Pirates' backs in Fremd's first game against them (a 75-63 victory back in the league opener Dec. 4) was sensational in the clutch, providing the spark that ignited the dramatic victory explosion.

He poured in 11 points from the time when 3:44 remained in the game until his three-point play with 38 seconds left broke the final tie score. Whiteley, who had been hitting from outside throughout the second half, took game scoring honors with 23 points.

"His shots were falling short in the first half, but he adjusted and started getting his wrist into them," explained

Kasuboske.

The game also illustrated that lightning can strike twice. In Saturday's tilt, just the same as in the first confrontation, Palatine's spirited play seemed sure to carry them to an upset before the Vikes suddenly exploded in the final moments.

Palatine's fine shooting, paced by Steve Garoutte (21 points) and Rick McCormack (14) should have been enough for the favored win. The Pirates outshot Fremd 51 per cent to 37 per cent, an even wider 46 to 37 per cent margin in the first half, and were nine for 12 in the second quarter to build a five-point halftime lead.

But Fremd made up for that in the rebounding and turnover department. The Vikes had 30 boards to the Pirates' 20 and committed only nine turnovers to Palatine's 18, several of which came in the disastrous closing stages.

It was nip-and-tuck throughout the first quarter, with Palatine on top 14-12 at its end on a 15-footer by Garoutte seven seconds before the first buzzer.

Then in the second stanza, the charged-up visitors went ahead by as many as eight, 27-19, before Fremd closed to 30-29. But two baskets by Jim Sander in the last 11 seconds of the half gave Palatine a 34-29 advantage at the break.

Palatine retained leads between one and five points nearly through the third quarter, but a rebound basket by Randy Hague with 14 seconds left in the quarter gave Fremd a 50-49 lead at the third pause, their first edge since the first period.

With the crowd roaring at each score, Palatine restored its eight-point cushion, 63-55, with less than four minutes left. A glorious upset seemed probably un-

Whiteley went to work.

Helped by the suddenly-jittery Pirates' turnovers, Whiteley whipped in three long shots and stole the ball twice to drive in for layups, turning the tide finally in Fremd's favor.

By the end, Palatine coach Ron Finck could only shake his head in disbelief, wondering how much misery one team must accept. Despite the young Pirates' obvious improvement of late, their record has skidded to a deceiving 1-9 in the MSL, with Fremd's now 4-6.

Dandy Dons Roll Past St. Viator

score at 15-15 at the buzzer.

The curtain comes down next weekend on the Suburban Catholic Conference's regularly scheduled season and for Notre Dame and St. Viator, the final loop contest is being eagerly awaited.

But that's about the only similarity between the two Northwest suburban entries in the SCC and the differences were very obvious in the St. Viator gym Saturday night as Notre Dame coasted to a 73-47 romp over the Lions on route to a title showdown with St. Patrick Friday night.

The win, following a 72-57 defeat of Holy Cross Friday, gave the Dons a 10-2 SCC mark to put on the line against the 10-1 Shamrocks.

And the loss by St. Viator, following a ragged Friday night show at St. Patrick, put the Lions at 4-5 in preparation for the final league clash at Carmel of Manda-lein Friday, a squad that already headed the Lions with ease once this year.

At least the misery is almost over for St. Viator.

Saturday night's match had all the makings of a rough and tumble battle between two feuding neighbors — for the first eight minutes.

The score was tied six times and the lead changed hands five times as the Lions held their own on the boards against the bigger Dons.

St. Viator sharpshooter John Lohse found the range three times on long shots from the far corner of his forward position and Notre Dame's Greg Stratton and Bill Hillinger scored 11 between them, most coming on nice moves under the basket.

Adding to the excitement and the potential of an even match was the last second 35-footer dropped in by St. Viator's Mike Pettenuzzo, which tied the

But the tempo changed rapidly as the second frame began and the Dons raced to a 35-19 lead in a little over five minutes.

The Lions were guilty of four turnovers in the span while missing eight of nine shots and Notre Dame outrebounded St. Viator, 9-2.

The half ended with Notre Dame on top, 37-21, and that was the ball game.

The Dons duplicated their 22 point second quarter effort in the third period as ugard Tom Les sank six buckets, five of them from 20 feet away.

Les finished as high scorer in the contest with 24 points while Pettenuzzo, who still has a chance at the league scoring title, paced St. Viator with 22.

Stratton also hit 20 for Notre Dame while none of the other Lions were able to get into double figures.

'Best First Half' For Arlington

by LARRY EVERHART

Ken Peters, Arlington's fine guard, has existed somewhat in the shadow of flashy running mate John Brodman in the Cardinals' basketball fortunes this winter.

Friday night in the Arlington hard-court, however, it was Peters who was the darling of Card fans . . . even though Brodman was his usual spectacular self with a game-high 28 points.

Peters was all over the floor. He stole his Fremd opponents blind, made beautiful passes to set up easy baskets, and found time to do plenty of scoring of his own 22 points to be exact.

This showing, coupled with Fremd's recurring problem of too many fouls, resulted in an easy 81-77 triumph for Arlington that ran their Mid-Suburban League record to 1-2. Fremd's was dropped to 2-4, all six losses being against the three North Division toughies — Hersey, Wheeling and the Cards.

It left Arlington and Wheeling only a game behind Hersey in the torrid North race after the leaders were upset by Wheeling at the same time.

Arlington was much more impressive than the score, racing to a 33-point lead early in the second quarter and coasting from there. The winners shot 30 for 34 (88 per cent) from the field in the first half and had 57 points by intermission in their breeze.

"We played as well as we have all season in the first half," said Cardinal coach George Zigman. "We had good balance . . . everyone was chipping in. And we're getting the consistency from Peters we were looking for."

Randy Hague notched 22 points to lead the Vikings. Arlington's Bill Kleck and Fremd's Dave Wickersham each had 13.

The game was paradoxical in a couple of respects. Fremd actually had two more field goals and three more rebounds than Arlington.

But it isn't hard to understand the results if you look at some other figures. Fremd was guilty of a staggering 30 turnovers, 20 in the first half, and committed 26 fouls to 15 for Arlington. This allowed the Cards to outscore Fremd 28-11 from the free throw line.

Leon Kasuboske, Viking boss, must cringe every time he hears a whistle. Friday's contest was the fourth time in Fremd's last five games that they have outscored the enemy from the field — and lost.

"I've never seen our guards throw the ball away so much," lamented Kasuboske. "Sometimes it happens against a press, but they (Arlington) were just in a regular man-to-man until the fourth quarter."

"But I was happy with the way we came back to at least make the score reasonable. A lot of teams would die atter scoring five points in a quarter (as Fremd did in the first) but we didn't. I don't believe in moral victories, but if there is such a thing, that was it."

Arlington burned Fremd's zone defense in the first half with the hot outside shooting of Brodman and Peters. The Cards' numerous steals played an equally-important part in their fast start.

The game started off looking like an intramural contest. Turnovers and

MOUNT PROSPECT
BOARD OF APPEALS
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on the 26th day of February, 1971, at the hour of 8:00 P.M. there will be a public hearing at the Village Hall, 113 E. Northwest Highway, concerning a petition for change to the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as follows:

Request for variation of property presently zoned L-1, located at 500 W. Central Road, for reduction of minimum side yard from 80 feet to 40 feet. Said property is legally described as:

Lot "A" of Owner's Resubdivision of Lot 8 (except the West 282.52 feet thereof) of Charles Behlendorf's subdivision of the Southwest 1/4 of the Northwest 1/4 and the West 1/2 of the Southwest 1/4 of Section 34, Township 42 North, Range 11, East of the Third Principal Meridian, except the right-of-way of the Chicago and North Western Railway Company, in Cook County, Illinois.

All persons interested in the above petition will be heard at the public hearing on the 26th day of February, 1971.

Dated at Mount Prospect, Illinois, this 8th day of February, 1971.

GEORGE JACOBMEYER
Mount Prospect

Published in Mount Prospect Herald Feb. 8, 1971.

Notice of Zoning Hearing

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Schaumburg will conduct a public hearing on Wednesday, February 10, 1971, at 8:00 P.M. in the Great Hall, 281 S. Civic Drive, Schaumburg, Illinois, on a petition for approval of a Planned Unit Development under B-2 General Retail, subject to a Special Use for a Planned Development on property located at Quentin and Algonquin Road and legally described as follows:

Lot 12, except the West 282.52 feet, as measured on the North and South lines thereof, together with that part of the North 205.65 feet, as measured on the West line thereof, lying East of the West 282.52 feet, as measured on the North line thereof, of Lot 13 in Geisler's Subdivision of Section 27, the Southeast Quarter of Section 28, the Northwest Quarter of Section 33 and the Northwest Quarter of Section 34, all in Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

All persons desiring to be heard will be given an opportunity to be heard.

RUSSELL PARKER,
Chairman
Zoning Board of Appeals
Published in The Herald Feb. 8, 1971.

Legal Notice

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to "An Act in relation to the use of an assumed name in the conduct of business in this State," as amended, that a certificate was filed by the said defendant with the County Clerk of Cook County, file No. B26201 on the 2nd day of Feb., 1971 under the assumed name of Tyro Enterprises. The true name and address of the owner is Delroy V. Tyro, 120 N. Pine St., Mt. Prospect, Ill. 60056.

VILLAGE OF BARTLETT
ILLINOIS

Ordinance No. 71-7

AN ORDINANCE VACATING CERTAIN STREETS AND UTILITY EASEMENTS WITHIN THE COMPOUND LIMITS OF THE VILLAGE OF BARTLETT.

WHEREAS, The Plan Commission of the Village of Bartlett has recommended to the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Bartlett that certain unimproved streets and an unused public utility easement as hereinafter described be vacated in conjunction with the granting of a Special Use permit for a Planned Development to the developer of the same, to be known as "Bartlett Green" and developed by TEKTON CORPORATION, and

WHEREAS, by Ordinance currently adopted granting such Special Use permit for such Planned Development, certain other streets within the Village but outside of such Planned Development are to be improved by the developer as a condition precedent to the development of such Planned Development; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Bartlett have determined that the public use and public interest to be subserved by the vacating of such streets and utility easement, in the interest of the public from the burden of improving and maintaining of such streets and utility easement and the improvements to be made without cost to the public to the other dedicated and existing streets within the Village is such as to warrant the vacation of such streets and utility easement.

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF BARTLETT, as follows:

SECTION ONE: That the following streets and utility easement heretofore dedicated to the Village by Plat of Subdivision for H. O. Stone and Company's Town Addition to Bartlett, being a Subdivision in the Southwest Quarter of Section 36 and the Southeast Quarter of Section 34, all in Township 41, Range 9 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois, recorded July 23, 1969 as Document No. 1045529, to wit:

Trustees Oppose MSD Plan

Hanover Park trustees oppose the Metropolitan Sanitary Districts (MSD) plans to utilize a recently-acquired 200-acre site adjacent to the village as a "sludge farm."

Thousands of residents have signed petitions echoing this objection and the trustees and representatives of the groups plan to show this opposition to the MSD trustees.

At Thursday's village board session the Board also rejected action taken by Village President Richard Baker in November when he withdrew village opposition to the purchase of the property. They challenge his action as "illegal and unauthorized."

The trustees approved a resolution authorizing Village Attorney William Davies to "negotiate" with the MSD officials and establish a meeting for the discussion of the purchase and development of the property.

More than 100 residents vocally and with sign language showed objection to the sludge farm they believe will cover the site at Barrington Road north of Lake Street.

PRESIDENT BAKER HAS faced criticism from both his board and residents since announcement of his action in the Fisher Farm negotiation.

He told his board and residents that he withdrew the objections to the sale after he learned it was made. He acted without board approval, the board had taken previous action to fight the sale.

Baker insists he did not approve a sludge farm, but was acting "politically, to get things for the village."

He has since his action admitted he may have used bad judgement in acting without consulting his board. However, he adds that it was impractical at that point to object, an action that was consummated. He said he felt the village should try a "soft sell approach."

Baker pointed out that the board's criticism of a one man action was being duplicated by authorizing Davies to act alone. He suggested two trustees be included in the negotiations. The board added two spokesmen from each residents group objecting the sludge farm and a representative of the flood study committee.

THE BOARD AND residents chastised Baker and repeatedly asked for "clarification" of his action.

"How could withdrawing an objection after the sale benefit the village?" asked Trustee Rev. David Bugh.

"By going through the engineering department and working with them cooperatively for development of the property; we could get recreational facilities and help to solve a flooding problem," insists Baker.

Mrs. Jan Smith chairman of the flood study committee asserted she too opposes a sludge farm.

However she advised the residents "don't make idiots of yourselves, make sure you know what the MSD is doing on that land before you antagonize them, she urged.

She said MSD engineers are presently deciding how the land will be used. She added that sludge farming called the "on land solids waste disposal project" by the district doesn't always mean a crop of corn fertilized by sludge.

Kanehl Fired In Hassle Over Building Permits

After being instructed to issue an "immediate stop work order," to Vavrus and Associates Builders of a 212 unit apartment complex, Ralph Kanehl, Hanover Park building inspector was fired.

The board of trustees, critical of his decision to grant the building permits, red-tagged the construction and challenged his action.

Kanehl was removed as inspector effective Feb. 18 with trustees Barry Rogers, Louis Barone, Rev. David Bugh and Gordon Jensen voting for his dismissal.

KANEHL WAS DISMISSED during Thursday's village board session after the trustees reported they knew nothing of Vavrus' plans.

Vavrus is building four 53 unit buildings on a 23 acre site. They did not appear before the plan commission or village board for approval, claiming the proper zoning is held.

Kanehl who has held the $13,500 a year position since he was appointed by president Baker one and a half years ago said "I met the responsibility of my job."

He told the Herald Friday he is consulting his attorney regarding Thursday's action.

THE PUBLIC FIRING and criticism of Kanehl prompted an emotional defense from a woman in the audience.

"Have you four gods sitting up there never made a mistake?" she asked. Adding, it took a shorter time to fire Kanehl than it took the board to argue a minor bill on the month's agenda.

She was critical of the board's action and insisted, as did chairman Lewis, that the inspector was entitled to a private hearing to afford him a chance to defend himself.

Kanehl who has taped board sessions continued his task and in his defense said only "I was doing my job and issued the permits in compliance with village ordinances."

Building Halted On Vavrus Project, Await Court Ruling

Although investigation of the Vavrus Associates apartment complex at Ontarioville and Church roads in DuPage County is not completed, Hanover Park Trustees have stopped building and fired the inspector for issuing building permits. The builder in turn has threatened to sue the village.

William Davies, Hanover Park village attorney, said until Vavrus, who purchased the 12 acre site from Larwin III Builders, complies with the annexation agreement Larwin signed when they annexed their 700 acre development, they will be prohibited from completing the complex.

Davies said the builder should have come to the village board and plan commission for development approval, produced plans and specifications, letters of credit, and paid tap-on fees as they are set in village ordinances.

Attorney Davies previously interpreted the existing tap-on fee ordinance to apply to each unit in a building instead of each connection as in the ordinance.

VAVRUS AND ASSOCIATES, when they applied for the permits, paid $800 in fees; $180 for each single connection in the four buildings and an additional $50 per building for a sewer tap.

Davies says they should have paid $150 for each apartment, and after giving the trustees this interpretation of the ordinance, instructed the inspector to charge per unit.

Ralph Kanehl, Hanover Park building inspector, did not, but told the board Vavrus filed a letter stating they will pay the per-unit fee if this decision is upheld in court. Davies says the village does not have to prove its ordinances in court, and added the village's position has been jeopardized by the inspector's action. Vavrus by its legal action, is challenging the interpretation.

Davies is firm in his opinion the developer should have come to the board for approval, stating that the annexation agreement binds Vavrus, as it did Larwin, who sold them the property.

ROOST Hears Rules On FHA Plan

Construction of single-family homes under a federally subsidized housing program does not require village board approval, but local authorization is required for implementation of a plan covering apartment building, a representative of the Federal Housing Administration revealed Friday.

Benjamin Hoffman, FHA deputy chief underwriter, explained that the federal subsidy for single-family homes, referred to as the 235 Program, enables lower to moderate income buyers to purchase homes carrying 1 per cent mortgage interest rates.

Hoffman and Michael Murray, an Arlington Heights resident opposed to the development of a proposed federal housing program in that community, spoke before members of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township last week.

The 235 Program became an issue in the village of Schaumburg recently when Campanelli Bros., prime developer of the Weathersfield subdivision, constructed several model homes in an attempt to qualify for the federally subsidized single-family program.

Subsequently, village officials publicly opposed the idea resulting in an apparent change of plans for the builder.

DURING ROOST's investigation of the subject Friday night, Hoffman disclosed in response to questions posed by GOP Committeeman Donald L. Totten that local municipal approval is needed prior to construction of apartments under the 235 Program.

Discussing the 235 Program for single-family homes, Hoffman said home costs are moderate rather than low and said that prices range from $21,000 for a three-bedroom dwelling unit to $24,000 for a four-bedroom house.

In qualifying a buyer for federal subsidy, both income and family size are taken into consideration, with levels of eligibility stretching from $5,130 for a one-person family to $9,585 for a 10-member family.

On the 236 rental program, incomes of those on a federally subsidized program are reviewed every two years and their rental costs adjusted with increased income, Hoffman said.

Rentals range from $104.87 for an efficiency unit to $118.12 for a one-bedroom apartment. Two-bedroom units run $154.60, three-bedroom units are $177 and four-bedroom apartments rent for $194.06.

EXPLAINING THE FUNCTION of the FHA, Hoffman described the agency as one which does not issue loans but insures residential real estate and said it is one of few self-supporting governmental units.

Murray, active in the Greater Eastwood Community Association of Arlington Heights, opposes construction of a 15 acre moderate income housing project proposed formally last week by the Clerics of St. Viator.

In explaining his views, Murray said the project, planned for a portion of the 60 acre Victorian owned site, is bounded on all four sides by single-family homes ranging in price from $28,000 to $45,000.

He described Arlington Heights as primarily a single family residential community and said he felt the aim of local government there should be geared toward insuring continuance of this housing concept.

Murray also criticized the time lag between last spring's announcement of the proposed Victorian project and formal presentation, which came only last week.

A COMBINATION of concentration and a good sense of balance are necessary to stay on the balance beam. Jane Addams Jr. High eighth grader Debby Copen displayed both at a recent gymnastics meet in Schaumburg.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spacecraft crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardsmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles E. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Tuscania lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 18 persons, injured 270 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

New Education Plan Is Studied

Schaumburg Township elementary school administrators were commissioned Thursday night to return to the Dist. 64 Board of Education in two weeks with detailed cost estimates of implementing an individually guided educational concept being tentatively considered for several area schools.

Material to be covered in the forthcoming report will detail both program and building costs for the proposal in addition to estimated staffing costs.

The innovative educational method is under consideration for use in an addition planned for the existing Hanover Highlands Elementary School to consist of eight classrooms plus a learning center. Completion of the building is scheduled for September 1972.

The program has also been mentioned with regard to a proposed elementary school to be constructed in the Barrington Square area of Hoffman Estates.

ALTHOUGH ACTION WAS tabled to the next meeting of the board of education, a definite preference to limit consideration of the individualized program to Hanover Highlands School was indicated.

In other business last week, Dist. 64 board members agreed to the adoption of new textbooks and materials for science instruction in grades four, five and six, as well as social studies texts for the district's three junior high schools.

Selection of new texts was based on recommendation of the curriculum and educational committees and ratified by the board of education.

In line with this, Open Court Reading materials will be extended to third grade in all elementary schools in the district.

The reading program extends to sixth grade at Fairview School where it first began five years ago as a pilot program.

BOARD MEMBERS ALSO reported concerning an investigation to extend the hours polls will be open in the April school district election.

According to Supt. Wayne E. Schaible inquiries concerning opening polling places all day rather than from noon to 7 p.m. have been received.

"We have looked into this but we set our precincts with Harper Junior College and Dist. 211 and unless we were to all extend our hours this might present quite a problem," Schaible said.

Information was provided for purposes dictated, and no action was taken to discuss only, the superintendent in change hours of the election by the board of education.

6 Polling Places For April Election

Six polling places will be made available to voters in Hoffman Estates Park District for the April 6 election, Park Sec. George F. Seaver announced this week.

Seaver said that polls will be established at Fairview, Hoffman, Hillcrest, MacArthur and Armstrong schools for voters living south of the tollway.

Voters in the Winston Knolls subdivision recently annexed by the district will cast their ballots at the 414 Winston Dr. residence of Robert Johns.

Involved in the election are two full six year terms plus an unexpired two year term.

Candidates for the full term board posts are incumbent Bernard M. Bartoch, William Wermes, Edwin L. Frank, Robert Hill, Claude W. Crase and Thomas G. Barber.

Don A. Wade will challenge appointed incumbent William Pichler for election to the short term.

Deadline for petition filing was last Monday and candidates have until 1 p.m. Sat., Feb. 6 to withdraw from the race.

Scouts Stage Comedy Skits

Den 5, under the leadership of Mrs. Virginia Tannhauser and Mrs. Dolores Crutchfield, presented a comedy skit, "First Time Campers," at a recent meeting of Cub Scout Pack 297 at MacArthur School.

Cub Scouts participating were Ward Tannhauser, Mike Shamblin, David Weismar, Bob Starkey, Mike Lenta, Scott Crutchfield, Mike Bogochi and Michael Gay.

Cubmaster Dick Judd wore Indian regalia for presentation of the following awards: James Devana, wolf badge; Mike Lenta, Ward Tannhauser, Mark Schwedel and Bobby Sturkey, bear badges; Chris Haerter, bear badge, one gold and three silver arrows; John Duhamel, bear badge and one gold arrow; Mike Shamblin and Ricky Rosycki, Webelos scarves and ribbons.

The Arrow of Light, the highest award in Cub Scouting, was presented to Mike Palmer, Mark Palmer, Cary Knitter and Larry Seligman. They were also accepted into Boy Scout Troop 297.

WEBELOS AWARDS included: Ed Sewade, Brad Downing, athletic; Ed Sewade, Mike Palmer, Tim Morgan, Brad Downing, Mark Palmer, Mark Hammer and David Krausland, citizen; Tim Morgan, showman; Ed Sewade, Tim Morgan, Brian Judd, Bob Smith, Kent Knop and Chuck Lenta, sportsman; Neal Clegghera, Mark May and Jim Harshberger, engineering; Jim Harshberger, Chuck Lenta, Bob Smith, Brian Judd, Neal Clegghera, Mark May and Kent Knop, traveler.

Attendance banner was awarded to Webelos Den 1, Webelos Den 3 and Den 5 won the tag-of-war.

Highlight of the January activities was a trip to a Chicago Bulls game, when 150 Cub Scouts and fathers watched the Bulls beat the Buffalo Braves. Robert Weimar made the arrangements.

Despite Inclement Weather Living Patterns The Same

Twenty-four hours of inclement weather conditions which ranged from light snow to heavy rain and ferocious winds coupled with icy streets appears to have caused little interruption in the lives of most Schaumburg Township residents.

Schaumburg police reported no bad accidents in their area of jurisdiction but noted that hundreds of fender bender incidents occurred.

Icy roads throughout the village also caused a number of cars to slip into ditches and public works crews worked around the clock last Thursday and Friday to keep main arterials and residential streets salled.

Thursday night at Roselle and Bode roads in Hoffman Estates an automobile driven by Charles Gries, 106 Foxhunt Trail, Barrington, slid into the rear of a vehicle driven by Miss Barbara Scipowski, 3023 N. Opal, Chicago.

MRS. SCIPOWSKI WAS treated for whiplash injuries at St. Alexius Hospital and later released.

Also Thursday night an alarm went off at Hillcrest School due to high winds having blown down an antenna on top of the building which is located in the Highlands area of Hoffman Estates.

Street crews, under the direction of Supt. Kenneth Dean, worked continually from 2:30 a.m. Thursday to maintain and salt streets and roads in the village.

A number of street signs and post boxes in the village were reported damaged and there was an unconfirmed rumor of a residential roof having been taken off by high winds.

Elementary School Doors To Open Today

Collins Elementary School in the Lancer Park subdivision of Schaumburg will open its doors officially today for nearly 800 students who have been attending classes at Hanover Highlands School in anticipation of the completion of their own building.

Donald Fischer has been appointed principal of the new 21 room building which is one of three new named schools completed in Dist. 64 within the past few weeks.

The building will service kindergarten through sixth grade students coming from the Lancer Park area.

could also be developed she said. Attorney Davies told the Herald that even if the MSD has not formed plans for a sludge farm the residents objections to one are better voiced before the use of the acreage is decided.

AS THE CRITICISM of Baker continued, the president assured residents he could offer proof, supplied by the Fisher heirs, that his action was taken after the sale was announced.

He plans to show this to residents at a Friday session of the "Hanover's Involved People" group. The group organized opposition to the sludge farm.

Atty. Davies stressed any dated letter of proof was useless. In explanation he said Baker claims his action was taken on the Nov. 12, the same date the Fishers agreed to the purchase price. Davies said the MSD trustees did not vote on the sale until December and insists the sale could have been fought.

Among murmurs of "illegal," and "how do we get rid of him," Trustee Bugh asked if the president's action was illegal and what further action the board could take against him.

Reluctant at first Davies said a "recall election or malfeasance of office charge could be made.

He advised the board to drop the thought of any such action noting that it could prove "unpleasant, for both village and official charged." E. added it was also hard to win such cases because proof of wrong doing must be presented.

A RESIDENT IN the audience, Frank Wallace stopped the bitter arguing between the officials by imploring the trustees to give the president an opportunity to prove his actions were honest.

The president said development of the property and subsequent benefits to the village would prove him right.

Friday the Herald was told by MSD board president John Egan "the site will be used for the liquid fertilizer resulting from treatment of sewage at the Hanover Park Plant."

Egan said the site was purchased for this purpose adding that as the plant expands, as it is planned to, the solids volume will increase. The president added that he does not anticipate any problems from the farming operation and said experimental farming using sludge on a 10 acre site at the plant has been successful and no problems or complaints have come from it.

Approve Library Budget

An operating budget totaling $196,000, representing less than 1970's expenses and income, was approved by Schaumburg Township Public Library directors Wednesday.

According to Robert Lyons, library board president, the budget is divided into four categories and will go into effect at the beginning of the library's fiscal year on March 1.

The finalized budget will be presented to Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors for their approval later this month.

For professional salaries, the budget has earmarked $113,600; an additional $42,500 will fund purchase of materials, including both adult and childrens books, pamphlets and periodicals plus audio visual materials. That fund will also pay for new bindings to be put on a number of books obtained recently from the state library association Lyons explained.

Administrative expenses and utilities are expected to run $11,200 during the next fiscal year and a contingency fund of $6,000 is the fourth budget category.

With a total budget of $232,639.37 for fiscal 1970, Lyons reported that tax collections came very close to the expected amount and totaled approximately $229,000.

Construction on a large new wing at the library is slated to begin this spring and the expanded library is expected to formally open about one year from now.

Lyons indicated that progress toward the new wing is moving ahead on schedule and an early April groundbreaking has been tentatively set.

Cancel Park Meet

The Hanover Park District has cancelled a special session called for 8 p.m. tonight.

The meeting scheduled to discuss fees and policies for the swimming pool complex at Ahlstrand Park, will be rescheduled this month said Park District secretary Mrs. Nancy Neilson.

Resident Groups To Protest Annex Plan At Board Meet

Three groups of Prospect Heights residents plan to protest annexation of 40 acres in Prospect Heights to Wheeling at tonight's Wheeling village board meeting.

The 40 acres are located southeast of Wheeling and Willow Roads and west of the Village of Wheeling boundaries.

Tonight at 8:30 in the village municipal building, 305 W. Dundee Rd., the Wheeling trustees will consider an ordinance to annex the vacant land. The ordinance was prepared by Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer, after Arthur Lieblich, the sole beneficiary of a trust which holds title to the land, petitioned for annexation.

Lieblich has also asked that the land be rezoned to R-4 (multi-family residential). The Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals will consider the rezoning proposal Feb. 16 if annexation is approved. The village board will make a ruling on the zoning after reviewing the zoning board's recommendation.

SEVERAL GROUPS of Prospect Heights residents are opposed to both the annexation and rezoning proposals. When the proposals were first publicized at a meeting of the High School Dist. 214 board, these residents presented petitions objecting to Lieblich's requests.

More than 700 members of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church (which is just north of the 40-acre parcel) expressed their opposition in a petition. They claim the increased traffic generated by a multi-family residential development will endanger the safety of the children attending St. Alphonsus Catholic School, adjoining the church.

Another 300 residents, all members of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, also signed a petition objecting to Lieblich's proposals. The association leaders attached a letter to their petition listing their objections. They claim that if Lieblich does build apartments or industry on his land, the value of their homes will be reduced. They also said such development will create a traffic and flood problem.

THE THIRD GROUP of Prospect Heights residents is called "Citizens for Better Safety on Wheeling Road." The group is composed of residents living near Lieblich's land. According to Max Lyle, a member of the group, "We are urging everyone in the area to attend the village board meeting tonight to protest the annexation proposal."

The High School Dist. 214 board became involved in the matter, because a 40-acre school site is adjacent to Lieblich's land on the east. Wheeling Trustee Michael Valenza proposed several weeks ago that the school site be annexed to the village. The school board has made no decision concerning Valenza's request.

"We don't need the school property to annex Lieblich's land, but we still want it," said Valenza. "We can legally annex Lieblich's land because a corner of his land touches the village boundaries."

Breakdown Cuts Power In Suburbs

According to Paul Parker, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, a faulty circuit breaker left 4,000 homes without power in the northwest section of Palatine for several hours early Friday. In Schaumburg near Golf and Roselle Roads 125 homes were without electricity because of a faulty wire connection.

High winds reaching 30 miles per hour caused some problems but "most were minor, affecting two or three households at a time and scattered over the Northwest suburban area," Parker said. He said most of the trouble was caused by blown off tree limbs and ice pulling down the wires.

Parker said no home was without electricity for more than two hours. By 2 p.m. Friday Parker said repairmen were "beginning to get caught up." Additional crews had been on duty Thursday night in anticipation of the high winds.

A DENTIST'S work in preventing tooth decay was highlighted for first graders at Mark Twain School in Wheeling last week. Dr. Gerald Reed, a Wheeling dentist, spoke to the children and answered questions about his work. His visit was made in connection with the ABLE program operating this year at Twain and at Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling and Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove.

Students Get Glimpse Of Working World

by SUE JACOBSON
Glimpses into the adult working world are being offered to school children in Buffalo Grove and Wheeling this year under a unique new project conducted in connection with the Northern Illinois University.

The project is called ABLE, which stands for Authentic Basic Life-Centered Education. In more simple terms, it seeks to teach children the three R's by having people tell them about their occupations.

The project is underway in several classes at Booth Tarkington and Mark Twain schools in Wheeling and at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove.

"The theory is to eventually teach children everything through outside contact with the working world," explained Tarkington fifth grade teacher Wayne Reimer who is working with the program. "It may take years and years of work and an extremely creative teacher to do this."

THE EXPERIENCES that the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove teachers have with ABLE this year will be used by Walter Wernick, NIU project director, to formulate a model ABLE program for all schools in the state. Wernick has a five-year grant from the state Division of Vocational and Technical Education to research his theory. Schools in Mundelein and DeKalb are also using ABLE this year.

Fifth graders at Tarkington have had visits from a telephone company employee, a florist and several of the students' parents.

The florist's visit was used to teach a lesson in artistic balance. Reimer said, "The florist talked about balance in flower arranging and the teacher used what she said to teach the children about balance in painting pictures."

A first grade class at Tarkington is lesson on addition and subtraction, by Mrs. Nancy Devries, took her class to visit a local sausage maker. Then she connected the visit with an arithmetic lesson on addition and subtraction, by having the children add and subtract using sausages.

REIMER SEES several advantages to the ABLE concept. "It's tremendous in vocabulary building. The occupational words they pick up are ones they might not otherwise come in contact with. And the speakers bring to the classroom a degree of relevancy to vocations that just can't be found in textbooks alone," he said. "It develops in the children a wholesome attitude toward all types of work."

The disadvantages are that "it's time-consuming. It takes a great deal of time for the teacher to develop an ABLE unit. And some of the adult speakers seem to have difficulty communicating with the students," Reimer said.

Students at Twain School have developed interviewing skills by talking to the school's personnel, a pet shop employee, a computer programmer, a dentist and a dental hygienist about their professions. Several of the classes have also visited local factories.

"It's a more realistic way to approach education," commented Twain teacher Heidi Congan.

Park, School Units Talk Joint Police

The Wheeling Park District and School Dist. 21 officials met last Thursday and discussed shared security guard service, recreation, blacktopped playgrounds, and charges for use of school facilities.

The joint policing proposal came from the park district. It employs the Illinois Counties Patrol Service as a park police and security guard force.

School district officials were non-committal about a proposed plan to share the cost of the service among the park district, Dist. 21 and Wheeling High School. Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill did say that the school board would consider the offer.

THE PARK POLICE now cover Heritage Park, Chamber of Commerce Park, and the district's indoor swimming pool at Wheeling High School, as well as the playgrounds at Wheeling park-school sites.

School property is covered by village police because of a state law, while park district property is not covered, school officials said.

Park officials said that vandalism has declined since they hired the guard service.

Gill said that the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove police patrol school buildings. He said the park's police have called him occasionally when they noticed vandalism or open doors at schools, but said — that the majority of the calls come from Wheeling police.

GILL SAID the district has noticed a decline in vandalism in recent years and said he attributes the decline to the village police liaison officer program.

He said that the district has its biggest vandalism problem at Frust School in Prospect Heights where patrolling is less frequent because the area is unincorporated.

Members of the two boards also discussed the problem of the two districts running similar or conflicting recreational programs.

Park officials noted that the district had to cancel a ski program because Dist. 21 was offering a similar program on the same night.

Gill told the park district officials that the school district would gladly give up any of its public recreation programs if the park district would be willing to sponsor them instead.

Dist. 21 has sponsored the ski program for six or seven years, Gill said.

"We'll be happy to let the park district take it over. But if you fade out, then we'll start running it again," he said.

The boards also discussed blacktopping of school playgrounds. Park officials said children often get hurt on blacktop and recommended that sand or cedar chips be used instead. Gill pointed out that blacktopping makes an area playable for more of the year.

School officials noted that a bill to the park district for use of school buildings had been returned paid.

School district officials explained that they must charge the park district for use of school buildings for times when custodians are not normally on duty, such as weekends.

The park district said the $100.50 bill had only been returned for clarification of the charges.

Officials of both districts said that more meetings should be held to keep communications open between the districts.

Ill Wind Here Blows No Good

A wet and windy blast of winter weather caused discomfort to Wheeling and Buffalo Grove residents last week.

In Wheeling, water and later ice, led to 11 calls to police for motorist assistance Thursday, and one resident, Kurt Sandig, of 308 S. Wheeling Ave. reported a flooded basement to police. There was also flooding of some streets in the village.

Police also removed a sign which blew down in the 300 block of west Dundee Road.

IN BUFFALO GROVE, high winds activated the burglar alarm at the Elm Farm Food Store in the Buffalo Grove Mall about 5 a.m. Friday morning. Shortly after midnight Friday the wind blew down a power line to a farm house on Arlington Heights Road.

Throughout the day Friday police received reports of garbage cans blowing about in the village.

A small amount of debris was blown from the Arlington Heights village dump on Nichols Road and was caught on fences near the area. The dump was not operating Friday afternoon.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 2:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Tuscania lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 270 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

chocolate fondue party. The students received a math lesson too, since they purchased the ingredients for the party and made the fondue right in class. The entire unit was taught without any textbooks.

Miss Congan plans to teach a similar unit on Spain and hopes to bring in a flamenco dancer to talk to her students in connection with the unit.

ABLE "takes the teacher from the textbook and lets her correlate her subjects to something meaningful in the world," said Twain principal Dennis Carpenter. "I hate to use an overworked word, but it's relevant. It gets the kids involved. It's a change from the everyday routine."

Praise for the ABLE project has also come from teachers involved with the program at Willow Grove School.

"IT TAKES TIME, but it's worthwhile and a more interesting way of teaching," said first grade teacher Mrs. Virginia Weston. "But I do think there are some occupations which are too difficult for children in the younger grade levels to understand."

First and second graders have participated in such activities as interviewing employees of Long Grove shops, talking to firemen, visiting a candy shop and a local farm, and interviewing the school staff about their jobs.

"They're interested in the 'why' of each job, not so much in what each person does, but why he does it. It's a tremendous way to build their vocabulary," Mrs. Weston said. "It's great."

Billboard For School Is Urged

A 34-foot free-standing billboard to announce high school and community events has been proposed for Wheeling High School.

According to Frank Bohac, assistant principal at Wheeling, the cost of the billboard would be shared by the school, the Wheeling Park District, the Jaycees, and the Wheeling High School Sports Club.

Bohac said he also hoped that the Chamber of Commerce would contribute money.

It is estimated that the billboard will cost about $6,800. A drawing of the billboard was presented to the Wheeling Park Board Thursday night. However, the board did not act on the request for money.

The drawing shows the billboard in the shape of an arch with a large area in the middle where information about events could be posted, in the same manner in which movies are announced on theater marquees. It would be located along Rte. 83.

However, it appears that a variation in the village sign ordinance would have to be obtained to erect the sign. The current ordinance limits the height of signs and billboards to 22 feet.

Fourth Graders Present Play

A play about the life of George Washington was recently given by a fourth grade class at Louisa May Alcott School in Buffalo Grove.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 228 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 26 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7837, according to Supt. James Erviti. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 80 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team.

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 292 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teacher's Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Holiday Inn, 1000 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,600.

Other nearby teachers associations are reported to have offered support to the striking teachers, but only one of those groups, from DuPage, was seen picketing Saturday. If no settlement is reached by tonight, the board of education is expected to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 3123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Noncertified personnel have apparently not been involved in the strike. Although they were asked to honor picket lines, most of them reported to work Friday, according to the administration.

HOT LUNCH LINES formed for the first time last week at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove. On Wednesday, the school opened its doors to some 500 elementary school children in Dist. 96. Waiting in line to receive a lunch is Mary Kay Weirich. The opening of Willow Grove School meant the end of double shifts in Dist. 96. The double shifts had been in effect since last September in the district.

Dist. 23 Issues Beaten

Defeat of the School Dist. 23 referendum Saturday probably will result in cutbacks in the education program, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky.

District voters Saturday turned down two proposed tax hikes and a special tax levy included in the referendum were proposals to raise the education fund tax from $1.60 to $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, and the building fund tax from $.25 to $.375 per $100 assessed valuation. If approved, the two tax hikes would have together added $128,120 to the $1.7 million budget.

The district also proposed a special tax levy in the referendum to repay an interest-free loan from the state for construction of a new school in Arlington Heights. According to Grodsky, the levy would have cost a resident with a home assessed at $10,000 approximately $16 a year.

OF A TOTAL of 1,004 ballots cast, each of the three proposals was defeated by a margin of about 130 votes. The education fund tax hike was defeated by a vote of 602 to 476. A vote of 605 to 473 defeated the building fund tax hike. The special levy was defeated 603 to 473.

The same three proposals were defeated in a referendum last October by a narrower margin. However, at that time, the voters authorized a bond sale of $1.2 million for improvements and additions to existing schools. Approximately 1,364 voters tuned out for the October referendum.

Grodsky said he did not know if the district will present the same three proposals to the voters again this year. "That decision will be made by the school board. The board is meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School to canvass the votes."

"I plan to recommend to the board that cuts be made in the 1971-72 budget," said Grodsky. "These cuts could go into effect as early as July, because we may not be able to operate the summer school program this year."

"If our tax rates are not increased by the fall of 1972, we may also have to go on double shifts in some of our schools," said Grodsky.

"I am disappointed that our proposals were defeated because the children are the ones who will really be hurt. But if this is what the parents and the community want, this is what we will give them."

"In the future we will probably have to rely on the new residents to pass referenda, because the people living here now apparently don't care," added Grodsky.

Honor Students At London Listed

Bomb Threat Clears Shoppers At K Mart

Shoppers and employees at the K Mart Discount Store at 700 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, were cleared from the store while Wheeling firemen investigated a false bomb threat.

Firemen were called to the store shortly after noon Thursday. An anonymous caller had told store personnel that a bomb was hidden in the store. No evidence of a bomb was found by firemen and the store resumed normal service at 1 p.m.

A petition demanding a police investigation of the $3 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons, but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 166 N. Kilsen Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kilsen Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the allegedly obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the $3 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the $3 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

New Lighting System Is Eyed

A new lighting system for the Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High School should be "installed and operating by March 15," according to James Johnson, principal of the Dist. 21 school.

The Dist. 21 school board awarded a contract for $3,000 to Johnson Electric Co. to install two strings of overhead lights. Each string will consist of 30 100-watt bulbs with filters to produce various colors. The lighting system will also have a dimmer switch to control the intensity of the lights.

Johnson said the money for the work will come from the Holmes PTA and the school's activity fund.

The first play to be performed using the new lighting system will be "Seven Keys to Baldpate" by George M. Cohan. The play is scheduled to be produced March 18 and 19, Johnson said.

The current stage lighting consists of two spotlights and overhead incandescent light fixtures.

Dist. 21 Orchestra To Play In Urbana

The School Dist. 21 Concert Orchestra has been chosen as one of five orchestras in the state to play at the University of Illinois Orchestra Consortium next Saturday in Champaign-Urbana.

The orchestra, conducted by Thomas Hageman, is made up of 68 students from all schools in the district.

Dist. 21 musicians will play at 10:45 a.m. at the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts located on the University campus.

Included in their selections are "Music for the Royal Fireworks" by Handel and two movements from "Pictures at an Exhibition" by Musorgski.

Performances of the five participating orchestras will be critiqued and videotaped by members of the University's School of Music.

Following the performance, the Dist. 21 students will tour the campus and have lunch at the Illini Union.

Honor Roll Listed

The following students have been named to the seventh grade honor roll for the second grading period at Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling:

Leah Lenz, Carl Schrevers, Shirley Raupp, Mary Meyer, Mark Engaltheier, Lynn Edens, Denise Lee, Kim Loney, Jenny Franklin, Sandy Anderson, Mike Moore, Pam Kaick.

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the $3 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons, but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 166 N. Kilsen Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kilsen Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the allegedly obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the $3 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the $3 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

Armstrong's Record Attacked

BGA Party OKs Slate Of 6

The Buffalo Grove Alliance (BGA) approved a slate of six candidates for the April 26, village election in a meeting that was punctuated by a series of personal attacks on the man who was selected to run for president.

Gary Armstrong, currently a village board member, was selected as the BGA's candidate for village president.

At their 2 1/2-hour meeting in the James Fenimore Cooper School Friday night, BGA members also selected five other candidates for village office.

Others named were Randall Rathjen, James Shirley and Edward Osmon, for four-year trustee terms; Charles Vogt for a two-year term as trustee; Verna Clayton for village clerk, and Joseph Settnani for park commissioner.

A total of 12 potential candidates spoke at the meeting. Each was allowed four minutes, followed by a question and answer period.

OTHERS SEEKING to be endorsed or slated for president were Gordon Tierney, Kenneth Felten, and Rathjen. In their speeches, both Tierney and Felten blasted Armstrong.

Felten said it would be "a mistake to slate Armstrong and a disaster if he is elected." Felten called Armstrong a "do-nothing" trustee and attacked him on the grounds that he has failed to do anything as chairman of the public relations committee.

Tierney called Armstrong "the most pathetic member of the village board."

"I wouldn't vote for him as dog catcher," he declared.

Alan Thorud, also a trustee, who was seeking alliance endorsement for re-election, said, "Armstrong is not the man for the job, based on his past record."

When asked after the meeting to explain his remarks, Felten only repeated that it would be "a disaster if Armstrong were elected," and could give no other reason.

FELTEN ALSO said he wanted to make it clear that he was not seeking a position on the alliance slate but wanted to speak against Armstrong.

Both Felten and Thorud said they were told by the alliance that the group was considering endorsing a number of candidates instead of formulating a slate. This, they said, prompted them to appear before the membership Friday.

However when they found out that the alliance was only interested in making a slate, they decided to launch their personal attacks against Armstrong, the pair indicated.

When Armstrong had his chance to speak, he defended himself by saying that his work on the public relations committee "has not been effective as it could be," but added that a village newsletter will be mailed to residents in the near future.

Armstrong said he decided to run for president to "lead and unify the village in the next four years."

He said the village is split into factions, centering on the various homeowner groups in the several subdivisions in the village.

"There is a complete lack of faith and confidence in the present administration.

The village board under Donald Thompson (village president) has alienated the citizens of Buffalo Grove. I want to unify and direct the energy of all the homeowner groups and put it to constructive use," Armstrong said.

Thumbnail Sketches Of BGA Candidates

Here are brief descriptions of the candidates slated by the Buffalo Grove Alliance at the group's meeting Friday night.

President: Gary Armstrong. Armstrong lives at 274 Timberhill Rd, is married and has three children. He was graduated from Princeton University and has a master's degree in business administration from the University of Chicago.

He has been employed for 16 years with Rand-McNally and Co., a printing and publishing firm. He was elected to the village board in 1969.

Trustee: Randall Rathjen. Rathjen lives at 940 Beechwood Rd., is married and has three children. He holds four degrees, including a Ph. D. in geography from Michigan State University. He has lived in the village two years.

Trustee: James Shirley. Shirley, 35, lives at 941 Indian Spring Ln., is married and has two children. He graduated from Southern Illinois University and works as controller for a subsidiary of the Times-Mirror Publishing Co. He is the current president of the Strathmore Homeowners Association and has lived in the village two years.

Trustee: Edward Osmon. Osmon, 35, lives in the original section of Buffalo Grove, is married and has five children. Osmon attended Schurz High School in Chicago and continued his education at Wright Junior College, also in Chicago. He has lived in the village six years and is a sales manager for a heating and air conditioning firm in Chicago.

Trustee: Charles Vogt. Vogt 36, lives at 172 Downing Rd., is married and has three children. He graduated from Iowa State University in industrial engineering. He works for a management consulting firm and has lived in the village three years.

Village Clerk: Mrs. Verna Clayton. Mrs. Clayton lives with her husband and two children at 911 Twisted Oak Ln. She graduated from Oklahoma City High School and attended Oklahoma State University. She has worked as a secretary for several years and is chairman of the Lake County Schools Committee for the Strathmore Homeowners Association.

Park Commissioner: Joseph Settnani. Settnani, 43, lives at 470 Springdale Ln., is married and has nine children. He has a degree in political science from Syracuse University and has worked for the last 13 years for Avon Products as supervisor of engineering. Settnani has lived in Buffalo Grove two years.

Commission Members To Be Named

Four members will be appointed tonight to the newly-created Buffalo Grove Civil Defense Commission.

Village trustees voted last Monday to establish the commission. After the vote, Donald Thompson, village president, said that he would appoint four members to the commission at the next village board meeting.

The commission is to have five members. The fifth one will be appointed later.

The commission will assume the duties that had been exercised by the village civil defense director. No one has held that post since Richard Decker was fired as village manager last year. He also held the civil defense post.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter applied for the job last December. The village trustees then decided to begin interviewing village residents who might be interested in the post.

When several residents applied, Thompson said that the trustees began to consider the possibility of a commission so that several qualified residents of the village could help direct civil defense work.

According to the ordinance creating the commission, its duties are "to prevent, minimize, repair and alleviate injury or damage resulting from disaster caused by enemy attack, sabotage or other hostile action, or natural causes."

Ill Wind Here Blows No Good

A wet and windy blast of winter weather caused discomfort to Wheeling and Buffalo Grove residents last week.

In Wheeling, water and later ice, led to 11 calls to police for motorist assistance Thursday, and one resident, Kurt Sandig, of 305 S. Wheeling Ave. reported a flooded basement to police. There was also flooding of some streets in the village.

Police also removed a sign which blew down in the 300 block of west Dundee Road.

IN BUFFALO GROVE, high winds activated the burglar alarm at the Elm Farm Food Store in the Buffalo Grove Mall about 5 a.m. Friday morning. Shortly after midnight Friday the wind blew down a power line to a farm house on Arlington Heights Road.

Throughout the day Friday police received reports of garbage cans blowing about in the village.

A small amount of debris was blown from the Arlington Heights village dump on Nichols Road and was caught on fences near the area. The dump was not operating Friday afternoon.

A DENTIST'S work in preventing tooth decay was highlighted for first graders at Mark Twain School in Wheeling last week. Dr. Gerald Reed, a Wheeling dentist, spoke to the children and answered questions about his work. His visit was made in connection with the ABLE program operating this year at Twain and at Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling and Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove.

Field Students Start Bowling Competition

Fifth and sixth graders at Eugene Field School in Wheeling have started bowling each Monday after school at the Rose Bowl in Buffalo Grove. The girls' team, the Brentons Bulls, is vying for first place in the bowling sessions against the boys' team, the Flub-a-Dubs.

High team so far in the competition is the Flub-a-Dubs, with an 804 two-game total. Individual bowlers with the highest scores so far are Rick Abel with 141 and Katrina Van Deine with a score of 113. The students are supervised by Field teachers.

Students Get Glimpse Of Working World

by SUE JACOBSON

Glimpses into the adult working world are being offered to school children in Buffalo Grove and Wheeling this year under a unique new project conducted in connection with the Northern Illinois University.

The project is called ABLE, which stands for Authentic Basic Life-Centered Education. In more simple terms, it seeks to teach children the three R's by having people tell them about their occupations.

The project is underway in several classes at Booth Tarkington and Mark Twain schools in Wheeling and at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove.

"The theory is to eventually teach children everything through outside contact with the working world," explained Tarkington fifth grade teacher Wayne Reimer who is working with the program. "It may take years and years of work and an extremely creative teacher to do this."

THE EXPERIENCES that the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove teachers have with ABLE this year will be used by Walter Wernick, NIU project director, to formulate a model ABLE program for all schools in the state. Wernick has a five-year grant from the state Division of Vocational and Technical Education to research his theory. Schools in Mundelein and DeKalb are also using ABLE this year.

Fifth graders at Tarkington have had visits from a telephone company employee, a florist and several of the students' parents.

The florist's visit was used to teach a lesson in artistic balance.

Reimer said, "The florist talked about balance in flower arranging and the teacher used what she said to teach the children about balance in painting pictures."

A first grade class at Tarkington is lesson on addition and subtraction, by Mrs. Nancy Devries, took her class to visit a local sausage maker. Then she connected the visit with an arithmetic lesson on addition and subtraction, by having the children add and subtract using sausages.

REIMER SEES several advantages to the ABLE concept.

"It's tremendous in vocabulary building. The occupational words they pick up are ones they might not otherwise come in contact with. And the speakers bring to the classroom a degree of relevancy to vocations that just can't be found in textbooks alone," he said. "It develops in the children a wholesome attitude toward all types of work."

The disadvantages are that "it's time-consuming. It takes a great deal of time for the teacher to develop an ABLE unit. And some of the adult speakers seem to have difficulty communicating with the students," Reimer said.

Students at Twain School have developed interviewing skills by talking to the school's personnel, a pet shop employee, a computer programmer, a dentist and a dental hygienist about their professions. Several of the classes have also visited local factories.

"It's a more realistic way to approach education," commented Twain teacher Heidi Coagan.

MISS COUGAN and her fourth graders recently completed a unit on Switzerland by making Swiss murals in art; studying Swiss government and geography in social studies, and learning to yodel in music. They topped off the unit with a Swiss

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 2:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardians to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Tuscania lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 370 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

chocolate fondue party. The students received a math lesson too, since they purchased the ingredients for the party and made the fondue rigot in class. The entire unit was taught without any textbooks.

Miss Cougan plans to teach a similar unit on Spain and hopes to bring in a flamenco dancer to talk to her students in connection with the unit.

ABLE "free the teacher from the textbook and lets her correlate her subjects to something meaningful in the world," said Twain principal Dennis Carpenter. "I hate to use an overworked word, but it's relevant. It gets the kids involved. It's a change from the everyday routine."

Praise for the ABLE project has also come from teachers involved with the program at Willow Grove School.

"IT TAKES TIME, but it's worthwhile and a more interesting way of teaching," said first grade teacher Mrs. Virginia Weston. "But I do think there are some occupations which are too difficult for children in the younger grade levels to understand."

First and second graders have participated in such activities as interviewing employees of Long Grove shops, talking to firemen, visiting a candy shop and a local farm, and interviewing the school staff about their jobs.

Billboard For School Is Urged

A 24-foot free-standing billboard to announce high school and community events has been proposed for Wheeling High School.

According to Frank Bohac, assistant principal at Wheeling, the cost of the billboard would be shared by the school, the Wheeling Park District, the Jaycees, and the Wheeling High School Sports Club.

Bohac said he also hoped that the Chamber of Commerce would contribute money.

It is estimated that the billboard will cost about $6,000. A drawing of the billboard was presented to the Wheeling Park Board Thursday night. However, the board did not act on the request for money.

The drawing shows the billboard in the shape of an arch with a large area in the middle where information about events could be posted, in the same manner in which movies are announced on theater marquees. It would be located along Rte. 83.

However, it appears that a variation in the village sign ordinance would have to be obtained to erect the sign. The current ordinance limits the height of signs and billboards to 22 feet.

Fourth Graders Present Play

A play about the life of George Washington was recently given by a fourth grade class at Louise May Alcott School in Buffalo Grove.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 225 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 20 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7857, according to Supt. James Ertvi. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 60 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team.

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 292 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teachers' Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Holiday Inn, 1000 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,600.

Other nearby teachers associations are reported to have offered support to the striking teachers, but only one of these groups, from DuPage, was seen picketing Saturday. If no settlement is reached by tonight, the board of education is expected to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 2125 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Noncertified personnel have apparently not been involved in the strike. Although they were asked to honor picket lines, most of them reported to work Friday, according to the administration.

HOT LUNCH LINES formed for the first time last week at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove. On Wednesday, the school opened its doors to some 500 elementary school children in Dist. 96. Waiting in line to receive a lunch is Mary Kay Weirich. The opening of Willow Grove School meant the end of double shifts in Dist. 96. The double shifts had been in effect since last September in the district.

Dist. 23 Issues Beaten

Defeat of the School Dist. 23 referendum Saturday probably will result in cutbacks in the education program, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky.

District voters Saturday turned down two proposed tax hikes and a special tax levy included in the referendum were proposals to raise the education fund tax from $1.60 to $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, and the building fund tax from $2.25 to $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation. If approved, the two tax hikes would have together added $128,120 to the $1.7 million budget.

The district also proposed a special tax levy in the referendum to repay an interest-free loan from the state for construction of a new school in Arlington Heights. According to Grodsky, the levy would have cost a resident with a home assessed at $10,000 approximately $16 a year.

OF A TOTAL of 1,004 ballots cast, each of the three proposals was defeated by a margin of about 130 votes. The education fund tax hike was defeated by a vote of 602 to 475. A vote of 685 to 473 defeated the building fund tax hike. The special levy was defeated 603 to 473.

The same three proposals were defeated in a referendum last October by a narrower margin. However, at that time, the voters authorized a bond sale of $1.2 million for improvements and additions to existing schools. Approximately 1,364 voters turned out for the October referendum.

Grodsky said he did not know if the district will present the same three proposals to the voters again this year. "That decision will be made by the school board. The board is meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School to canvass the votes."

"I plan to recommend to the board that cuts be made in the 1971-72 budget," said Grodsky. "These cuts could go into effect as early as July, because we may not be able to operate the summer school program this year."

"If our tax rates are not increased by the fall of 1972, we may also have to go on double shifts in some of our schools," said Grodsky.

"I am disappointed that our proposals were defeated because the children are the ones who will really be hurt. But if this is what the parents and the community want, this is what we will give them."

"In the future we will probably have to rely on the new residents to pass referenda, because the people living here now apparently don't care," added Grodsky.

Honor Students At London Listed

Bomb Threat Clears Shoppers At K Mart

Shoppers and employees at the K Mart Discount Store at 780 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, were cleared from the store while Wheeling firemen investigated a false bomb threat.

Firemen were called to the store shortly after noon Thursday. An anonymous caller had told store personnel that a bomb was hidden in the store. No evidence of a bomb was found by firemen and the store resumed normal service at 1 p.m.

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the 53 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 108 N. Kilsen Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kilsen Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the alleged obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the 53 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

New Lighting System Is Eyed

A new lighting system for the Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High School should be "installed and operating by March 15," according to James Johnson, principal of the Dist. 21 school.

The Dist. 21 school board awarded a contract for $3,000 to Johnson Electric Co. to install two strings of overhead lights. Each string will consist of 30 100-watt bulbs with filters to produce various colors. The lighting system will also have a dimmer switch to control the intensity of the lights.

Johnson said the money for the work will come from the Holmes PTA and the school's activity fund.

The first play to be performed using the new lighting system will be "Seven Keys to Baldpate" by George M. Cohan. The play is scheduled to be produced March 18 and 19, Johnson said.

The current stage lighting consists of two spotlights and overhead incandescent light fixtures.

Dist. 21 Orchestra To Play In Urbana

The School Dist. 21 Concert Orchestra has been chosen as one of five orchestras in the state to play at the University of Illinois Orchestra Consortium next Saturday in Champaign-Urbana.

The orchestra, conducted by Thomas Hageman, is made up of 68 students from all schools in the district.

Dist. 21 musicians will play at 10:45 a.m. at the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts located on the University campus.

Included in their selections are "Music for the Royal Fireworks" by Handel and two movements from "Pictures at an Exhibition" by Musorgski.

Performances of the five participating orchestras will be critiqued and videotaped by members of the University's School of Music.

Fund Request For Bike Path Is Turned Down

A review board of the Illinois Department of Conservation has turned down an application by the Palatine Park District for a $76,000 grant to build a bicycle path through Palatine.

The reason given by the department for turning down the application was that its primary emphasis is currently on land acquisition rather than land development.

Had the department approved the application, the park district could have received grant money through the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR) of the U.S. Dept. of Interior. Now, the district will have to look elsewhere for funding.

Park officials said they will not give up in getting an outside source to finance the bike path. Park attorney Roger Bjork said the park district may apply with the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development next.

PARK OFFICIALS said the district doesn't have the funds to pay for the entire cost of the bike path. It was suggested that when all other avenues of finance are exhausted, the path could be paid for through a referendum.

It has been estimated that the bike path will cost $153,750 to build.

When built, the path will run through Palatine from Palatine Road at Salt Creek to Camp Reiburg. It will run along the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way, through the Palatine Hills Golf Course and through Lake Park Estates.

PARK OFFICIALS said they expected the rejection from the department of conservation. Park District director Rex McMorris said the decision was anticipated to the degree that if the grant was approved, park officials would have been surprised.

He added that the park board was so busy trying to take the first step to getting Dept. of Interior funding that it had not considered a second step.

A second step will be discussed at Tuesday's park board meeting. The Dept. of Housing and Urban Development has been suggested as the next agency to contact for funding.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering

by JUDY MEHL
Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 235 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 30 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7837, according to Supt. James Ertvi. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 80 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team.

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 282 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teacher's Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Hallday Inn, 1800 Buena Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,600.

Other nearby teachers associations are reported to have offered support to the striking teachers, but only one of those groups, from DuPage, was seen picketing Saturday. If no settlement is reached by tonight, the board of education is expected to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 3123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Noncertified personnel have apparently not been involved in the strike. Although they were asked to honor picket lines, most of them reported to work Friday, according to the administration.

HENRY KRUGER, 43 N. Linden, Palatine was one of many residents who did not drain properly last Friday and left lawns and driveways submerged.

Plans In Works Road Improvement

Plans for a third major roadways improvement in Palatine are in the making.

Local government officials are preparing final plans to widen and upgrade Colfax Street from Smith to Quentin Road.

Other major changes in store for village motorists include the state's proposed improvements for U.S. 14 and Palatine Road.

Tonight, the village board will take action to submit the Colfax Street plans to state officials for approval of motor fuel tax funds which may be used to finance the $1.3 million project.

Village Mgr. Barton G. Braun said the project will be financed by special assessment through a direct public benefit tax, or by using MFT monies.

Basically, Colfax Street will be widened from two to four lanes. Larger storm sewers will be installed to accommodate the extra runoff the additional pavement will cause. And, some 36 new street lights will be erected.

IT IS EXPECTED that 35 to 50 per cent of the cost of this total project will be paid for out of special assessment, he added.

In about one month, the board should take steps to set a public hearing date on the proposal. After that, trustees will vote on the issue, and if approved, construction should be underway in 1971.

Specifically, Colfax will be widened to four lanes along a 4,750 foot strip located between Smith and Quentin.

The purpose of the project is to accommodate projected traffic volume for that area. Currently, about 8,000 cars a day use this roadway. Braun said time alone will bring heavier traffic into the area, but the new transportation center and drive-in bank at the Colfax-Smith corner will put an added burden on the existing street.

By spring, the new train depot will be opened and the commuter parking lot located due east of it will be a prime source of additional traffic.

From Smith Street to a point west of Carter Street Apartments, there will also be a center median which will prohibit all left turns, for example, in and out of Carter onto Colfax.

"THE PURPOSE OF the medians is to provide a protected left turn bay and maintain an even four-lane traffic flow," Braun said.

VIP Political Platform Much Like GOP 1967 Plan

The 1971 political platform presented at the Village Incumbent Party's (VIP's) first general membership meeting Monday night is almost identical to the platform the VIP candidates ran on in 1967 under the GOP label.

Incumbent trustees and VIP candidates Clay Brown, Tom Kearns and Fred Zajonc formed their own independent party last December after Kearns and Brown were ousted by the GOP and Zajonc won Republican backing but refused it.

In 1967, however, the threesome ran on a successful Republican ticket. This April 20, they will oppose a new GOP slate composed of Merwin Soper, Dennis Collins and Donald Phares.

The platform presented last week contained the same following five points as did the 1967 platform: efficiency and economy in local government, respect for law and order, local government meets local needs, respect and concern for the individual and representative government.

TERRY LEIGHTY, VIP campaign manager and village trustee, said recent events surrounding the GOP slating two months ago and the formation of the VIP led to the addition of two more points on the 1971 platform.

They are: the method of candidate selection — in which the VIP supports conventions over slating candidate selection — and the premise that the "people come before the party."

He said that during the next few weeks the VIP will issue a statement showing the accomplishments of their candidates and how these accomplishments have adhered closely to this platform during the last four years.

On Feb. 15 the VIP organizational team will hold another meeting. A time and place is forthcoming, as are other open meetings in the weeks ahead, Leighty said.

As of Friday, the Palatine Township Republican Organization has yet to issue any platform statement.

Breakdown Cuts Power In Suburbs

Thousands of homes in the Northwest suburbs were without electricity for a time Friday because of breakdowns in Commonwealth Edison Co. equipment.

According to Paul Parker, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, a faulty circuit breaker left 4,000 homes without power in the northwest section of Palatine for several hours early Friday. In Schaumburg near Golf and Roselle Roads 125 homes were without electricity because of a faulty wire connection.

High winds reaching 30 miles per hour caused some problems but "most were minor, affecting two or three households at a time and scattered over the Northwest suburban area," Parker said. He said most of the trouble was caused by blown off tree limbs and ice pulling down the wires.

Parker said no home was without electricity for more than two hours. By 2 p.m. Friday Parker said repairs were "beginning to get caught up." Additional crews had been on duty Thursday night in anticipation of the high winds.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 2:04 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians. "If we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Tuscan lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 28 persons, injured 370 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

Pat Ahern

Little City is a residential community for the mentally retarded child. It is Little City's objective to guide and enrich the retarded's experience so that through the development of attitudes, understandings and skills, he may be better able to become a contributing member of society.

Sister Jane Kanaly, a member of the School Sisters of St. Francis, began working as a music therapist at Little City in September, 1968. She wears lay clothes; not the religious garb of her order. Sister Jane was professionally trained as a music therapist before becoming a sister. When the order announced the sisters could apply for their own positions she asked for an opening as a music therapist. She drives from an apartment in Chicago which she shares with sisters who teach at Alvernia High School.

Primarily she uses music as a tool to bring about desired behavioral changes. Music activities are planned for needed kinesthetic development, for growth in understanding general concepts, and for exposure to vocal and instrumental experiences.

Music at Little City is used as an incentive to encourage good behavior. A group of pre-adolescents can participate in a rock band only if they have shown improvement in their behavior. Music lessons are given to selected students only if they have maintained overall acceptable behavior.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS can rehearse with another band only if they have maintained acceptable grooming. One boy has a bi-weekly lesson if he has not exhibited aggressive behavior toward other students in his cottage. (Residents live in cottages in groups to maintain a family atmosphere.)

Four individual sessions and eleven group sessions are structured to bring about desired behavioral changes during the class period itself. Private lessons are used to help increase the student's ability to obey commands. Group activities are primarily designed to assist residents in learning to work together for shared goals.

Music therapy goals are also met in both individual and group activities. Increased muscular dexterity is the goal of piano lessons for one blind girl. For a polio victim the goal is realized by fingers stretching for guitar chords, and for several cerebral palsied students it is found in a variety of large muscular actions, such as hitting a make-shift gong.

Young residents need to learn to maintain eye contact, follow visual and verbal instructions, identify body parts, develop concepts of directionality, and learn to count. Action songs, original lyrics and records are used to reinforce these concepts.

A variety of vocal, instrumental, and dance experiences are provided through the assistance of volunteers and from Harper College student volunteers.

MUSIC THERAPY activities, according to Sister Jane, extend from individual lessons to a chorus of 26 members. Several groups of about 13 each are formed for creative dance, percussion ensemble, and a chorus.

In response to questions asked about Little City, Little City accepts the mentally retarded child of either sex. There are no geographic limitations and children of all races and religions are accepted.

Generally, children six years and over are eligible for placement. There is no upper age limit; however, there must be a group in which the child can function. Little City can provide life-time placement.

There is no fixed tuition rate. The cost is individually determined with the parent and Little City's admissions committee.

Little City is continually attempting to expand its facilities but there are approximately 600 applications on the active waiting list. The applications are not given rank by date of request. Selection is made on the basis of which child best fits into the opening which occurs.

If you are interested in placing a child at Little City, the first step is to request pre-admission forms. You may phone 358-5510 or write Social Service Department, Little City, Palatine.

Talk Slated On Black Culture

Miss Val Gray, head of the Afro-American Cultural Studies Program at the University of Illinois, Urbana, will appear before a student assembly at Fremd High School Tuesday.

She will speak on black culture and black history.

The assembly will be for juniors and seniors at Fremd and will begin at 9:45 a.m. It will be held in the school's gymnasium.

Miss Gray's talk replaces the Peace Corp assembly originally set for Tuesday. The assembly was postponed because a representative of the Peace Corp was not available for that day.

Miss Gray is noted for her work in dramatics. She has delivered dramatic concerts in recent years in Newark, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. She has appeared locally on the campuses of Wheaton College, the University of Chicago and University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus.

She was in the play "Negritude," which was presented in 1966 on WTTW, channel 11. She has also been a frequent guest on WMAQ-AM. Most recently, Miss Gray appeared in the movie "Medium Cool."

Miss Val Gray

Miss Gray received her education at Wilson Jr. College of Chicago. At college, she studied art and researched black history.

Fremd's Committee of the American Studies Program had decided last year to incorporate minority culture into its program, and has been trying to get Miss Gray to appear at an assembly for some time.

Fremd's juniors and seniors are taking part in the school American Studies Program.

Friday Is Deadline To File For City Races

Persons interested in becoming candidates for the nine Rolling Meadows city positions open in the coming election have until Friday to turn in petitions at city hall.

Facing election April 20, will be mayor, city treasurer and city clerk, along with six alderman positions. Each of the five city wards have one alderman job open, except ward No. 1 that has both alderman positions facing election.

In order to become a candidate, one must secure names of Rolling Meadows residents on a petition. The mayor, city treasurer and city clerk candidates need at least 136 persons and not more than 217 to sign each of their petitions.

ALDERMEN NEED the signatures of between five per cent and eight per cent of the registered voters in their ward. Interested candidates will need between 20 and 32 signatures in ward one; between 36 and 58 in ward two; between 25 and 40 in ward three; between 34 and 45 in ward four; between 21 and 33 in ward five.

At present only the Citizens Action Party has filed for the nine posts. The slate includes Roland Meyer, for mayor; Robert Cole, for city treasurer, and Mrs. Eileen Kornatz, for city clerk. Aldermen candidates include Merrill Wuerch and Thomas Scanlan, ward one; William Ahrens, ward two; John T. Rock, ward three; Richard Schar, ward four; Kenneth Retzke, ward five.

All the candidates are incumbents except Mrs. Kornatz, John T. Rock, and Richard Schar.

Kids Develop 'Art Taste'

by MARGE FERROLI

Art appreciation is like coffee — you have to develop a taste for it before you can enjoy it.

The earlier people begin to learn about art and art forms, the quicker an appreciation for it can be developed. Students at Jane Addams School in Palatine have been getting an early start on appreciating art since fall.

Once a month, members of the school PTA's cultural arts committee visit each classroom and make short presentations of a copy of masterpiece art. The paintings represent a variety of art styles of differing period.

AFTER A BRIEF explanation of the background of the artist and the work of art itself, the "picture lady," as the PTA representative is called, devotes the remainder of the time to the interpretations of the art by the students.

More simplified paintings, often with much color, are used in presentations for primary grades, according to Mrs. Barbara Axelsson, chairman of the PTA program. Historical paintings and more interpretative styled art is used for higher grades from which students discuss moods and movement of lines.

A different painting is presented each month and is left in the classroom for the next few weeks for further discussion. Individual teachers often follow up the picture lady's presentation with art reference material on the artist or painting shown.

The Jane Addams PTA has purchased 65 paintings for the program which are kept in the school library. The prints, which are 11 by 14-inch laminated reproductions from the National Gallery in Washington, D. C., are circulated to students through the library in the same way books are circulated.

Although some initial questioning of the students is needed to get discussion moving during a picture-lady session, it doesn't take much to get the students into open conversation, Mrs. Axelsson said. Younger children usually respond to color in the picture or other physical aspects while older students consider more technical elements of the paintings.

NINE WOMEN CURRENTLY volunteer their time in the Jane Addams School program and are assigned regular classrooms for their monthly presentations. No previous art experience is needed for a picture lady, although a small amount of research on the paintings and artists is necessary each month.

There is no emphasis on the educational value of the program. Rather, paintings are introduced to the students to instill a natural response to the art forms, something which is instrumental for the beginning of an appreciation of the cultural arts.

Sacred Heart Slates Mason Proffit Group

A dance has been planned by the Joint for Feb. 13 at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows.

Featured at the dance will be the music of Mason Proffit and the Sunrise Waters, a well-known rock group.

Tickets to the dance will cost $2 to joint members and $2.50 to non-members. Tickets may be purchased at the door. The dance will run from 7:30 to 11 p.m.

Chaperones are needed for this dance. Any parent who would like to volunteer as a chaperone should call Mrs. Lorraine LaSua at 358-3970.

Blue And Gold Cub Banquet Set Today

Cub Scout Pack 132 of Palatine will hold its annual Blue and Gold Banquet today at 7 p.m. in Hackney's Alpine House, northwest of Palatine.

This year's banquet will be a father and son activity. The banquet will consist of hamburger with all the trimmings, beverage and a dessert.

After eating, the fathers and sons will view films of the Chicago Bears and last year's Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge.

Driver Is Ticketed In Accident

State Police have issued a ticket to one of the drivers involved in an auto collision Thursday in North Palatine which seriously injured one man.

A ticket was issued to James M. Hieber, 27, of Skokie for disobeying a traffic signal. Hieber will appear in Cook County Traffic Court in Mount Prospect on March 8.

Trooper Rick Johnson, who investigated the accident, said Hieber failed to stop for a red light, colliding with another truck driven by John Gillespie, of Wonder Lake. Gillespie is still in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital where he was taken after the accident.

Police estimated the damage of Gillespie's truck at $1,000. While Gillespie's truck was being towed away from the scene of the accident, an acetylene tank in the rear of the truck caught fire and exploded in Arlington Heights.

Answering the fire call was the Arlington Heights Fire Department, but four more acetylene tanks exploded before the fire was extinguished, Johnson said. Neither Hieber nor the passenger in his truck, Edward Martinez of Waukegan, were injured in the collision.

Strike To Affect All Area Schools

by MARGE FERROLI

It seems to be that time of year again. Teachers and boards of education are beginning to think about the coming year's contracts and what is going to have to be offered to keep both sides happy.

Chicago teachers started the annual event off with their recent strike, and resulting healthy salary increase. Now it has hit suburbia, with Dist. 59 teachers not reporting to work so that negotiations will be held on the 1971-72 school year contracts.

Although a teachers' strike is only affecting one of the many school districts in the Northwest suburban area, what happens at Dist. 59 could easily set a precedent for the rest, including Dist. 15.

Local school district must offer competitive salary schedules and employment benefits in order to continue to provide quality education to their students. If a school district keeps its salaries lower just to economize on the budget, it would be hurting itself in the long run when the best qualified teachers find jobs elsewhere.

A salary increase does not seem to be pay than surrounding school districts and there already receive somewhat higher are more concerned with limiting the class sizes and increasing benefits for extra teaching duties.

No matter what the Dist. 59 teachers and board of education agree on, the final settlement is going to have an influence on the coming teacher-board negotiations of most other school districts.

For the past several years, salaries for Dist. 15 teachers have increased steadily, as have the number of employment benefits provided. Although teacher board relations in Dist. 15 are on much better and more solid ground than in Dist. 59, proportionate yearly increases, or at least some policy changes, can be anticipated before Dist. 15 teachers agree to the coming year's contract.

In an effort to demonstrate teacher unity, representatives of the teachers of most school districts in the area supported the Dist. 59 strike. This support included endorsement by Dist. 15 teacher representatives.

Officials at Dist. 15 better keep a watchful eye on Dist. 59 activities. If such teacher support for the strike doesn't mean anything to them, then they may be in for a surprise when their turn comes around for negotiations.

Heise Chairman Of 'Seal' Drive

William W. Heise Jr., will again serve as Palatine community chairman for the 1971 Easter Seal campaign starting next month.

Heise, the executive vice president of Palatine Savings and Loan, has served in this position each year for nearly a decade.

As community chairman, Heise will handle the contributions brought to him by volunteers at the end of the campaign. He will also be the official Palatine representative with the Chicago area time representative with the Chicago area Easter Seal campaign.

Currently, volunteer workers are being recruited locally by Easter Seals. During the campaign, volunteers will deliver Easter Seals to their neighbors requesting contributions.

This year's campaign begins March 1 and will end on April 11, Easter Sunday. The Easter Seal Society has been aiding crippled children and handicapped adults in the Chicago area for 34 years.

Phosphate Ban Is Considered By City Council

An ordinance to ban detergents containing phosphates from the shelves of Rolling Meadows grocers is being considered by members of the city council.

Ald. James Huddleston told the ordinance and judiciary committee this week that he would recommend to the health committee that a phosphate ordinance be considered.

In October, of last year, the Chicago City Council passed a precedent-setting ordinance to ban the sale of all detergents containing more than 8.7 per cent phosphorus. This ordinance became effective in October, but a long range plan to completely eliminate phosphates in Chicago will become effective June 30, 1972.

Although Huddleston said the issue will be considered by the health committee, it may be a long time before Rolling Meadows takes a position against phosphate detergents.

JOHN SCHULTZ, city health officer, said Rolling Meadows is waiting to see what happens in Chicago. Schultz voiced the opinion that the entire metropolitan area will receive phosphate free detergents, if the Chicago ban is effective. "I don't think we will get one product and Chicago another," Schultz said.

He also said that there is a Supreme Court case in Akron, Ohio, that questions the enforcement of such a phosphate ordinance.

A major drawback to a phosphate ordinance in Rolling Meadows would be its enforcement, Schultz said. The city does not have a full-time health officer and only a part-time sanitarian.

There has been talk however, in recent Rolling Meadows committee meetings of the possibility of employing a full-time sanitarian, to more fully enforce local health rules. Tickets have been printed for the sanitarian to use to enforce city health ordinances.

The Rolling Meadows City Council passed a resolution in November that urged elected representatives to vote to restrict further pollution of the environment, including phosphates. It was decided at that time that a local enforcement of a pollution ordinance was impossible.

PALATINE AND Arlington Heights have already discussed the issue of pollution, and are considering ordinances to fight the problems, including bans on detergents containing phosphates.

Phosphorous, one of the plant nutrients which nourishes algae and causes the deterioration of water quality, became a center of controversy by manufacturers, grocery stores, local municipalities and the federal government last year. The state has not passed legislation against detergents containing phosphates.

He and other students at the school are shown masterpieces of art each month for class interpretation and art appreciation. See related story on page 3.

Two Petitions Picked Up For Dist. 15 School Board

Two petitions for candidacy in the Elementary School Dist. 15 board of education election April 10 have been picked up at the district administration building.

Incumbents Howard Meadors and Leland "Bud" Gibbs have taken petitions. The first date for filing the petitions for the election is Feb. 24.

Although Meadors has not declared his candidacy, "I've pretty much decided that I'll run," he said. If elected, Meadors would be starting his sixth term as a Dist. 15 board member.

Meadors is a partner of Hewitt Associates of Libertyville, a firm of actuaries and consultants on employee benefits programs. He and his family live in Inverness.

Gibbs has previously announced his candidacy for a two-year term on the board. Gibbs was appointed by the board last year to fill the vacancy of Russell E. Thome of Palatine. He said he will seek election to the position April 10.

Gibbs served on the board from 1967 to 1970, but was defeated in his bid for re-election last year.

by JUDY MEHL
Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 228 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 20 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7837, according to Supt. James Ervitt. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 60 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been

Breakdown Cuts Power In Suburbs

Thousands of homes in the Northwest suburbs were without electricity for a time Friday because of breakdowns in Commonwealth Edison Co. equipment.

According to Paul Parker, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, a faulty circuit breaker left 4,000 homes without power in the northwest section of Palatine for several hours early Friday. In Schaumburg near Golf and Roselle Roads 125 homes were without electricity because of a faulty wire connection.

High winds reaching 30 miles per hour caused some problems but "most were minor, affecting two or three households at a time and scattered over the Northwest suburban area," Parker said. He said most of the trouble was caused by blown off tree limbs and ice pulling down the wires.

Parker said no home was without electricity for more than two hours. By 2 p.m. Friday Parker said repairs were "beginning to get caught up." Additional crews had been on duty Thursday night in anticipation of the high winds.

misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team.

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 292 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teacher's Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Holiday Inn, 1000 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,600.

Other nearby teachers associations are reported to have offered support to the striking teachers, but only one of those groups, from DuPage, was seen picketing Saturday. If no settlement is reached by tonight, the board of education is expected to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Noncertified personnel have apparently not been involved in the strike. Although they were asked to honor picket lines, most of them reported to work Friday, according to the administration.

High Winds Here Do Damage, Send Police On Calls

Roaring winds, with gusts up to 55 miles an hour, damaged property in Rolling Meadows and caused city police to answer numerous burglar alarm calls Friday.

Police answered a burglar alarm at 3 a.m. Friday to find the large front window of Suburban Drugs, in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, blown out by the winds that reached their peak in the early morning hours. Police estimated damage at about $150.

There were other emergency alarm calls during the night, including calls to Topps, Foremost Liquor and Piepenbrink Movers in the city. All proved to be set off by the high winds.

According to officials at Algonquin Park Apartments, a flat roof on one of the two-story apartments was ripped off by the winds. A number of storm windows and doors were shattered at the apartment complex, including the office door.

Augustine Home Interior in the Southland Shopping Center reported the front door of the establishment was torn from its hinges during the height of the wind storm.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, triumphed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Taormina lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 370 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

Tammy Meade

Remember Mrs. Elayne Maraska, the gal who knits hats for the mongoloid children at Dixon State School? Mrs. Maraska sent a total of 110 hats to Dixon since Christmas Eve, thanks to the many people who responded. She now has a very easy pattern for slippers and would be very happy to send the pattern to anyone who would be interested in knitting them. This might be a worthwhile project for a Girl Scout or Campfire Girls Group, as these slippers are straight knitting.

Mrs. Maraska also collects clothing for a mental institution and would be appreciative of any used clothing you might donate for children at the institution.

There are three gals working on this project, Mrs. Dorra Jannotta at 250-3599 and Mrs. Jo Gotham at 250-0883, both from Arlington Heights; and Mrs. Elayne Maraska from Palatine at 358-0880. They have lists of sizes for the different children, so if you'd like a list or want to donate clothes, keep these names handy around spring housecleaning time. You gals who are doing — here is a good place to send those clothes that are now too big for you. They need sizes up to size 26 for some adolescents.

Any groups or individuals who would like to donate comic books, combs, jewelry, or jigsaw puzzles, etc., please contact these girls to make arrangements for getting the items to the institution.

Mrs. Lora Twiss from Rolling Meadows contributed a grand total of twenty-four hats to Dixon in response to Mrs. Maraska's plea. She is now working on the slippers in her spare time. If you have any yarn around the house, perhaps leftover from a Christmas project and you haven't found time to knit, Mrs. Twiss would appreciate the yarn and you would be helping in this very worthwhile cause. Call Mrs. Twiss at 253-5671.

DON'T FORGET to buy your tickets for the Annual Boy's Baseball Dance which will be held at Sacred Heart of Mary High School on Saturday, February 27. Music will be provided by the Moonlight Knights and additional entertainment by the Sharon Kassel School of Dancing. The theme of the dance is "Happiness Is..." There will be an open bar and dancing from 9:00 p.m. - 1:00 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 per person and are available through the following places and individuals: Rolling Meadows Barber Shop, Ron-Mel Card Shop, Plaza Lane Restaurant, Irv Alquist - 255-3652, Tom Waldron - 255-0791, El Berg - 255-7165, Dick Sweeney - 329-8473, Stan Zielinski - 322-1359, and Earl Walter - 255-7831. Tickets are going fast so be sure to order yours.

"FASHIONS FOR Spring, 1971," a pre-Easter Fashion Show will be held on Wednesday, February 17, at 8:00 p.m., VFW Clubhouse, 311 N. Yale in Arlington Heights. This fashion show is sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW and tickets are $1.50 each. By purchasing a ticket you will be helping in the fight against cancer because all proceeds will go to Cancer Research. The fashions will be presented by the Lorraine Ann Shop of Arlington Heights and refreshments be served after the show.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling Ticket Chairman Mrs. Margaret Andrew at 253-8854.

ANOTHER FASHION show will be presented Tuesday evening, February 9, at 8:00 p.m. at Kimball Hill School in the gym. Sponsored by the Kimball Hill PTA, the theme of the fashion show is "Fractured Fashions" presented by Madame CuCur's Fashions. Board members will be modeling at this Mother-Daughter function and there will be a grand prize drawing for mothers. There will also be numerous drawings for the girls. There will be no business meeting but refreshments will be served after the show. It sounds like a hilarious evening is in store for all who attend.

chairman of the School's PTA program presents Gauguin's colorful painting of two Tahitian women swimming.

Kids Develop 'Art Taste'

by MARGE FERROLI

Art appreciation is like coffee — you have to develop a taste for it before you can enjoy it.

The earlier people begin to learn about art and art forms, the quicker an appreciation for it can be developed. Students at Jane Addams School in Palatine have been getting an early start on appreciating art since fall.

Once a month, members of the school PTA's cultural arts committee visit each classroom and make short presentations of a copy of masterpiece art. The paintings represent a variety of art styles of differing period.

Blue And Gold Cub Banquet Set Today

Cub Scout Pack 182 of Palatine will hold its annual Blue and Gold Banquet today at 7 p.m. in Hackney's Alpine House, northwest of Palatine.

This year's banquet will be a father and son activity. The banquet will consist of hamburger with all the trimmings, beverage and a dessert.

Driver Is Ticketed In Accident

State Police have issued a ticket to one of the drivers involved in an auto collision Thursday in North Palatine which seriously injured one man.

A ticket was issued to James M. Heiber, 27, of Skokie for disobeying a traffic signal. Heiber will appear in Cook County Traffic Court in Mount Prospect on March 8.

Trooper Rick Johnson, who investigated the accident, said Heiber failed to stop for a red light, colliding with another truck driven by John Gillespie, of Wonder Lake. Gillespie is still in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital where he was taken after the accident.

Police estimated the damage of Gillespie's truck at $1,000.

While Gillespie's truck was being towed away from the scene of the accident, an acetylene tank in the rear of the truck caught fire and exploded in Arlington Heights.

Talk Slated On Black Culture

Miss Val Gray, head of the Afro-American Cultural Studies Program at the University of Illinois, Urbana, will appear before a student assembly at Fremd High School Tuesday.

She will speak on black culture and black history.

The assembly will be for juniors and seniors at Fremd and will begin at 9:45 a.m. It will be held in the school's gymnasium.

Miss Gray's talk replaces the Peace Corp assembly originally set for Tuesday. The assembly was postponed because a representative of the Peace Corp was not available for that day.

Miss Gray is noted for her work in dramatics. She has delivered dramatic concerts in recent years in Newark, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. She has appeared locally on the campuses of Wheaton College, the University of Chicago and University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus.

She was in the play "Negritude," which was presented in 1966 on WTTW, channel 11. She has also been a frequent guest on WMAQ-AM. Most recently, Miss Gray appeared in the movie "Medium Cool."

Miss Val Gray

Miss Gray received her education at Wilson Jr. College of Chicago. At college, she studied art and researched black history.

Fremd's Committee of the American Studies Program had decided last year to incorporate minority culture into its program, and has been trying to get Miss Gray to appear at an assembly for some time.

Fremd's juniors and seniors are taking part in the school American Studies Program.

Friday Is Deadline To File For City Races

Persons interested in becoming candidates for the nine Rolling Meadows city positions open in the coming election have until Friday to turn in petitions at city hall.

Facing election April 28, will be mayor, city treasurer and city clerk, along with six aldermen positions. Each of the five city wards have one alderman job open, except ward No. 1 that has both aldermen positions facing election.

In order to become a candidate, one must secure names of Rolling Meadows residents on a petition. The mayor, city treasurer and city clerk candidates need at least 136 persons and not more than 217 to sign each of their petitions.

ALDERMEN NEED the signatures of between five per cent and eight per cent of the registered voters in their ward. Interested candidates will need between 20 and 32 signatures in ward one; between 36 and 58 in ward two; between 25 and 40 in ward three; between 34 and 45 in ward 4; between 21 and 33 in ward five.

At present only the Citizens Action Party has filed for the nine posts. The slate includes Roland Meyer, for mayor; Robert Cole, for city treasurer, and Mrs. Eileen Kornatz, for city clerk. Aldermen candidates include Merrill Wuorch and Thomas Scanlan, ward one; William Ahrens, ward two; John T. Rock, ward three; Richard Schar, ward four; Kenneth Reitzke, ward five.

All the candidates are incumbents except Mrs. Kornatz, John T. Rock, and Richard Schar.

Countryside Y Swim Team Wins

Countryside YMCAs girl's swim team overwhelmed the Indian Boundary team in a meet recently.

Sweeping most events, Countryside won by a score of 217 to 132.

There were many winners in the individual events for the Countryside team. The Howland sisters, Cathy and Carol, each won the 50-yard freestyle event in their category. Other 50 yard freestyle winners were Caryl Cammis and Jan Peterson. Mary James won a 25-yard freestyle event.

In the butterfly stroke events, Pam Ratcliff won the 25 yard race. Molly Enright and Sue Enander won 50 yard butterfly events and Cindy Wolfe won a 100 yard butterfly race.

First places were won by Gretchen Fricke and Linda White in their category's 100 yard individual medley event.

Julie Broders, Coleene McGivney, Carla Gormsen, Wendy Basara and Miss Fricke were all victorious in the backstroke events.

In the breaststroke events, firsts were garnered by Mindy Rydin, Marie Spicuzza, Sue Enander, and Pam D'Orio.

Strike To Affect All Area Schools

It seems to be that time of year again. Teachers and boards of education are beginning to think about the coming year's contracts and what is going to have to be offered to keep both sides happy.

Heise Chairman Of 'Seal' Drive

William W. Heise Jr., will again serve as Palatine community chairman for the 1971 Easter Seal campaign starting next month.

Heise, the executive vice president of Palatine Savings and Loan, has served in this position each year for nearly a decade.

As community chairman, Heise will handle the contributions brought to him by volunteers at the end of the campaign. He will also be the official Pal-

time representative with the Chicago area Easter Seal campaign.

Currently, volunteer workers are being recruited locally by Easter Seals. During the campaign, volunteers will deliver Easter Seals to their neighbors requesting contributions.

This year's campaign begins March 1 and will end on April 11, Easter Sunday. The Easter Seal Society has been aiding crippled children and handicapped adults in the Chicago area for 34 years.

Dist. 23 Issues Defeated Again; Cutbacks Due?

Defeat of the School Dist. 23 referendum Saturday probably will result in cutbacks in the education program, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky.

District voters Saturday turned down two proposed tax hikes and a special tax levy included in the referendum were proposals to raise the education fund tax from $1.00 to $1.55 per $100 assessed valuation, and the building fund tax from $.25 to $.375 per $100 assessed valuation. If approved, the two tax hikes would have together added $128,120 to the $1.7 million budget.

The district also proposed a special tax levy in the referendum to repay an interest-free loan from the state for construction of a new school in Arlington Heights. According to Grodsky, the levy would have cost a resident with a home assessed at $10,000 approximately $15 a year.

OF A TOTAL of 1,804 ballots cast, each of the three proposals was defeated by a margin of about 130 votes. The education fund tax hike was defeated by a vote of 602 to 475. A vote of 605 to 473 defeated the building fund tax hike. The special levy was defeated 603 to 473.

The same three proposals were defeated in a referendum last October by a narrower margin. However, at that time, the voters authorized a bond sale of $1.2 million for improvements and additions to existing schools. Approximately 1,304 voters turned out for the October referendum.

Grodsky said he did not know if the district will present the same three proposals to the voters again this year.

Dist. 23 Schools

Dist. 23 schools are Betty Ross School, Douglas MacArthur Junior High School and Anne Sullivan School all at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads; John Muir School on Oak Avenue; and Dwight Eisenhower School on Schoenbeck and Camp McDonald roads.

posals to the voters again this year. "That decision will be made by the school board. The board is meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School to canvass the votes.

"I plan to recommend to the board that cuts be made in the 1971-72 budget," said Grodsky. "These cuts could go into effect as early as July, because we may not be able to operate the summer school program this year.

"If our tax rates are not increased by the fall of 1972, we may also have to go on double shifts in some of our schools," said Grodsky.

"I am disappointed that our proposals were defeated because the children are the ones who will really be hurt. But if this is what the parents and the community want, this is what we will give them."

"In the future we will probably have to rely on the new residents to pass referenda, because the people living here now apparently don't care," added Grodsky.

COLD WEATHER and high winds greeted picketing teachers at Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High School Friday. These teachers, and many of their counterparts at other Dist. 59 schools, went on strike Friday because a settlement on their overall contract has not been reached.

Homeowner Groups Favor Annexation

Preliminary results of polling in the Parkview and Rainbow Ridge homeowner associations show that a majority of residents of those areas favor annexation to Mount Prospect.

The Parkview association represents residents living south of Euclid Avenue and east of Wolf Road in unincorporated Mount Prospect. The Rainbow Ridge association represents residents living east of Lee Street and north of Euclid Avenue in Prospect Heights.

Both associations are members of the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, which is made up of eight associations in Prospect Heights and unincorporated Mount Prospect.

The council has asked all of its members associations to hold meetings before next Monday to discuss annexation and incorporation. The council has also printed a fact sheet examining the issue which has been distributed to each association.

RESIDENTS in the council's area will be polled by their individual associations on the incorporation-annexation issue. The council plans to take steps toward whichever alternative a majority of residents favor.

Approximately 100 people attended the Rainbow Ridge general meeting Thursday. According to Dale Chapman, association president, "Residents favored annexation over incorporation, four to one, in a show of hands at the end of the meeting."

Two guests spoke at the Rainbow Ridge meeting. Marie Caylor, council secretary, discussed annexation. The aspects of incorporation were discussed by Don Roberts, council treasurer.

In a question-and-answer period following the speeches, some residents asked whether Mount Prospect wanted to annex portions of Prospect Heights.

THE ANSWER FROM the leaders of the association was that they think "their area will fit in nicely with the scheme of Mount Prospect," said Chapman.

The Rainbow Ridge Association leaders plan to call every home in their area to ask residents how they feel about the incorporation-annexation issue.

At a general meeting of the Parkview Association Wednesday night five speakers encouraged residents to vote for annexation to Mount Prospect. The speakers were Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert; Art Brescia, Northwest Suburban Council of Associations president; Marie Caylor, council secretary; Richard Hendricks, Fairview Gardens past president; and Howard Bernstein, Parkview past president.

Following the speeches, residents asked questions for almost an hour. They were concerned mainly with what would be done with the Cibley's Utility Co. after annexation. The speakers explained that the company could be bought out by the village. Residents could repay the village in one assessment or over a 10-year period.

Residents also wanted to know how annexation would affect their taxes. According to Mrs. Caylor, the tax would remain close to the present rate.

The Parkview Association is polling its residents in a ballot attached to the association's January newsletter. Ballots returned to the association at this time show that 109 prefer annexation to Mount Prospect; three prefer annexation to Des Plaines; four prefer incorporation, and 11 prefer the status quo. Residents may return the ballots up to Feb. 15. The association has approximately 200 paid members.

Residents To Protest Annex

Three groups of Prospect Heights residents plan to protest annexation of 40 acres in Prospect Heights to Wheeling at tonight's Wheeling village board meeting.

The 40 acres are located southeast of Wheeling and Willow Roads and west of the Village of Wheeling boundaries.

Tonight at 8:30 in the village municipal building, 235 W. Dundee Rd., the Wheeling trustees will consider an ordinance to annex the vacant land. The ordinance was prepared by Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer, after Arthur Lieblich, the sole beneficiary of a trust which holds title to the land, petitioned for annexation.

Lieblich has also asked that the land be rezoned to R-4 (multi-family residential.) The Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals will consider the rezoning proposal Feb. 16 if annexation is approved. The village board will make a ruling on the zoning after reviewing the zoning board's recommendation.

SEVERAL GROUPS of Prospect Heights residents are opposed to both the annexation and rezoning proposals. When the proposals were first publicized at a meeting of the High School Dist. 214 board, these residents presented petitions objecting to Lieblich's requests.

More than 700 members of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church (which is just north of the 40-acre parcel) expressed their opposition in a petition. They claim the increased traffic generated by a multi-family residential development will endanger the safety of the children attending St. Alphonsus Catholic School, adjoining the church.

Another 300 residents, all members of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, also signed a petition objecting to Lieblich's proposals. The association leaders attached a letter to their petition listing their objections. They claim that if Lieblich does build apartments or industry on his land, the value of their homes will be reduced. They also said such development will create a traffic and flood problem.

THE THIRD GROUP of Prospect Heights residents is called "Citizens for Better Safety on Wheeling Road." The group is composed of residents living near Lieblich's land. According to Max Lyle, a member of the group, "We are urging everyone in the area to attend the village board meeting tonight to protest the annexation proposal."

The High School Dist. 214 board became involved in the matter, because a 40-acre school site is adjacent to Lieblich's land on the east. Wheeling Trustee Michael Valenza proposed several weeks ago that the school site be annexed to the village. The school board has made no decision concerning Valenza's request.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 228 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 20 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7837, according to Supt. James Ervli. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 60 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team.

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 232 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teacher's Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardsmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles E. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $75 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Wernher von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Vicenza lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 16 persons, injured 370 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the 53 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons, but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kilton Dr., and Mrs. Joan Byrnes, 61 N. Kilton Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the alleged obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the 53 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

7 Seek Caucus Endorsement

Four more prospective Dist. 26 school board candidates will be interviewed by the General Caucus. This brings to seven the number of persons who are seeking caucus support.

In the upcoming Dist. 26 elections two new board members will be selected. The two incumbents whose terms end this spring, Ray Johnston and Hubert Stubbs, have both announced they will not seek reelection.

The four who will be interviewed are John Coates, 1482 Cedar in Mount Prospect; Benedict Solis, of 508 Greco Ct. in Prospect Heights; Joel Reznick, 1718 Heather in Mount Prospect; and Richard Wise, of 1104 Ironwood in Mount Prospect.

INTERVIEWS FOR Coates, Solis and Reznick will be held at 7:30 tonight at River Trails Junior High School. The interview involving Wise will be held next Monday.

Coates, an assistant division manager for the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., has lived in Mount Prospect for about 5 1/2 years. Solis, has lived in the area for more than six years. He is a general contractor and carpentry contractor. Reznick, who is an investment broker, has lived in the area 1 1/2 years. Wise is an account representative with Union Car-hide Corp. in Chicago. He has been a Mount Prospect resident 4 1/2 years.

Thus far, only one interview, the one with Wise, is set for next week. "This is the final call for anyone who wants to be interviewed," said a caucus spokesman. Prospective candidates who plan to seek caucus endorsement should call the chairman for the caucus, Ray Imman, at 827-0375.

The caucus hopes to announce its endorsements "as soon as possible after Feb. 15," said the spokesman.

Rather than endorsing several candidates, the caucus plans this year to endorse only one candidate for each of the posts.

THE THREE PERSONS who have already been interviewed by the caucus are Alan Wallskog, Juanita Jacobs and Theodore Wattenberg.

The caucus is made up of representatives from each of the six PTA groups in Dist. 26. Other delegates come from the various civic associations in the school district.

Those who plan to run for the school board are not required to have an interview with the caucus. Purpose of the caucus, explained Imman is to "interview, evaluate and endorse candidates for school board posts."

School board candidates petition forms are now available at the district's administrative center, 1800 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. After gathering the necessary number of signatures for their petitions, candidates can file them with the administration center between Feb. 24 and March 19.

Lions, Tigers And Reading

"It's time for the big book."
That's what kindergarten at Dist. 87 Fairview School in Mount Prospect about when it's time for reading, according to Patricia Kudla, their teacher.
"Then we take a trip through 'alpha betland' with the lion and the tiger," she told Dist. 87 school board members.
Miss Kudla was one of four teachers participating in a presentation last week on the district's elementary school reading programs for the school board. Principals of the district's six elementary schools were at the meeting to listen to the report, requested by the school board.
After Miss Kudla explained that her students learn to read with the help of shapes and colors, Shild Wyle, a reading teacher, and several fourth graders from Westbrook School discussed a Revolutionary War story to demonstrate comprehension and vocabulary use.

MISS WYLE explained her students use library books, filmstrips, records, a dictionary and word wheels to supplement text and workbooks.
Donna Nosbaum, reading teacher at Sunset Park School, told board members "Informal tests and day-to-day observations" are more important in evaluating a student's reading ability than standardized national tests. She said reading teachers must also consider home factors and hearing and visual problems as well as a child's apparent ability in their evaluations.
"A teacher should be sure to evaluate child performance and how her techniques are getting across to the children," she told board members. "They should be ready for change. There is no program that cannot be improved."

Richard Percy, district assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, agrees with Mrs. Nosbaum. According to Percy, who prepared a written report on the reading curriculum for the board, Mount Prospect students are above their normal grade levels in vocabulary and comprehension on national tests.
"But that's no reason to be contented," he said. "There's always room for improvement. Reading is the keystone of any educational program."

ACCORDING TO Percy, each building principal selects a reading program for his school. The programs are selected on how they teach basic reading skills and learning patterns and how they affect the psychological development of the child, said Percy.

Each school has a different reading program. "Standardization within the district is not essential," Percy said, although he would like to see standard goals behind the programs. "But standardization is necessary within one school building."

Students in each school are grouped in their reading classes according to ability, achievement, native ability, motivation, results of standardized tests and teacher evaluation determine the groupings, said Percy.

Marsha Bundt, teacher at Fairview School also participated in the presentation.

"Your Son is our quarterback and You are our coach," prayed Miami's Catholic Archbishop Coleman F. Carroll, while delivering the invocation for the Miami Dolphins-Atlanta Falcons football game.
"We sometimes get blitzed by heavy sorrows or red-dogged by Satan," continued the Archbishop, "teach us to run the right patterns in our life so that we will truly make a touchdown one day through the heavenly gates, as the angels and saints cheer us on from the sidelines."

What might be called "athletic religion" has been thriving on the gridiron ever since the opening decades of this century when the late Alvin (Bo) McMillen led his "praying Colonels" from May and obscure Center College in Kentucky to a miraculous upset over (then) mighty Harvard.

ponent laid out a prayer rug in his corner and faced Mecca.)

One of the most masterful and durable utilizations of athletic religion was accomplished, appropriately, by "The Breakfast of Champions." Employed under banner was a bona fide clergyman (and Olympic champion pole vaulter) who gobbled Wheaties and did pushups on TV.

The Rev. Bob Richards, an ordained minister of the Church of The Brethren, was also one of the founders of an organization called The Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

FOR 13 years the wholesome and beaming visage of the Rev. Mr. Richards adorned Wheaties packages and TV spots. His unforgettable smile was described by sportswriter Ron Fimrite as "The Man With Ten Thousand Teeth."

Yet "The Flying Parson" or "The Vaulting Vicar" is no longer promoting Wheaties even though he emphatically disagrees with a recent consultant's report that this cereal is 29th on a list of breakfast cereals in which only the top nine are nutritionally meritorious. Consequently, Fimrite asked, "Can the Rev. Rob honestly tell us he owes his muscles to a daily bowl of nothing?"

First Aid Course Site Changed

A first-aid course, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Bureau of Emergency Planning, will meet at 7:30 tonight in the cafeteria of the Charles Bruning Co.,

Central and Bunse roads, Mount Prospect.

The six-week course, which started last Monday and will continue for five consecutive Monday evenings, was scheduled to be held in the Randhurst Town Hall at Randhurst Shopping Center, Rand and Elmhurst roads.

The class will meet in the Bruning cafeteria because the Town Hall could not accommodate the number of people who registered for the course. Fireman Donald Barra, director of the Bureau of Emergency Planning, said men will be available to direct traffic in the Bruning parking lot and direct students to the cafeteria.

Class is held from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The course offers approximately 12 hours of training in medical self-help and first aid. There is no charge for the course. Enrollment is open to anyone from the Northwest suburban areas. Persons may attend one or all of the class sessions. Registration will be held before each class.

Barra will teach the class tonight on the emergency treatment of shock, fractures and dislocations.

The course is sponsored by the Mount Prospect Bureau of Emergency Planning in cooperation with the Wheeling Civil Defense unit and CD Director Robert Buerger.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering New Contracts

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 238 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 20 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7837, according to Supt. James Ervitt. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 80 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team."

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 282 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teacher's Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Holiday Inn, 1800 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,000.

Other nearby teachers associations are reported to have offered support to the striking teachers, but only one of those groups, from DuPage, was seen picketing Saturday. If no settlement is reached by tonight, the board of education is expected to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 2125 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Noncertified personnel have apparently not been involved in the strike. Although they were asked to honor picket lines, most of them reported to work Friday, according to the administration.

Teachers Rap Post-Easter Workday

by DAVE PALERMO

Teachers in School Dist. 57 have petitioned to hold a special meeting of the Mount Prospect Education Association to discuss the scheduling of an additional teacher workshop by the board of education last Tuesday night. The MPEA meeting will be held at 4 p.m. today at Gregory School.

Bob Fasick, president of the MPEA, said "between 97 and 98 per cent of the teachers signed the petition" asking that the meeting be held.

"We made a check of the schools Thursday and most all the teachers agreed to hold the meeting except for those that were absent that day," said Fasick.

During its regular meeting Tuesday, the board of education voted unanimously to revise the school calendar and schedule a teacher workshop April 12, the day after Easter and previously a day off for teachers. The workshop was scheduled after the Cook County Office of Public Instruction notified the administration that an "amnesty agreement" reached at the end of contract negotiations last fall was in violation of the Illinois School Code.

Schools In Dist. 57

The "amnesty agreement" said that "no reprisals of any nature" will be taken against the teachers in the district for walking out of a teacher workshop last Sept. 4. The walkout was staged to protest the board of education's contract offer, signifying the end of negotiations that had lasted for almost eight months.

A LETTER SENT in December to

Supt. Eric Sahiberg from G. T. Gilluly, deputy superintendent of the CCOPI, notified the board and administration that absenteeism at a designated teacher workshop is in violation of the Illinois School Code. Gilluly said that if another workshop isn't scheduled during the current school year, the teachers must be docked one day's pay.

David Metzler, chairman of the MPEA negotiations team involved in contract talks with the board for the 1971-72 school year, termed the board's action a "reprisal" against the teachers for walking out of the workshop.

Metzler said he understood that the workshop would have to be scheduled, but said the board should have discussed adding an additional day off for teachers in the district, preferably the Thursday before the Easter weekend.

"The MPEA will meet, and I'll give them the truth about what I still consider a reprisal by the board of education. There is no question about the workshop being scheduled for Monday (April 12), but the board should have considered the possibility of an additional day off for the teachers."

HARRISON HANSON, president of the school board, said Metzler's charge that the action by the board was a "reprisal" was "absolutely ridiculous."

"The board has no choice but to adhere to state law. We could either dock the teachers one day's pay or schedule another workshop. There was nothing keeping us from docking them for being absent at the workshop," said Hanson.

Hanson said members of the board had not "discussed" giving the teachers an additional day off. "It is the board's philosophy to give the children in the district as many days of school during the year as possible," he said.

Hanson said Sahiberg had mentioned during an executive session that the board could grant the teachers an additional day off along with scheduling the workshop, but added that the idea was "not considered in depth."

Fasick said both he and Metzler were informed by the CCOPI that the workshop would have to be scheduled "just before Christmas." However, the teachers in the district were not informed of the county's decision until Sahiberg sent a notification in writing Wednesday afternoon.

Fasick said there was "no need" to inform the teachers until the board had acted on the calendar revision.

Heads Of 9 Teacher Groups Back Strike In Dist. 59

Presidents of nine Northwest suburban teachers associations have thrown their weight behind the Teachers Council strike in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59.

In a statement unanimously approved Thursday, the presidents asserted that they strongly recommended to their associations to "support the Teachers Council of Dist. 59 in their withholding of services."

The statement was sent as a telegram to Richard Hess, president of the Dist. 59 board of education, by George Ergang, a teacher at Elk Grove High School and president of the Northwest Suburban division of the Illinois Education Association (IEA).

THE NORTHWEST SUBURBAN division represents affiliated teachers in elementary districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 54, 57 and 59 and high school districts 211 and 214.

Ergang said the presidents had also voted to donate the division's fund for the defense of teacher rights to the striking teachers. He said he was unable to determine at the present time how much money was in the fund.

Last week the IEA was criticized for formulating the Dist. 59 teachers' strike as part of a "power struggle" with the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

A spokesman for the teachers blasted the board claim Friday.

"There is no power struggle between the IEA and the federation," said J. Michael Arisman, who is with the National Education Association (NEA).

"It's just not true," he said. "There are 478 teachers in this district in the IEA, NEA and Dist. 59 Teachers Council and only six IFT teachers and I don't know if they are even dues paying members."

Arisman added, "They're (the board of education) just trying to shift the pressure off of themselves so they've dreamt up this 'power struggle'."

HE SAID "They are 'their' teachers striking, not outsiders."

Thomas Lundeen, Dist. 59 Teachers Council president, supported Arisman. said, "The decision to leave the classrooms was made by the teachers."

He added, "The IEA is here serving as advisers. All decisions are still being made by teachers."

Eight IEA and one NEA representatives are assisting the teachers in the strike. They were in the district schools Wednesday talking to teachers about the strike.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:04 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardsmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles E. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $76 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Tuscania lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 270 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the 53 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kison Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kison Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the alleged obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the 53 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

7 Seek Caucus Endorsement

Four more prospective Dist. 26 school board candidates will be interviewed by the General Caucus. This brings to seven the number of persons who are seeking caucus support.

In the upcoming Dist. 26 elections two new board members will be selected. The two incumbents whose terms end this spring, Ray Johnston and Hubert Stuber, have both announced they will not seek reelection.

The four who will be interviewed are John Coates, 1402 Cedar in Mount Prospect; Benedict Solis, of 508 Grego Ct. in Prospect Heights; Joel Reznick, 1718 Heather in Mount Prospect; and Richard Wise, of 1104 Ironwood in Mount Prospect.

INTERVIEWS FOR Coates, Solis and Reznick will be held at 7:30 tonight at River Trails Junior High School. The interview involving Wise will be held next Monday.

Coates, an assistant division manager for the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., has lived in Mount Prospect for about 5 1/2 years. Solis, has lived in the area for more than six years. He is a general contractor and carpentry contractor. Reznick, who is an investment broker, has lived in the area 1 1/2 years. Wise is an account representative with Union Carbide Corp. in Chicago. He has been a Mount Prospect resident 4 1/2 years.

Thus far, only one interview, the one with Wise, is set for next week. "This is the final call for anyone who wants to be interviewed," said a caucus spokesman. Prospective candidates who plan to seek caucus endorsement should call the chairman for the caucus, Ray Inman, at 827-0375.

The caucus hopes to announce its endorsements "as soon as possible after Feb. 15," said the spokesman.

Rather than endorsing several candidates, the caucus plans this year to endorse only one candidate for each of the posts.

THE THREE PERSONS who have already been interviewed by the caucus are Alan Wallskog, Juanita Jacobs and Theodore Wattenberg.

The caucus is made up of representatives from each of the six PTA groups in Dist. 26. Other delegates come from the various civic associations in the school district.

Those who plan to run for the school board are not required to have an interview with the caucus. Purpose of the caucus, explained Inman is to "interview, evaluate and endorse candidates for school board posts."

School board candidates petition forms are now available at the district's administrative center, 1800 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. After gathering the necessary number of signatures for their petitions, candidates can file them with the administration center between Feb. 24 and March 19.

Klingner Resigns BOLI Post After 14 Years Of Service

HAROLD KLINGNER

Harold Klingner, chairman of the Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI), has resigned from the board after almost 14 years of service.

The resignation also will remove Klingner from the village Plan Commission, on which he serves as an ex-officio member because of his position with BOLI.

Klingner said he submitted his letter of resignation Jan. 28 to L. A. Hanson, village manager, who makes the appointments to the board. The resignation will be effective May 1.

Klingner, who also served as BOLI chairman from May, 1956, to May, 1962, said he resigned for two reasons.

"AFTER 14 YEARS service to this village, I think it's time to step aside and give others the same opportunity," he said. He also said the increased time required to serve on both BOLI and the commission in recent years has taken too much time from his profession and family life.

A resident of the village for more than 15 years, Klingner was appointed secretary of BOLI in May, 1967, by F. Robert Buchner, first village manager.

He was named a member of the board in May, 1969, when Hanson appointed five new members. Klingner has served continuously since that appointment.

As chairman of BOLI, Klingner also served as an ex-officio member of the plan commission from 1959 to 1962.

He was again named chairman of the board in May, 1970.

A graduate of the Chicago Kent College of Law, Klingner is a partner in the Chicago law firm Wooster, Mugalian and Klingner.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 228 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 28 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

Select Audience 'Questions' Plan

Representatives of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corporation (MHDC) were questioned by Arlington Heights residents Thursday night about the corporation's plans to build moderate-income housing in the village.

The first meeting held by MHDC to tell local residents about the plan drew about 60 people, who listened to the proposal in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. Arranged by MHDC, the meeting was open only to invited guests and the guest list included people who MHDC representatives thought would be sympathetic to the moderate income housing project.

After a short presentation, residents asked questions about the project. One question which was repeated during the meeting was, "Is there any way to make this available to local residents first?"

Earlier in the meeting, MHDC representatives

'Twas A Cold Time In Town Friday Night

Fireman at an Arlington Heights fire station spent their time between calls Friday worrying and watching the temperature drop.

The temperature in the station — that is,

A part in the furnace at Fire Station 2, 709 N. Arlington Heights Rd. went out Friday and so did the furnace.

A quick check of the area showed that a replacement part was unavailable.

Fireman had donned their jackets in the station and by late afternoon were waiting to see if they would get some heat.

"Maybe we should push our beds close together tonight," one of the members of the six-man night shift said.

Pupils Get Variety In Reading Program

by WANDALYN RICE

Brightly illustrated textbooks and enthusiastic students are part of the reading program in Dist. 25 schools, according to a description given to the board of education Thursday night.

Two district reading consultants and two teachers showed board members examples of the books used in the district and played a tape of children working on their reading skills.

The three sets of readers used by the district are the READ series published by the American Book Co.; Reading 300 published by Ginn and Co.; and a Skills Reader, they said.

THE THREE SERIES have been phased into the district in the last two years and are now being used in all schools. Some children may be using one set of books while other children use a different set.

In addition to the skill-building readers, the children use library books, learning games and reading machines, they added.

"We try to give youngsters a variety of fare in reading," Mimi Reeb, reading consultant, said.

Mary Kay Becker, a fourth grade teacher from Wilson School, described her class, which is working with the READ program. The students in her group, she said, are all superior readers and "have never met a real challenge before. The materials are stimulating and rewarding to them."

In addition, she said the students are willing to give their own opinions and to disagree with the book's answers.

SHE DESCRIBED ONE time when they were working on an exercise that required choosing the best title for a story about a horse which rescues a man from drowning. The three choices were "Rescue," "The Horse Who Could Swim," and "The Story of a Horse."

The "correct" answer given by the book was "The Horse Who Could Swim," but, Mrs. Becker said, most of the children chose "Rescue," explaining "all horses can swim — everybody knows that."

"I certainly couldn't disagree with them," she said. "And it shows we're a far cry from Dick and Jane."

A second grade teacher from Ivy Hill School then presented the tape recording of her students learning about adverbs and reading aloud with feeling.

The children read their lines with emphasis and one boy shouted "Crash!" while reading a line.

BOARD MEMBERS and spectators laughed as another child pretended to burst into tears while reading a line sadly.

Reading consultant Margaret Marron then told the board that success of the reading program can be measured by objectivity tests and non-objective questions.

Students in the district score well above national norms on achievement tests, she said. "But these are statistics and although they are very important there are many non-objective things that are also important."

"For example, does the child like to read, is he fascinated by words, does he know how to adjust his reading speed for different kinds of materials?"

Besides working in the skill program, she said, the children can do a lot of independent work. "It is not one or the other, but the best of both."

In response to questions from the board, James Montgomery, director of instruction, said 75 per cent of all children taking placement tests for high school during the eighth grade are reading at or above the normal grade level for the area.

The grade level for this area, he added, is considerably higher than national norms.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardians to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $76 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Wernher von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Taormina lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 270 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive bombing near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Al-Lied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

Eye on Arlington

What Happened To The Caucus?

by SANDRA BROWNING

The Arlington Heights Caucus system of choosing a slate of candidates for village offices has been lauded, defended and praised by its supporters for years. . . until the system didn't work the way they wanted it to.

Following the general slating meeting of the Caucus, reactions from "old guard" Caucus supporters was one of disbelief. "How could it happen?" they asked.

The reactions were based on the unprecedented first ballot selection of the slate of four candidates for the village board. Also, for the first time in history, the registered voters participating in the balloting failed to slate the two incumbent village board members who were nominated by the Caucus Candidate Recommendation Committee.

THE CAUCUS system has been criticized by columnists for the Herald as unfair. Historically, Caucus candidates have always swept into village offices despite opposition. These candidates are selected during an "open" meeting. The theory is fine, but the truth of the matter is that a small number of people (compared to the total number of voters) decide on the candidates. And that just doesn't seem to be as fair as a wide-open election.

There is no disputing the high quality of leadership that this village has enjoyed in the past under the Caucus system. But it is amusing that suddenly, when the "democratic and open" selection process didn't work the proper way, staunch Caucus supporters are suddenly on the other side of the fence. Amazingly, they are now saying that they always knew the Caucus system had an inherent fault: it could be taken over by a special interest group.

Perhaps, if one looks at the system closely, it has always been controlled by a special interest group. The only difference between this year's Caucus and previous years' caucuses is what that interest is.

Supporters of the challenging Village Party slate are saying that their candidates have the entire village's problems in mind, not just one issue. They are also saying that the Caucus slate includes men with no previous local service on boards and commissions and the Caucus candidates are interested in only one issue: keeping low and moderate-income being built on the Victorian land.

EVEN IF THE former Caucus supporters declare themselves not a special interest group, they have been, and have controlled the system. Although, they may not think of it as a "special interest," in a way it still is. Their interest is seeing this village run the way they think it should be run.

This year's slate of Caucus candidates shouldn't really be that surprising. It's merely a matter of history repeating itself.

When the Caucus was first formed in 1957, it was composed of newcomers to the village who wanted to see things change. This year's Caucus slate is composed of relative newcomers to the village who want to see things change.

This year's Caucus is merely returning full circle to its beginning. And the former Caucus supporters who say that the Caucus candidates are not truly "representative" of the whole village should have listened to that criticism for the last 14 years.

Caucus candidates have never been representative of the whole village. They have been and will continue to be representative of only the registered voters who attend the Caucus slating meeting.

Fire Follows Explosion In Towed Truck

An acetylene tank in the rear of a van-type truck exploded yesterday and caused a fire in the truck near the intersection of Rand Road and Kennicott Avenue, Arlington Heights.

The truck was being towed from an accident scene in Palatine at the time of the fire.

Arlington Heights firemen extinguished the flames, but not before the safety caps on three more of the tanks were blown off, providing more fuel for the fire.

No one was injured in the fire in the truck owned by the Hussmann Refrigeration Co., of Maywood.

Firemen said the damage caused by the fire was not extensive.

State police, however, said the truck received about $1,000 damage in the accident on Rand Road at Dundee Road, Palatine.

One man was seriously injured when two trucks collided at the intersection. The driver of the refrigeration truck, John Gillespie, of Wonder Lake, is reported in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital.

The driver of the other truck, James M. Baker, 37, of Skokie, was charged by state police with disobeying a traffic signal.

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the 53 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons, but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kitson Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kitson Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the alleged obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the 53 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

University Names New Building In Honor Of Couple

A new graduate residence building at the University of Pennsylvania has been named Nicholas House in honor of Roy F. Nichols and his wife, Jeannette P. Nichols, the former Jeannette Paddock of Arlington Heights.

Nichols is the former dean of the University's graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the 1949 winner of the Pulitzer Prize in history for his book, 'The Disruption of American Democracy, a study of the causes of the Civil War.'

Mrs. Nichols, a fellow of the American Philosophical Society, has been associate professor of history at the university since 1950, and is the author of several distinguished books.

She is the daughter of the late Hosea C. Paddock, founder of Paddock Publications.

IN ADDITION TO their writings, both have served in a number of distinguished positions with the American Historical Association and other historical societies.

A bronze plaque, affixed to the 22-story residence building by order of the university trustees, reads:

"NICHOLAS HOUSE, for Roy F. and Jeannette P. Nichols, distinguished historians, faithful counselors, devoted companions, this building is named with affection and admiration in token of the students they taught, the scholars who learned from them, and the university they served January, 1971."

Breakdown Cuts Power In Suburbs

Thousands of homes in the Northwest suburbs were without electricity for a time Friday because of breakdowns in Commonwealth Edison Co. equipment.

According to Paul Parker, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, a faulty circuit breaker left 4,000 homes without power in the northwest section of Palatine for several hours early Friday. In Schaumburg near Golf and Roselle Roads 125 homes were without electricity because of a faulty wire connection.

High winds reaching 30 miles per hour caused some problems but "most were minor, affecting two or three households at a time and scattered over the Northwest suburban area," Parker said. He said most of the trouble was caused by blown off tree limbs and ice pulling down the wires.

Parker said no home was without electricity for more than two hours. By 2 p.m. Friday Parker said repairs were "beginning to get caught up." Additional crews had been on duty Thursday night in anticipation of the high winds.

representatives showed residents a model of the 15-acre project, planned for the southeast corner of the 80 acres of land that includes St. Vitor High School, 1213 E. Oakton St.

The 15-acre site includes more than 600 feet of frontage on Euclid Avenue and runs about 1,150 feet north from Euclid.

The project is planned to include 100 one-bedroom apartments, 48 two-bedroom apartments, 30 three-bedroom apartments and 12 four-bedroom apartments. The number of units are all within the village's building codes, according to MHDC officials.

The project is planned to be built under section 236 of the Federal Housing Act. The Federal Housing Administration will guarantee the estimated $4 million mortgage on the project and will result in a lower interest rate.

Eugene Callahan, vice president of M. Myers Associates Inc., which would be the supervising consultants for the project, said FHA 236 usually allows rental of apartments about 30 per cent lower than the normal market rate. The provisions of FHA 236 are such that "no one can bleed the property and run. In fact, there are more restrictions to prevent this than there are for private developers," Callahan said.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE in the complex would be allowed by FHA standards to pay no more than 25 per cent of their monthly income for rent. The project would house families in the $5,000 to $12,000 income range.

Callahan said the FHA financing is "the only thing that makes this different from any other development."

In answering a question, Callahan stated that this project "is the smallest step that one could make to solve the need for housing in the Chicago metropolitan area."

One resident asked if the project would help poor families. Ferrara said that although the MHDC realizes that the poor are "the hardest-hit right now," providing housing for low-income families is the responsibility of the Cook County Housing Authority. "We are tightly within the confines of the program," he said.

However, there is a possibility that the project will qualify for rent subsidies, he said. This type of program has to be undertaken by the Cook County Housing Authority and cannot be discussed until "we're a lot further down the road," Ferrara said. If the authority did approve a rent subsidy program for the project, no more than 20 per cent of the units could be rented under such a program.

As the discussion was closed, MHDC officials said they would be willing to speak about the project "anytime, anywhere to anyone." Residents who are interested in having MHDC officials talk about the project to groups may contact the corporation's offices at 155 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, or call the office at 236-9850.

The questioners were hopeful that the 150-apartment complex would first serve residents already living in the village.

Salvatore Ferrara, executive director of MHDC, said the corporation's "hands are tied" by federal restrictions. When the units are ready to be rented, they must be marketed on a totally non-discriminatory basis, he said. The corporation will not be able to give preference to local residents, he said.

ONE QUESTIONER observed, "The only way you'll get community support is to prove that this will take care of people who live here now."

Dist. 23 Issues Beaten

Defeat of the School Dist. 23 referendum Saturday probably will result in cutbacks in the education program, according to Supt. Edward Gredsky.

District voters Saturday turned down two proposed tax hikes and a special tax levy included in the referendum were proposals to raise the education fund tax from $1.50 to $1.65 per $100 assessed valuation, and the building fund tax from $.25 to $.275 per $100 assessed valuation. If approved, the two tax hikes would have together added $122,130 to the $1.7 million budget.

The district also proposed a special tax levy in the referendum to repay an interest-free loan from the state for construction of a new school in Arlington Heights. According to Gredsky, the levy would have cost a resident with a home assessed at $10,000 approximately $36 a year.

OF A TOTAL of 1,004 ballots cast, each of the three proposals was defeated by a margin of about 139 votes. The education fund tax hike was defeated by a vote of 602 to 475. A vote of 605 to 478 defeated the building fund tax hike. The special levy was defeated 602 to 473.

The same three proposals were defeated in a referendum last October by a narrower margin. However, at that time, the voters authorized a bond sale of $1.3 million for improvements and additions to existing schools. Approximately 1,204 voters turned out for the October referendum.

ton Heights.

THOSE SCHOOLS that will be open today were to be listed on an emergency telephone message at 437-7837, according to Supt. James Ervitt. Almost half the schools are expected to open for children even if the strike continues. Teachers are requested by the board to return to all schools.

The teachers called the strike late last week following a board of education decision not to reopen negotiations on the 1970-71 teacher contracts. The board said it was too late in the year to reopen negotiations for this school year's contracts, but that they would begin negotiations for the 1971-72 contracts. Other districts have already begun 1971-72 negotiations.

After an emergency board of education meeting early Saturday, which was picketed by about 60 teachers, the board announced an offer to negotiate for this year's contracts.

The board's statement read, "The board position on the availability to teachers of a 1970-71 contract has been misrepresented and misunderstood. To set the record straight we have invited the association negotiation team to meet with the board 1971-72 negotiation team."

"We are offering for 1970-71, a board ratified contract and a no strike clause. This comprehensive contract contains among many items a specific grievance procedure including arbitration, personal business days, sick leave and a guarantee of extra pay for extra duty which has already been honored and exceeded."

FRIDAY THE school administration reported 292 teachers on strike while the Dist. 59 Teacher's Council, which organized the strike reported 370 teachers striking.

Most of the striking teachers were picketing Friday, according to Thomas Lundeen, teacher's council president, with the rest of them working at the teacher's headquarters in the Holiday Inn, 1900 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village.

At issue in the strike are class size and salaries for teachers on extra duty work, Lundeen said. Not an issue, according to Lundeen and the school board, is the over-all teacher's salary schedule, which has a minimum salary of $7,600.

Other nearby teachers associations are reported to have offered support to the striking teachers, but only one of those groups, from DuPage, was seen picketing Saturday. If no settlement is reached by tonight, the board of education is expected to meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Noncertified personnel have apparently not been involved in the strike. Although they were asked to honor picket lines, most of them reported to work Friday, according to the administration.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Pondering New Contracts

by JUDY MEHL

Elementary School Dist. 59 teacher contract negotiations that began at 10 a.m. yesterday continued into late evening. At press time no decision had been made whether striking teachers would be back in the classrooms today.

If negotiations had ended satisfactorily, teachers planned to return to work. If they did not, the board planned to open as many schools as possible with substitutes and the 228 non-striking teachers of the 540 in the district.

A dozen pickets were reported to be at each of the 20 district schools Friday, the first day of the strike, despite a freezing wind and cold temperatures.

Dist. 59 has schools in the Elk Grove Township portion of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

2 Hit MSD Sewage Dumping Plan

by BOB CASEY

A state senator and a former Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee Friday spoke out against plans to discharge sewage effluent into the Des Plaines River at a hearing on river pollution standards.

State Sen. Howard R. Mohr (R-5th) told the Illinois Pollution Control Board that wealthy Lake County Communities served by the North Shore Sanitary District should not be allowed to divert partially treated effluent into the river.

The hearing, first in a series of three, was held at the request of the village of Riverside and several other west suburban municipalities, which have asked for stricter water quality standards in the Des Plaines River.

Walter S. Baltis, former MSD trustee, said the North Shore Sanitary District is almost entirely within the area drained by the Chicago River and thus "has no right, legally, morally, or as a good neighbor, to dump their sewage effluent into the Des Plaines watershed."

RIVERSIDE IS asking the pollution control board to require tertiary or third-stage treatment of sewage that will be discharged from the North Shore district's Clavey Road plant in Highland Park.

While third-stage treatment is scheduled for district plants at Waukegan and Gurnee, the Clavey Road plant, which is being expanded, will provide only secondary or two-stage treatment, said Raymond Anderson, the North Shore district's general manager.

The district, which currently does not discharge any effluent into the Des Plaines River, hopes to be adding about 60 million gallons of effluent to the river each day by 1990, according to Anderson.

The North Shore district's plans, coupled with a proposed MSD treatment plant in Des Plaines whose effluent will reach the Des Plaines River through Willow-Higgins Creek, would turn river water into 100 per cent sewage effluent during summer months when river levels are low, Baltis said.

"During these months, such a flow would cause a stench and stagnation that would reduce the area ringing this beautiful stream to a stinking, open sewer," said the former MSD trustee.

If the North Shore district goes ahead with its plans, he said, "the Des Plaines River will become esthetically offensive, hazardous to health, virtually devoid of desirable aquatic life and a definite detriment rather than an enhancement of the environment."

"Running the Des Plaines River is not a solution," said Baltis, "and the suggestion that sewage effluent be dumped into this beautiful waterway should not be given serious attention."

Additional hearings will be held Feb. 9 in Franklin Park and Feb. 19 in Gurnee.

THIRD-STAGE treatment, which the board could require for effluent discharged into the Des Plaines River, removes up to 98 or 99 per cent of wastes. Secondary treatment can remove up to about 90 per cent of waste pollutants.

According to Anderson, upgrading the soon-to-be expanded Clavey Road plant so it could provide tertiary treatment would cost an additional $10 million. North Shore Sanitary District officials did not testify at Friday's hearing.

In urging stricter water quality standards, Sen. Mohr said most communities "provide the advanced sewage treatment that the wealthy communities of the north shore say they cannot afford." Mohr said he is urging Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott to resurrect a suit challenging North Shore Sanitary District plans to use the Des Plaines River.

That suit, according to pollution control board member Richard Kiesel, was filed a few years ago but has never come to trial. Discharges into the Des Plaines River from the North Shore district are scheduled to begin in 1973.

In addition to Mohr and Baltis, more than a dozen representatives of government agencies and conservation groups spoke in favor of higher water quality standards at the hearing in the Riverside Village Hall.

MSD TRUSTEE Abraham Elserman said the North Shore Sanitary District's plans are inadequate and would create increased flooding and pollution in the river.

The district must be required to provide tertiary treatment at the Clavey Road plant and retention ponds to prevent discharge of raw sewage resulting from sewer overflows during rain storms, he said.

Wayne Quileco of Des Plaines, speaking for the Isaac Walton League and the Cook County Clean Streams Committee, said diverting North Shore discharges from Lake Michigan to the Des Plaines River without reducing their waste content is "not solving a problem but only shifting it to another location."

"It is not my intention to demean the actions being taken to save Lake Michigan. On the contrary, I support saving it wholeheartedly," Quileco said.

Power In Suburbs

Thousands of homes in the Northwest suburbs were without electricity for a time Friday because of breakdowns in Commonwealth Edison Co. equipment.

According to Paul Parker, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, a faulty circuit breaker left 4,000 homes without power in the northwest section of Palatine for several hours early Friday. In Schaumburg near Golf and Roselle Roads 125 homes were without electricity because of a faulty wire connection.

Apollo 14's lunar explorers, their spaceship crammed with rocks that could be part of the moon's primitive crust, trimmed their course Sunday and aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown set for Tuesday at 3:01 p.m. CST.

The government announced Sunday it has begun an investigation to determine if the growing use of Social Security numbers by private firms is an abuse of individual rights. A Senate subcommittee also announced it will open hearings on the problem Feb. 24.

A white man was killed and three whites wounded Sunday by sniper fire in black neighborhoods in Wilmington, N.C. Gov. Bob Scott ordered in National Guardsmen to control racial violence in the four-day-old disturbances which have claimed two lives thus far.

Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday they plan to introduce legislation calling for $76 million annually in federal subsidies to help operate mass transit systems. "As industry and business move to the suburbs, the tragic isolation of the inner-city ghetto increases," they said.

Werner von Braun, German-born rocket scientist, warned the space race has not been won and an over-confident U.S. may again find itself behind the Russians "if we just sit back and rest on our laurels."

The World

Egypt said Sunday that a proposal to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for a partial Israeli troop withdrawal has caught the United States by surprise and could widen differences between the U.S. and western Europe on the Mideast crisis.

British troops killed a sniper in Belfast, Ulster, raising the death toll to five in five days of clashes with Roman Catholic extremists in Northern Ireland.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath said Sunday his government cannot undertake a total rescue of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce Company even though its collapse would have far-reaching effects.

The ancient Italian city of Tuscany lay destroyed Sunday, the victim of twin earthquakes that killed at least 15 persons, injured 370 and left 7,000 homeless. Damage to rare and valuable art, much of it preserved in pre-Christian tombs, may exceed damage to Florence art treasures during 1966 floods.

The War

The first known government casualties in the massive buildup near the Laotian border were inflicted Sunday when an Allied plane mistakenly bombed South Vietnamese in their position near Khe Sanh, killing six and wounding 51 others. Meanwhile, a Laotian government official reported serious military deterioration in the defense of northeastern Laos as North Vietnamese troops appeared ready for a major attack against Long Cheng, a communications center for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Laotian defense headquarters.

Heds Of 9 Teacher Groups Back Strike In Dist. 59

Presidents of nine Northwest suburban teachers associations have thrown their weight behind the Teachers Council strike in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59.

In a statement unanimously approved Thursday, the presidents asserted that they strongly recommended to their associations to "support the Teachers Council of Dist. 59 in their withholding of services."

The statement was sent as a telegram to Richard Hess, president of the Dist. 59 board of education, by George Ergang, a teacher at Elk Grove High School and president of the Northwest Suburban division of the Illinois Education Association (IEA).

THE NORTHWEST SUBURBAN division represents affiliated teachers in elementary districts 15, 21, 22, 25, 26, 54, 57 and 59 and high school districts 211 and 214.

Ergang said the presidents had also voted to donate the division's fund for the defense of teacher rights to the striking teachers. He said he was unable to determine at the present time how much money was in the fund.

Last week the IEA was criticized for formulating the Dist. 59 teachers' strike

as part of a "power struggle" with the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

A spokesman for the teachers blasted the board claim Friday.

"There is no power struggle between the IEA and the federation," said J. Michael Arisman, who is with the National Education Association (NEA).

"It's just not true," he said. "There are 475 teachers in this district in the IEA, NEA and Dist. 59 Teachers Council and only six IFT teachers and I don't know if they are even dues paying members."

Arisman added, "They're (the board of education) just trying to shift the pressure off of themselves so they've dreamt up this 'power struggle'."

HE SAID "They are 'their' teachers striking, not outsiders."

Thomas Lundeen, Dist. 59 Teachers Council president, supported Arisman, said, "The decision to leave the classrooms was made by the teachers."

He added, "The IEA is here serving as advisers. All decisions are still being made by teachers."

Eight IEA and one NEA representatives are assisting the teachers in the strike. They were in the district schools Wednesday talking to teachers about the strike.

Six Petitions Filed For April Park Board Race

Six petitions for two vacancies on the Des Plaines Park District board of commissioners have been filed with the park district.

The election to fill two vacancies, left by commissioners Kenneth Olson and Kenneth Kebe, will be held April 6. Each term is for six years.

These residents who filed petitions include: Dewey Sherden, 1919 Sixth Ave.; William Benning, 270 Graceland; William Newport, 180 Drake Lane; G. Rex Wilson, 1145 Van Buren; Edward Keane, 2048 Webster Ln.; and John Arrigo, 1671 Ash St.

Wilson served as a park board commissioner from 1967 to 1969 when he filled a vacancy left by Thomas Burdard, who moved from Des Plaines.

Kebe is leaving his post on the park board to run for second ward alderman in Des Plaines. He served one term on the park board.

OLSON HAS SERVED on the park board for 18 years and has been with the park district since 1943 when he started the district's first recreation program. He is also athletic director at Maine West High School.

Olson said his decision to leave the board was based on his long service with the district. "I've decided it's been long enough and the others in the community can try it."

He said he finds his work at Maine West keeps him very busy and "I'd like a little more freedom now from other responsibilities."

Olson added that he's had a fine association with the board, the community and the district personnel.

He thinks the highlight of his career has been the development of new parks in the district.

"I haven't been happy with the acquisition of land though," he said. "We always need more land because it's getting gobbled up by construction and the price will become astronomical."

Fire Chief Makes Birthday Wish

by BARRY SIGALE

Des Plaines Fire Chief Frank Haag is a birthday boy today and according to his year end report to city officials a welcome present would be the continued growth of his department in fulfilling the needs of the community.

Haag, who turns 48 today, has a lot to celebrate, because, he says, his department is reaching the exact physical requisites needed to serve Des Plaines and its growth capabilities.

In his 17-page report presented last week to city council members, Haag showed that despite the rise in the number of fire and ambulance calls his department was able, through its growth in the past several years, to meet the extra work load.

"I AM PROUD OF the personnel of the fire department for the manner in which they conducted themselves in the emergency situations which they faced daily," said Haag, who has been fire chief since June 1, 1969. "There were numerous good steps made by the department during the past year, several of which could have resulted in losses up to a million dollars."

Haag, who joined the fire department in 1953 when there were only eight full time firemen told the Herald his 61 member department, including himself, deputy chief William Corey, three captains and ten lieutenants, was about 12 men short of meeting a goal of having one fireman per 1,000 Des Plaines residents. He said he would ask for six new men this year and an additional six men next year.

HAAG, IN HIS REPORT, said that almost $80 million worth of property were involved in fires last year in Des Plaines but that, through the fine efforts of his department, only about one per cent of that figure, or about $438,000 worth of property, was lost.

"This is a remarkably low figure for a city of our size and diversification," Haag said. "Probably the most significant factor, which is never shown on fire loss reports, should be the value of property that was saved by the fire department rather than the amount lost. This figure during 1970 was $39.5 million."

To reduce the property loss damage in Des Plaines, Haag has urged greater training and better equipment for his men.

"The fireman when he begins in our department works days for about three weeks under the direction of our deputy fire chief, who is the training officer. They are given instructions eight hours a day on hose evolutions, driving, basic fire department operations, raising ladders, the use of tools and equipment, saws and smoke ejectors. They learn the basics and go over them quite thoroughly."

Haag said that his men train for two hours each day, working on the basics they were taught during the first three weeks and learning specialized knowledge, such as first aid (each fireman is required to earn an advanced red cross first aid card).

Also, the firemen have attended various special training programs including a trauma school program at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, and courses at Harper College in Palatine.

Construction on a new fire department headquarters will begin this year at 389 Des Plaines Ave. (River Road) which, according to Haag, "will be a fine facility and addition for the people of Des Plaines."

Company Opens New Office In Des Plaines Plaza

A new office in Des Plaines was recently opened by General Electric Credit Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Electric Co.

The firm will arrange large accounts receivable and inventory loans in the Midwest area. The new facility is located at 2400 E. Devon Ave. in the O'Hare Lake Office Plaza, Des Plaines.

District manager of the General Electric Credit Corp. accounts receivable department is Louis Kovanda of Northbrook. He has had nine years' experience in the field, and has been associated with the firm for four years.

Serving as operations manager at the new office is Selwyn Schwartz of Hoffman Estates. He has worked in this field for nine years.

General Electric Credit Corp. arranges a variety of commercial loans, Schwartz said. He noted that there is a general softening in interest rates, in response to cuts in the prime interest rate charged by large commercial banks.

General Electric Credit Corp. is headquartered in New York. It also has an office in Atlanta, Ga., and is opening another office in St. Louis, Mo.

Dist. 214 Board To Eye Bus Contracts Tonight

The High School Dist. 214 board, meeting at 7:30 this evening, will look again at three-year bus contracts for the district.

The school board meets at 799 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Two weeks ago, the board deferred action on the contracts in order to explore possible cooperation between the district and Elementary Dist. 59.

Davidmeyer Bus Lines had included in its bid a 5 per cent credit for cooperative use between the districts, and the board wanted to explore the savings involved in cooperation.

Cook County Bus Co. and Ritzenthaler Bus Lines Inc., which currently serve the district, also submitted bids.

In other action, the board will set on a proposal to slightly alter the system of selecting valedictorians and salutatorians at commencement.

THE PROPOSAL is to allow students who graduate in six or seven semesters to be compared with their classmates at the time of graduation and to be identified as valedictorians if they have the highest grade point average at the time of their graduation.

A committee of administrators, teachers and students surveyed other students and wrote to other schools to see how the situation was handled. The committee found that a majority of students did not favor abandoning the present system.

The board will also receive a progress report on construction at Rolling Meadows High School, receive a report on a Life Safety survey at Forest View High School in southern Arlington Heights and hear a presentation from Thomas Meade and Dr. E. J. Jacobs of the Seaside Estates Association in southern Arlington Heights.

Bank President Issues Report

Stockholders of Des Plaines National Bank heard an optimistic report on 1970 activities and predictions for 1971 from president and board chairman, G. Rex Wilson, at their annual meeting held last week.

Highlight of the year according to Wilson, was the opening of Des Plaines National's new auto bank, two blocks north of the main bank at Lee and Perry streets, across from the Elks Club.

Wilson reported that 35 per cent of the bank's deposit transactions and 65 per cent of its proof department work load is currently being handled at the auto bank, which opened for business on Sept. 28.

Personalized banking is the keynote at the auto bank, the president stressed.

Another addition to the bank's services in 1970 was the establishment of a new business development and marketing department under the direction of Harold

F. Glandt, senior vice president, assisted by Edward J. Rathbun.

Wilson said deposits by the end of 1970 were slightly ahead of 1969 totals, despite a significant decline in savings deposits during the first six months because of more attractive yields in other investments.

Cash dividends totaling $39,000 were voted in 1970 by the board of directors, compared to $73,710 in 1969, and $49,736 was transferred to undivided profits.

Directors of the bank, reelected at the annual meeting, are: G. Rex Wilson, chairman of the board and president; William S. Deree, president of Alco-Deree Co.; Barney L. Franzen, III, president of Des Plaines Lumber Co.; O. B. Garner, attorney; J. Brown Hardison, president, Trailer Dealer Publishing Co.; Dr. Henry F. Heller, physician and surgeon; Herman A. Herzog, publisher of

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Back in the early days of contract a few enterprising bidders might get to six hearts with the North-South cards. North would double one diamond just as North did today and South would make the same one-heart response. The old time North would follow up with a jump directly to the heart game and it would be a most unusual South player who would find another bid."

Jim: "Today's North players follow their double with a cue bid of West's bid suit. This is an all-purpose forcing bid to show a very good hand. South continues to two hearts to see what is coming next and North jumps to the heart game. This tells South that North is interested in further bidding."

Oswald: "South doesn't have much but he has enough to show his spade ace, whereupon North goes right to six. The slam depends on a club finesse, but the bidding has indicated that the club finesse will work."

Jim: "There is still some confusion at the average player level about the meaning of this bid but there is none in JACOBY MODERN where the cue bid that follows a double is used as a forcing bid."

Oswald: "When you do hold the enemy suit you can jump in it if your holding is overwhelming; in pass and bid it later or just pass and keep on passing."

Jackson Sole Park Board Candidate

Robert Jackson, current president of the Mount Prospect Park District board of commissioners, will be the only person listed on the ballot for the park board election to be held April 6.

Jackson is the only commissioner whose term expires this spring. He was elected to the park board in 1965 and his first six-year term will expire April 6.

The deadline for filing off a seat on the board was midnight last Sunday and Jackson was the only one who filed for the upcoming vacancy. Anyone wishing to challenge Jackson's bid for reelection must do so with write-in votes.

"FRANKLY, I'm quite surprised that no one else had decided to file for the election," said Jackson. "You'd figure that in a park district serving over 50,000 people one or two would feel they could do a better job."

"I hope that it's an indication that people feel the park district is doing a good job," Jackson said.

Jackson said he has no definite goals for the park district, which serves the major portion of the Village of Mount Prospect and the Eighth Ward in Des Plaines. He did say he wanted to see programs which the park district began during his first six-year term carried out, primarily those projects provided for in the $2.4 million referendum passed in 1969.

Included in the referendum was the purchase of West Park and South Park, the construction of the Lions Park Community Center and Kopp Pool, and improvements at existing parks in the district. Most projects outlined in the referendum are expected to be complete next summer.

Jackson lives at 513 S. Hi-Lust Ave. in Mount Prospect with his wife and four children.

THE FIRST DAY on which voters can apply for an absentee ballot is March 8, 30 days prior to election day. The last day on which absentee voters can request a ballot by mail is April 1, five days prior to the election. The last day on which absentee ballots will be distributed in person is April 3, or three days prior to the election.

According to law, persons wishing to file for a seat on the board must solicit the signatures of at least 35 eligible voters. This is equal to 2 per cent of those who voted in the 1969 election.

Jackson obtained the signatures of over 50 eligible voters on his petition.

'I Feel Very Rewarded'

Miss America
Pays Us A Visit

"I'm an individual. I'm a human being. I'm thinking. I get tired. I'm a college student experiencing an education while I'm not in school."

She's Phyllis George, Miss America 1971. And she was in Des Plaines Friday sitting in the showroom of Ladendorf Oldsmobile greeting some enthusiastic fans.

She's 21 years old and is from Denton, Tex. In the fall she will be a senior at North Texas State University, where she is majoring in elementary education and minoring in speech.

Since she was chosen Miss America last September, she has traveled throughout the country meeting and greeting church and civic groups and school children and military men. And she's been very busy answering questions.

"You know, a lot of people ask me how it feels to keep smiling and what I think about being on exhibit. Well, it doesn't bother me to keep smiling — only if someone doesn't smile back. Then I get very tired and smiling becomes difficult.

"IT DOESN'T bother me to be 'on exhibit,' either," the tall, soft-spoken beauty said in her Southern accent. "When I see how much happiness it brings to people when they meet Miss America, I'm very rewarded."

Miss George thinks the title of Miss America is very respected. "People throughout the country know who Miss America is and they respect what she stands for."

"Miss America is looked up to by many young people," she added, "because she represents them. She influences their conduct, values and goals. I think it's great that children want to grow up like her."

Phyllis George believes that in spite of her hectic official calendar, she still has a lot of personal freedom. "I can answer anything I want, I can date and I have lots of time to go home and visit with my family."

She does admit that she will have to make a big adjustment when she gives up her crown. "After the glamor and excitement, I'll have to adjust. But I know I can — after all, all the other girls before me have."

MISS AMERICA 1971, Phyllis George of Denton, Tex., stands huddled against the wind Friday during her visit at Ladendorf Oldsmobile.

The Texas beauty queen is not accustomed to the high winds and cold weather in Des Plaines.

'Mini-Parish'
Involves 200

by LEON SHURE

The idea is as old as the Bible, and it grew among the poor in Central America and Chicago.

Today, it is part of a growing movement in Des Plaines at the St. Stephen's Catholic Church.

The idea is called "mini-parish" and it now involves nearly 200 people, church members of one of Des Plaines' largest Roman Catholic parishes.

MINI-PARISH HAS two purposes, to study and discussion meetings on religious and social issues topics. It also means charitable activities, and social activities that range from family tobogganing sessions to senior citizen dinners.

MINI-PARISH HAS two purposes, to make people more aware of their faith and to build a church community, according to church members in the mini-parish program.

The idea for the mini-parish is as old as the Biblical command to "love one another," according to Father Robert Melcher, associate pastor at St. Stephens.

One of the origins of the mini-parish was a program begun in the early 1960's in Panama City, in Central America. The Rev. Leo Mahon was sent to start a Roman Catholic parish. He found that, by and large, only the women were active participants.

He began to draw small groups of men and women together for discussions. Rather than giving the answers, Father Mahon tried to "make them more aware of their faith," according to Mrs. Eileen Erblich, 1275 Prospect, Des Plaines, a member of the group program's steering committee.

THOSE IN the first discussion group, began to lead other groups and gradually more people became involved until a "real church community" was created. Finally, the parish was able to build a church, she said.

This idea was used to build another Church community in Chicago's Southwest side ghetto, by Monsignor (now Bishop) Michael Dempsey. One of the participants was a deacon, Robert Melcher.

After he was ordained he was assigned to St. Stephens, under Father Thomas Hanley, pastor. Father Melcher began a discussion group in 1968 with 10 couples.

Today, there are nine discussion groups, with about 160 people meeting twice a month. These meetings are held in homes and occasionally in the church. Discussions are usually led by married couples.

The mini-parish is now in three phases: beginners groups, a group for those who have been through the beginners discussions, and a third group, for those who have progressed beyond the intermediate stage.

THE BEGINNERS groups have 16 sessions. Discussion includes Church issues, Bible study, the meaning of religious beliefs for individuals and the commitment of individuals to help solve social problems, according to Mrs. Erblich.

The three "phase II" groups are examining church reforms made by Vatican II, and use a text called "Spiritual Renewal." They informally discuss the meaning of renewal, changes in the mass service liturgy, ecumenism, the Church and the world and the parish renewal, according to Mrs. Claudia Denny, a phase II participant.

The phase III group, new this year, does not have a set list of discussion topics. "We discuss things people have questioned." These might include any social or religious topic, from abortion to complex religious concepts.

Beyond the discussion sessions, participants have organized social and charitable activities.

Members of the group have contributed a truckload of furniture and clothing for an inner-city church. It contained at least one hundred boxes of contributions, Mrs. Erblich said.

They also sent toys, clothing, books, and games to an orphanage in Vietnam, at the request of a Des Plaines youth, serving with the army in Southeast Asia.

Their social activities have included family picnics and pot luck dinners.

THE MINI-PARISH Feb. 13 is sponsoring a senior citizen dinner. This turkey dinner, and mass, will be for any Des Plaines resident over 65 years old. A talent show is planned for April.

Des Plaines:
In Depth

The mini-parish steering committee is now planning more discussion groups, to begin in September, according to James Denny, committee chairman. Other members of the committee are Tom Evans, 1057 Stockton, vice chairman; Jo Ann Wagner, 1876 Birch, community activities; Mary Jo Olen, 1242 White, secretary; John Gruber, 1473 Center, and Irene Birchfield, 2045 Spruce, membership.

Mini-parish members told the Herald they have made lasting friendships in the group, and feel a real community spirit is developing.

According to Denny, "It has made a difference in my life. It has made me more aware of myself and of other people, and their problems. It has helped me to understand my faith better."

Power Saw Stolen
From Work Site

A 350-pound power saw worth $450 was stolen from a construction site in Des Plaines last week.

According to Des Plaines police, the saw was stolen from 1750 Elmhurst Rd. sometime between Tuesday and Thursday of last week.

The theft was reported to police by Edmund Stewart of Glenview, the owner of the equipment.

Panel Discussion
Slated At School

"Learning and the Young Child," will be the theme of a lecture at 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the pre-school Education Center, 9000 Home Ave., Des Plaines.

A panel discussion will include a school principal, a psychologist and a psychiatrist, and a speech consultant.

2 Hit MSD Sewage Dumping Plan

"I do, however, object when its salvation is predicated on the death of rivers and streams that play as important a role in the water cycle as the lake does," he said.

ROLAND EISENBEIS, conservation superintendent of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, described the Des Plaines River as the backbone of the forest preserve system.

"The quality of the recreational lands and their value to the citizens of our area are directly proportional to the water quality of the river," he told the hearing.

It would be more logical, Eisenbeis said, for the Clavey Road plant's effluent to be given proper treatment and discharged into its natural drainage system of the Skokie and Chicago Rivers.

A state official said most of the pollution in the Des Plaines River is caused by overflows or raw sewage during rain storms from combined sanitary-storm sewers in the MSD system.

Carl Blomgren, engineer for the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, said there are six sewage plants in Lake County currently discharging into the river and cited high rates of fecal coliform in the effluent of some of them.

High concentrations of the coliform bacteria indicate the presence of heavy pollution from human sewage.

Blomgren said, however, that water quality in the river is good until it reaches Cook County, where 25 or 30 overflow pipes from the MSD system pour sewage into the rivers during rains.

'Humanities' Tour Offered

Persons interested in joining the seventh annual "Humanities Abroad" study tour sponsored by Maine Township High School Dist. 207 are invited to attend an informational meeting on Feb. 17, at 8 p.m. in Room 238 at Maine East High School, Dempster Street and Potter Road, Park Ridge.

This summer's tour will be directed by Paul Healy of Maine East's English department and Miss Virginia Feurer of the Maine South High School counseling department. They will be present at the meeting to give information concerning itinerary, date of departure, cost, and planned highlights of the trip.

This year's tour will include visits to Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia, Austria, Germany and Switzerland. Traveling first to Rome, the group will go on to Brindisi on the Italian boat and then by boat across the Adriatic Sea to Athens. Eleven days will be spent in Greece — three in Athens, four on the Peloponnese, and three days visiting Rhodes and Crete.

Leaving Greece, the group will travel by train along the Adriatic coast through Yugoslavia and through Austria to Salzburg. The program will include two firsts for "Humanities Abroad": a visit to Greece, and travel in an Iron-Curtain country.

THE "HUMANITIES ABROAD" study tour is part of Maine East's summer school program. The tour group of 25 to 30 is comprised mostly of students from the Maine high schools, plus participating adults and chaperones. Special attention will be paid during the trip to the art, architecture, music, literature and history of the various regions visited.

This will be the seventh "Humanities Abroad" tour in which Healy has participated as tour director, and the first time Miss Feurer has joined the group as co-director. Miss Feurer, a Maine graduate and resident of Park Ridge, studied for a year in Freiburg, in the Black Forest of Germany, as a college student.

Auto Film Is Slated

An auto-racing movie will be featured at 8 p.m. Tuesday at a "Father's Night" meeting of the PTA of Central School, 1528 Thacker, Des Plaines.

PTA Sets Sweat Night

An evening of volleyball, basketball and swimming will replace the usual Einstein School PTA meeting Tuesday.

The group will meet at 7 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect.

No. 12 Mon. 2-8 —

West Musicians To Attend Consortium

The Maine West High School string-orchestra will travel to the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign campus, on Feb. 13, to participate in the first annual string-orchestra consortium.

The purpose of the consortium is to assist school orchestra directors in the refinement and development of their programs. Francis Vaupel, orchestra director at West, will accompany the students.

The day's program will include a performance by each visiting orchestra. Maine West's orchestra will play "Overture to the Royal Fireworks," by Handel, Bach's "Concerto for Four Pianos and Orchestra," and highlights from "Porgy and Bess," by Gershwin.

Students will also attend clinics under the direction of Bernard Goodman, Donald Miller and Thomas Wisniewski, all members of the music department at the University of Illinois.

"Your Son is our quarterback and You are our coach," prayed Miami's Catholic Archbishop Coleman F. Carroll, while delivering the invocation for the Miami Dolphins-Atlanta Falcons football game.

"We sometimes get blitzed by heavy sorrows or red-dogged by Satan," continued the Archbishop, "teach us to run the right patterns in our life so that we will truly make a touchdown one day through the heavenly gates, as the angels and saints cheer us on from the sidelines."

(In reporting this notable invocation, The National Catholic Reporter added: "And when that final gun goes off, dear Lord, lead us out of the parking lot of life through the interchange of Purgatory, on the freeway into Heaven, with our fenders undented, our spirits undaunted and our metaphors untangled. Amen.")

What might be called "athletic religion" has been thriving on the gridiron ever since the opening decades of this century when the late Alvin (Bo) McMillan led his "praying Colonels" from tiny and obscure Center College in Kentucky to a miraculous upset over (then) mighty Harvard.

And recently the Protestant monthly Christian Herald ran a book ad which featured a photograph of a former Baltimore Colt above the caption: "MEET DON SHINNICK, THE CHRISTIAN . . . What it's like to lead a Christian life in the fast-paced, violent life of pro football . . . 'Always A Winner' (the title of the book) shows how an established professional athlete can use his unique position to contribute so much to God's Kingdom."

NOT TO BE outdone by either Maryland or football, Gloucester, Massachusetts' Open Church Foundation offers (at $1.00 per hundred) copies of "Lifting For The Lord," in which weight lifter Paul Anderson expresses pride not only in being "the strongest man in the world" but in being a Christian as well. (Commented the Protestant weekly Christian Century: "Don't challenge him — you might end up with a Rupture For Religion!")

In Oregon, The Portland State Vikings recently played a "Hoop Game to Woo Portlanders to Christ" — while religion is similarly and regularly utilized to sanctify every recreation from Virginia foxhounds to prizefighters. (Although one pugilist, who was in the habit of crossing himself in full view just before the bell, was somewhat ailed when a Moslem opponent laid out a prayer rug in his corner and faced Mecca.)

One of the most masterful and durable utilizations of athletic religion was accomplished, appropriately, by "The Breakfast of Champions." Employed under banner was a bona fide clergyman (and Olympic champion pole vaulter) who gobbled Wheaties and did pushups on TV.

The Rev. Bob Richards, an ordained minister of the Church of The Brethren, was also one of the founders of an organization called The Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

FOR 13 years the wholesome and beaming visage of the Rev. Mr. Richards adorned Wheaties packages and TV spots. His unforgettable smile was described by sportswriter Ron Fimrite as "The Man With Ten Thousand Teeth."

Yet "The Flying Parson" or "The Vaulting Vicar" is no longer promoting Wheaties even though he emphatically disagrees with a recent consultant's report that this cereal is 29th on a list of breakfast cereals in which only the top nine are nutritionally meritorious. Consequently, Fimrite asked, "Can the Rev. Bob honestly tell us he owes his muscles to a daily bowl of nothing?"

Select Audience Hears Plan

Representatives of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corporation (MHDC) were questioned by Arlington Heights residents Thursday night about the corporation's plans to build moderate-income housing in the village.

The first meeting held by MHDC to tell local residents about the plan drew about 60 people, who listened to the proposal in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. Arranged by MHDC, the meeting was open only to invited guests and the guest list included people who MHDC representatives thought would be sympathetic to the moderate income housing project.

After a short presentation, residents asked questions about the project. One question which was repeated during the meeting was, "Is there any way to make this available to local residents first?"

Earlier in the meeting, MHDC representatives showed residents a model of the 15-acre project, planned for the southeast corner of the 30 acres of land that includes St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton St.

The 15-acre site includes more than 600 feet of frontage on Euclid Avenue and runs about 1,150 feet north from Euclid. The project is planned to include 100 one-bedroom apartments, 48 two-bedroom apartments, 30 three-bedroom apartments and 12 four-bedroom apartments. The number of units are all within the village's building codes, according to MHDC officials.

The project is planned to be built under section 236 of the Federal Housing Act. The Federal Housing Administration will guarantee the estimated $4 million mortgage on the project and will result in a lower interest rate.

Eugene Callahan, vice president of M. Myers Associates Inc., which would be the supervising consultants for the project, said FHA 236 usually allows rental of apartments about 30 per cent lower than the normal market rate. The provisions of FHA 236 are such that "no one can bleed the property and run. In fact, there are more restrictions to prevent this than there are for private developers," Callahan said.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE in the complex would be allowed by FHA standards to pay no more than 25 per cent of their monthly income for rent. The project would house families in the $5,000 to $12,000 income range.

Callahan said the FHA financing is "the only thing that makes this different from any other development."

In answering a question, Callahan stated that this project "is the smallest step that one could make to solve the need for housing in the Chicago metropolitan area."

One resident asked if the project would help poor families. Ferrara said that although the MHDC realizes that the poor are "the hardest-hit right now," providing housing for low-income families is the responsibility of the Cook County Housing Authority. "We are tightly within the confines of the program," he said.

However, there is a possibility that the project will qualify for rent subsidies, he said. This type of program has to be undertaken by the Cook County Housing Authority and cannot be discussed until "we're a lot further down the road," Ferrara said. If the authority did approve a rent subsidy program for the project, no more than 20 per cent of the units could be rented under such a program.

As the discussion was closed, MHDC officials said they would be willing to speak about the project "anytime, anywhere to anyone." Residents who are interested in having MHDC officials talk about the project to groups may contact the corporation's offices at 155 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, or call the office at 236-9850.

The questioners were hopeful that the 100-apartment complex would first serve residents already living in the village.

Salvatore Ferrara, executive director of MHDC, said the corporation's "hands are tied" by federal restrictions. When the units are ready to be rented, they must be marketed on a totally non-discriminatory basis, he said. The corporation will not be able to give preference to local residents, he said.

ONE QUESTIONER observed, "The only way you'll get community support is to prove that this will take care of people who live here now."

2 Women Petition Against 53 Drive-In Skin Flicks

A petition demanding a police investigation of the 53 Drive-In Theater for showing allegedly obscene movies has been initiated by two Palatine women.

The complaint of the women is that the movies shown on a large outdoor screen at Rte. 12 and Hicks Rd., are visible not only to patrons but to persons passing by the theater.

Initiating the petition which was first circulated Wednesday, are Mrs. Nancy Haines, 106 N. Kitson Dr., and Mrs. Joni Byrne, 61 N. Kitson Dr.

The women are soliciting the aid of the Jaycees, faculty at local high schools, the Church Guild, and Christ Lutheran Church to end the showing of the allegedly obscene movies at the drive-in.

Mrs. Haines called the films "garbage." She viewed a short portion of a film being shown at the drive-in recently when she and her husband drove by the theater.

"THERE WAS MORE skin on the screen than I had ever seen before in my life," she said. "I was so embarrassed by what I accidentally saw I could hardly speak to my husband."

Mrs. Haines said she doesn't want to deny the rights of people to pay to get in and see these films. She does object to having the films shown on a screen as big as an apartment building where everyone can see them, whether they want to or not.

She pointed out that you have to be 17 years old or older to get in to see the films, but children can view them outside an outdoor theater.

MRS. HAINES charged that these films are not a "one-shot deal" since the theater has been showing similar films for some time.

Cook County police Lt. James Keating, head of the sheriff's vice control unit, said his department cannot do anything about films like the 53 Drive-In is showing without a judge's order.

Currently, to declare a movie obscene, the police must first get a copy of the film in question, view it and then wait for a judge to decide if it is truly obscene. If the film is judged obscene, the police may then raid the theater.

Mrs. Haines said after the petitions are signed, she and as many women as possible that can accompany her will present them to a judge at Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In was not available for comment Friday.

Display Case Shows Causes Of Pollution

Mrs. Olga Stetsuk, Maine West High School librarian, has designed a display case to inform students about the various forms of pollution.

While researching the topic, she realized pollution came not only from the water, land, air and wildlife, but that people were also polluting their bodies and minds, according to school officials. And, with the help of a Maine West student, Dale Leigh, of 10400 Carol Ct., Rosemont, and Mark Mattson, art instructor at West, Mrs. Stetsuk has completed the display.

"Display cases are to teach ideas," explained Mrs. Stetsuk. For that reason she feels that it is equally important that students realize that while people are polluting the water, air, land and wildlife, they are also polluting their minds and bodies with tobacco, alcohol, drugs and pornography.

The theme of the display case is "Pollution or Protection." The various aspects of pollution were symbolized with mobiles and supplemented with books and pamphlets. Information on the types of pollution were also displayed in the library for student use.

The new library standards, according to Mrs. Stetsuk, call for cooperation between the library staff and the teachers, with an opportunity for the students to produce. "We have a great deal of talent at Maine West between the teachers and the students, and I think it should be used to its best advantage," she said.

Ill Wind Here Blows No Good

A wet and windy blast of winter weather caused discomfort to Wheeling and Buffalo Grove residents last week.

In Wheeling, water and later ice, led to 11 calls to police for motorist assistance Thursday, and one resident, Kurt Sandig, of 305 S. Wheeling Ave. reported a flooded basement to police. There was also flooding of some streets in the village.

Police also removed a sign which blew down in the 300 block of west Dundee Road.

IN BUFFALO GROVE, high winds activated the burglar alarm at the Elm Farm Food Store in the Buffalo Grove Mall about 5 a.m. Friday morning. Shortly after midnight Friday the wind blew down a power line to a farm house on Arlington Heights Road.

Throughout the day Friday police received reports of garbage cans blowing about in the village.

'Twas A Cold Time In Town Friday Night

Fireman at an Arlington Heights fire station spent their time between calls Friday worrying and watching the temperature drop.

The temperature in the station — that is.

A part in the furnace at Fire Station 2, 709 N. Arlington Heights Rd. went out Friday and so did the furnace.

A quick check of the area showed that a replacement part was unavailable.

Fireman had donned their jackets in the station and by late afternoon were waiting to see if they would get some heat.

Scouting News

Cub Scout Pack 14 began their last meeting at Forest School with a new opening ceremony. Den 5 presented different "Stars of the Galaxy," and then welcomed everyone to the meeting. It was Pinewood Derby night. Willy Geist was the announcer, with Bob Enders as the starter. The winners were: Jim Enders, first place; John Nebl, second place; and Terry Cassidy, third place.

Two new boys were welcomed into the pack, David Payne into Webelos Den 1 and David Filichia into Cub Scout Den 5.

The following awards were presented by Jim Newman: Den 4, Kurt Nelson, bear, Steve Anderson, wolf badge and John Nebl, wolf badge. Webelos Den 1, David Payne, Jack Newman, Gregory Kent, Joe Jones, Dennis Michelon, Tony Okroy, Roger Opler, and Tom Mahon, were all awarded showmen and Jim Enders showman and recruiter. Den 5, Marvin Meister, recruiter.

Cubmaster Richard Anderson made the following announcements: Pack 14 will have an ice skating party Feb. 13 at Lake Opoka at 7:30 p.m. . . . The Blue and Gold dinner will be Feb. 24 at the Scandia House in Mount Prospect Shopping Plaza. Anderson read a letter of thanks the pack had received from the Gross Point Manor. The pack had gone there Jan. 16, to sing and take fruit to the senior citizens.

Perfect attendance awards were won by Den 4 and 5. More racing followed with each den racing for a Den Plaque. Den 5's winner was Marvin Meister, Webelos Den 1, Tony Okroy and Den 4 Richard Geist.

Kurt Nelson and his parents were brought forward and Kurt lit the candles in the Arrow of Light Ceremony. Enders welcomed him into Webelos and presented him with a Webelos neckerchief.

Anderson closed the meeting with the awarding of the trophies and plaques. Den Plaques were awarded to Den 5, Marvin Meister, Den 4, Richard Geist and Webelos Den 1, Tony Okroy. Pack Trophies, third place Terry Cassidy, second place John Nebl, and first place Jim Enders.

CUB PACK227 opened their January meeting with the posting of colors by the Webelos. Cubmaster Ed Ziegler encouraged the boys to subscribe to the Boys Live Magazine when the new charter is made this month. Paul Schroeder was introduced to the pack and repeated the Cub Scout promise before receiving his Bobcat pin. Asst. Denner from Den 2 then welcomed him to their den. Skits were performed by Dens two and three. Bill Melton advance to the rank of wolf; Jim Plumeri to the rank of bear; and Michael Waters to the rank of bear. Other awards given were Tim Philipp — year pin; Jim Plumeri — gold and two silver arrows; Brian May — denner; John Nave — asst. denner; Gerald Chvatal — silver arrow; Jim Karabas — bear book; Dave Rechenberg — denner; Chris Wals — asst. denner; Doug Ziegler — silver arrow; Dennis Baumgartner, Jeff Groshart, Ron Richter and Ray Crouch each received their craftsman. Wayne Wesley, Eric Anderson, Jim Plumeri, John Karakouris, Jim Marando and Jack Maazuchelli were all advanced to Webelos and presented with their books. Their new leader and assistant cubmaster Reed Souler was introduced to the Pack and Parents.

"LIGHTS IN THE SKY" was the theme for the January Pack 202 meeting. Den 3 did a skit about landing on the moon and den 2 showed constellations with flashlights on the blackboard. Many boys received awards — Roy Lingner — artist; Ed Fleischer — artist and geologist. One year pins went to Jeff Silverman and Steve Fisher; two year pins to Jeff Silverman and John Kylan. Denner awards went to Mark Eglund and John Kylan; asst. denner awards went to Steve Fisher and Billy Anhalt. Four boys worked hard and finished all achievements and were awarded their wolf Steve Saffron, Steve Fisher and Louis Zimmler. John Kylan graduated to Webelos scouts and two scouts Don Hangey and Mike Ellis had their "Arrow of Light" ceremony and went on to boy scouting.

Twenty five boys attended the annual bowling party January 23 at the Niles Bowl. Trophies were awarded last night to high bowlers of the pack, Eric Rudin and Roy Lingner. Den 1 walked away with the trophy for highest games. The fourth Annual Blue and Gold Dinner will be held at Scandia House on Feb. 27, at 6:30. For further information please call Ruth Werba at 827-2546.

ON JAN. 15th Cub Pack 115 held their great race. Each pinewood derby car handcrafted by father and son gleamed with lacquered paint. The cubs weighed their individual models. Chief mechanic Nick Williams gave last minute attention to the cars. Banners flying, spectators cheering, anxious cubs awaited the starting gun. They were off — 48 entries and eight heats completed the first eliminations. First and second place winners competed for the final eliminations. First place winner Don Lorenzi's super charger stayed out in front all the way. Pat Maloney's speedy model won second place. Jim Schultz's dragster took third place. Each boy received a trophy award from cubmaster Harold Hagenson. The best car award, judged by Mr. and Mrs. Abadek went to Steve Burek for its individualistic qualities. Good sportsmanship was apparent in every loser and each one was awarded a memento of his participation in the great race.

Following the derby, cubmaster Harold Hagenson awarded advancements. Webelos Den No. 1 received aquanot, artist, sportsman and traveler badges. Welcomed into Pack No. 115 were Bobcats John Hartman and Joseph Nix. Andy Packard received his bear badge, gold arrow and two year pin. David Niles was awarded his two year pin, gold arrow and showman award. Pat Maloney received a two year pin while Jeff Witham got his one year pin.

Musical Aids Education

Proceeds from "South Pacific," which opened Friday to enthusiastic audiences at St. Viator High School, will provide money for educational innovations at the school next year.

Six more performances of the great Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway musical are scheduled, featuring boys from St. Viator and girls from Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

Money from the show will be used to purchase books, audio-visual equipment and other supplies for use next year when St. Viator steps up individualized instruction and goes to fully flexible modular scheduling, according to Father James Michaelis, St. Viator principal.

Last year's musical, "West Side Story," raised $9,000 for other school expenses.

This year's production stars Tom Barclay of Prospect Heights as Emile, the French planter who falls in love with a Navy nurse assigned to a South Sea isle during World War II.

Nellie, the Navy nurse first made famous by stage star Mary Martin, is played alternately by two Mount Prospect students, Sue Tardy and Sandy Stavropoulos.

A number of other lead roles in the musical also will see two students alternate. The role-sharing, school officials say, gives more students a chance for on-stage experience and eases the time demands during a three-week run.

LEAD PLAYERS in the musical will also include Mark Francis, Arlington Heights, as Barclay's understudy; Greg Ziomek, Arlington Heights, as Lt. Cable; Eileen Gorman of Arlington Heights and Mari Miller of Mount Prospect as Bloody Mary; Tom Hoeg of Mount Prospect and Frank Del Gudice of Rolling Meadows as Luther Billis.

Other lead roles have gone to Kathy Hume of Arlington Heights and Pamela Zander of Palatine as Ngana; Tim Sullivan of Palatine and Clyde Mundt of Mount Prospect as Jerome; Carl Forsberg of Arlington Heights as Henry; Kevin Bohr of Arlington Heights as Capt. Brackett; Henry Rogers of Mount Prospect as the Navy commander, and Ramona DeMio of Prospect Heights as Bloody Mary's assistant.

Additional "South Pacific" performances are set for Feb. 12, 13, 19, 20 and 21 at 8:30 p.m., plus a 2 p.m. matinee on Feb. 14.

Tickets can be reserved by calling the St. Viator office, 392-4050, weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

opens for eight performances tonight in the school auditorium. The show will provide money for books, audio-visual equipment and other supplies. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. for evening shows.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several airlines have run into financial difficulty and are now cutting back on plane orders, reducing flight schedules and otherwise tightening their budgets.

These measures may be all right as temporary expedients but they fail to reach the root of the problem, which is that airlines aren't being used for anything except flying.

When a plane isn't airborne, it sits idly on the ground, taking up valuable space and giving no return on the investment. In these days of the jumbo jet, this is a terrible waste.

One airline has moved to rectify the situation by offering its huge 747s to companies for business meetings. It is clear, however, much additional diversification will be needed to pull the airlines out of the hole.

Assume for illustration purposes that the Great Speckled Airline wanted to raise some extra revenue. It could quickly undergo corporate reorganization to become the Great Speckled Airline and Junior High School.

CLASSROOM SPACE is at a premium all over the country, with many school districts going heavily into debt trying to keep up with the demand. If instead of building more schools they simply bused the kids to the airport, it would . . . well,

I'm sure you get the picture. You also could get a picture from the Great Speckled Airline, Theater and Concert Hall.

Almost all of the jumbo jets have at least one motion picture screen. Meanwhile, almost all airports have a bunch of passengers waiting around the terminal with nothing much to do for a couple of hours or so.

Selling them tickets to a movie aboard one of the grounded planes should be as easy as falling off a log. Which brings us to the predicament of rock music promoters who are having increasing difficulty finding places to hold concerts. They undoubtedly would pay handsome fees for the use of 747s.

It is likely, however, that the greatest potential for ground-level use of airliners lies within the field of aviation itself.

NEARLY EVERY airport in America is cramped for space and millions of dollars are being spent to expand their facilities. Yet right out there on the ramp are planes that are larger than many of the terminals.

Okay. So knock off the construction and let the airliners on the ground serve as passenger lounges for other airliners.

Properly managed, an airline soon should be financially able to give up flying altogether.

Open House Slated By Mental Health Clinic

A Des Plaines mental health clinic and research center will hold an "open house" from 3 to 6 p.m. this Wednesday.

Incentives Inc., 2024 Dempster, is sponsoring the open house to acquaint residents with its facilities, spokesman said. Dr. Rufus Baehr, staff psychologist and associate professor of psychology at Wright City College in Chicago, will host the event and will explain Incentives services.

Incentives has served the community for three years as a rehabilitation center for those with emotional or drug problems.

The staff includes psychologists, psychiatric social workers, a psychiatrist and a registered nurse.

CENTER DIRECTOR is Jeanine Gavin, who has served as director of community mental health at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, and as a director of psychological group services at Grant Hospital, Chicago.

She has also served as staff psychologist for the Illinois Department of Mental Health. She has written several books and articles about mental health.

She hopes Incentives can be a way of "reaching out into the community to help deal with today's problems."

She recently received a "distinguished service" citation by the international organization called "Two Thousand Women of Achievement."

This organization, based in England, awards this honor each year to women who have made contributions to the professions, arts or sciences.

Incentives has been chosen by Oxford University, of England, to receive student interns who are studying for their masters degree in psychology.

THE FIRST students will arrive in June, and will spend three months working at Incentives. They will receive full academic credit, according to Incentives spokesman.

Incentives also provides group therapy and individual aid. Miss Gavin hopes to begin a comprehensive drug abuse program.

She feels that the home-like environment at Incentives allows for the staff to form a program which fits each individual's needs.

In 16 Years With UOP

Hertha Has Built A Division Around Her

by DOROTHY OLIVER

"There's no special handicap in being a woman. If you take the attitude that you're a second rate citizen, you're not going to get anywhere — man or woman."

This is the philosophy of Hertha Skala, and it is this attitude combined with competence that has brought her the position of assistant director of research for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

Born, raised and educated in Vienna, Austria, Hertha came to the United States as a war bride in 1947. She majored in pharmaceutical chemistry at the University of Vienna and managed a drug store before meeting her husband, Victor.

She decided upon chemistry as a career early in life. "The European school systems are very different from here. At 10 you are selecting your career. During the eight years I was in high school, I accumulated credits equivalent to a B.A. degree. After four years of college you graduate with the equivalent of a PhD," she explained.

WHEN SHE WAS 10 she had to choose between the high school which dealt with the humanities or the one which stressed science. Her decision to go into a scientific field was reinforced by chemistry courses taken when she was 11.

"I think it is a good system. High schools here are too much an extension of grade school. If I had my choice, I'd go to school there and do graduate work here," she said.

Hertha worked at three companies before beginning with UOP to get the "feel of the industry. I saw them building UOP, looked into the company and decided I'd work for them come hell or high water," she laughed.

Getting the job took some doing, but once Hertha was interviewed she was hired on the spot. The job was not what she wanted to do (isotopic studies), but she decided to give the company two years before quitting.

"I HAVE NOT moved. I have built a division around me. There is a tremendous amount of knowledge available in this company, but I always felt there was not enough known about what makes a catalyst a catalyst."

"If you can show management you have usable and salable ideas from a certain field, they go for it." Management decided to back Hertha's interest in catalytic function, and she now supervises 8 chemists.

"A woman does have advantages in a man's world," she said. "You have a different relationship with the people you work with. Women have intuition and a little more understanding of personal problems."

Dr. Vladimir Haensel, vice president and director of research, confirms this — at least as far as Hertha is concerned. "Hertha has been very valuable to us with her sixth sense. She is on the interviewing committee (which interviews all scientists who apply) and we respect her opinion on how the people we hire will work out."

DR. HAENSEL, who has been her boss for six years, added, "In any event she improves the average appearance of the research staff."

Since her promotion in 1967 to assistant director, Hertha spends little time in the laboratories working with the machines. She and her staff are the "problem solvers." They are given a project and expected to find answers.

"Pollution is one of my major areas of work at this time. We are working on a catalytic converter for automobile exhaust. We want to convert noxious gases emitted in exhaust to something that won't hurt you. It is a very rewarding piece of work."

Hertha has no intention of retiring from UOP ("They'll have to kick me out") and recommends her field to women. "There's always a new challenge and a new area to look into. The opportunities are there for women. More advanced companies are completely open to women. Here more than 10 per cent of research center personnel are female — much higher than the national average."

"We have yet to meet anyone who said they didn't want to work for a woman director," Dr. Haensel said. "In fact, we've had many who said they'd rather work for Hertha."

"That's because they know me," Hertha grinned.

That's Just Sherry Nonsense

When A Jill Needs A Jack

by MARY SHERRY

Last Monday, which was one of the coldest of the cold days we ever had, my car refused to start. I talked to it, pumped the gas pedal, pushed the gas pedal all the way down and tried every trick I knew — a total of three — to get it started.

As I sat stewing in the car, ready to give up, I heard a tap on the window.

"Having trouble?" It was my next-door neighbor, Alice Flaxton. "Let me give it a try."

I slid over as she jumped in the car, and I watched while she tried to start it.

"It sounds bad," she said, cocking her head to listen to the cold, reluctant grinding of the starter. "We'll have to jump the battery."

"But Alice," I protested, "our husbands aren't here, and —"

"WHO NEEDS HUSBANDS at a time like this?" Alice sniffed. "Come on in and warm up while I move my car next to yours and find the jumper cables."

I followed Alice inside and gratefully accepted a cup of coffee. Alice disappeared and after a while came out in a very chic insulated jumpsuit. I was going to mention that she had some spots that looked like grease on it, but she hurried out to her car before I could tell her.

By the time I got out to the driveway, she had already pulled her car up along side of mine and had the hood up.

"Put up your hood," she yelled over the noise of the motor.

It took me a minute to realize she meant the hood of the car, and I stood and looked dumbly at it.

"DON'T YOU KNOW how to get it open?" Alice asked with an edge of contempt in her voice.

I admitted that I didn't.

She looked expertly at the grille and flicked a lever she found concealed somewhere and the hood lock popped open. "Now," she ordered, "help me straighten these cables." She handed me some heavy rubber-coated wires that were stiff with cold and clung to my arms like pythons.

"When I say 'run,' run and start your car," Alice instructed. "Until then, keep holding these cables." She hooked the end of one on a little knob protruding from the battery in my car. "Red to red, black to black," she muttered.

I wasn't sure, but I thought she was murmuring a sort of incantation. She hooked the other end to a knob on her car's battery. Then she took the other cable from me and hooked one end up to another knob on my battery.

"I THINK THAT'S right," she said with a hint of uncertainty that I never would have detected if I hadn't known Alice so well.

"Alice," I cautioned, "if you hook it up the wrong way, can't... I mean, it could blow up or something." I started backing away, eyeing a large tree that could provide a hasty shield.

I was still close enough to see that as soon as she touched the remaining cable end to the other knob on her battery, sparks flew all over.

Still visibly composed, she unhooked everything, turned off her car motor and hurried into the house without a word.

I followed her, and when I got inside I could see she was on the telephone.

"Henry, dear —?" I heard her croon.

There was something about this experience that makes me think Women's Lib has a long way to go.

TV Ditty Now Wedding Song

by KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A ballad written as a ditty for a television commercial for a bank is supplanting "Oh Promise Me" at weddings.

Paul Williams, 30, the lyricist for "We've Only Just Begun" said he received more than 50 requests to use the song at nuptials before sheet music for it even was published.

Several hundred high schools and colleges have asked permission to use the words as the theme for their yearbooks.

Williams and his partner, Roger Nichols, wrote the song more than a year ago when an advertising agency, Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne, needed music for a commercial for Crocker-Citizens National Bank.

THE COMMERCIAL features a short film of a wedding, with the first two verses of "We've Only Just Begun" played in the background. As the newlyweds leave on their honeymoon, the words, "You've got a long way to go. We'd like to help you get there," flash across the screen, and the name of the bank.

"We wrote the third verse for their second commercial," Williams said. "That one shows a man leaving for his first day on a new job and his wife seeing him off. We wrote a bridge between the verses and had the song. "Mark Lindsay recorded it on an album, then The Carpenters came out with the single, which has sold about two million copies so far."

Williams, a small, round man with shoulder length, fine blond hair, began writing lyrics three years ago.

"I WAS AN ACTOR," he said, "but I don't know if I gave up acting or it gave me up."

He was filming "The Chase" with Marlon Brando when he began fiddling with the guitar of a fellow cast member, and wrote his first song.

He has had hits with "Out in the Country" sung by Three Dog Night, "The Drifter" by Steve Lawrence, and "Somebody Man" by the Monkees. "We've Only Just Begun" has been recorded by Dionne Warwick, Lawrence Welk, Glen Campbell, Jerry Vale and Claudine Longet, among others.

"Before this song my publishers called me a writer of standards that never were hits," Williams said.

"I TRY TO WRITE about the positive side of life. God knows there's enough negativism," Williams said.

"I'm a rank sentimentalist and I like my songs to have a message, but I believe a spoonful of sugar helps the medicine go down."

Mates Off And On Stage

Acting Together Is 'Fun'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

You might say that fate dealt a wild card in the destiny of Faith Quabius and Ric Riccardo. They met as man and wife eight years ago. Only then, it was play acting.

Faith and Ric, currently starring in the comedy, "The Little Hut," at Country Club Theatre in Mount Prospect, first became acquainted playing opposite leads, that of man and wife, at the former Salt Creek Playhouse in Mundelein.

The dime store trinket ring, purchased as a prop for the production, carried over into real life as they assumed married roles off stage as well.

In "The Little Hut" Faith and Ric again play opposite roles, but of a different nature. Faith is married to someone else. Ric plays her lover.

"IT'S A LOT OF fun," said Ric of their situational roles in an interview following one performance. "That the challenge... to try and make it believable. We find working together convenient. There's more time to practice lines together."

While Faith is a full-time actress, Ric currently spends more time at his restaurant than on stage. He does, however, like to appear in a couple of plays each year. Altogether Ric and Faith have appeared together in 10 shows.

"We did this same role at Country Club Theatre about five years ago," said Ric. "When it came up again, naturally they thought of us. It came at the right time for me to be able to get away from the restaurant."

"I DON'T REACT any different to him on stage than any other actor," said Faith. "I find it fun. There's no tension whatsoever."

Ric and Faith agreed that individual performances are never discussed unless one asks the other's opinion.

"And then it is not criticism," quickly added Faith, "only suggestions."

"There's no jealousy between us at all," added Ric. "She's a better actor, but I'm a better singer," he laughed. Then more seriously, "Incidentally I've never seen a thing she did that I didn't like. I learn a lot by watching her."

FAITH QUABIUS AND RIC RICCARDO are man and wife off stage. But during the current run of "The Little Hut" at Country Club Theatre, Faith is a married woman, and Ric is her illicit lover.

THE RICCARDOS LIVE in the restaurant building on Rush Street with their three children, a son, 7, and two daughters, 6 and 4. While the late hours might be disconcerting to some couples, Ric and Faith find it does not interfere with their family life.

"By the time we leave for the theater, the kids are ready for bed so they really don't miss us at all," said Faith. "I don't feel we should bring them to a play they wouldn't understand just because we're in it," she continued.

"People are surprised to find out how much time we do devote to the kids," said Ric.

"We have a live-in housekeeper to take care of them when we're not home who's like their second mother," added Faith.

ALL THREE CHILDREN attend a Montessori school in the neighborhood, and so once Faith checks to see if the kids made the bus, the next several hours are put aside for sleep.

Late morning and part of the afternoon Faith uses to attend committee meetings for projects in which she is involved. Her husband gets up in time to prepare for the luncheon rush.

Faith, who has made numerous Chicago appearances played opposite Gig Young in "Nobody Loves an Albatross" in St. Louis a year ago, puts at the top of her list of favorites. "The Owl and The Pussycat."

Ric most enjoyed playing Peter in "Kiss Me Kate" and Paul in "Born Yesterday."

Even when plays run for several months at one time, Ric and Faith agreed that it seldom becomes tiring.

"IT DEPENDS A LOT upon the audience," said Ric. "Once in a while it can become mechanical."

And while Faith admits that at times she feels from lack of sleep due to outside commitments that cut down on morning slumber time, she wouldn't change a thing and she doesn't miss not being free in the evenings.

"I don't miss anything," she said. "I love to work. I'm not happy unless I am."

Already 'Aunt Rebecca' At Birth

Rebecca Ann Van Brankel is not only the new granddaughter of the Arthur Van Brankels, 400 W. Touhy Des Plaines; she is not only the new child of the Robert Van Brankels of Hoffman Estates, Rebecca is already an aunt to three nieces and a nephew.

She was born Jan. 18 at Memorial Hospital of DuPage County and weighed 6 pounds 10 oz. The sixth child, Rebecca joins Mrs. Richard Shaw and Mrs. George Crawford of Streamwood; Mrs. Robert Zoltek of Norridge; Robert, a serviceman in Georgia; and Robin, who lives at home with her parents.

Spares Speaker Discusses Treatment for Alcoholism

Daniel J. Mulcahy, Teletype Corp. employee and former school teacher, will discuss "Alcoholism — the Treatable Illness" when the Spares Sunday Evening Club meets Sunday.

At this meeting, the Spares will honor the club's most outstanding leader Betty J. Zerbe of Glenview, who was voted the individual most responsible for the phenomenal rise in membership from seven members in February 1969 to its present active enrollment of 352.

Mrs. Zerbe has been a membership chairman for the past two years, heading a committee of 41 persons with six divisions. She has helped on every committee and currently is in charge of the Friday evening basic square dance instruction. She will be honored with roses and a plaque for her outstanding effort in the club's behalf.

Being Black And Jewish Is Topic For Sisterhood Meeting

"What's It Like To Be Black and Jewish?" will be the topic discussed at a joint Maine Township Jewish Congregation Sisterhood Club meeting, Wednesday, at 8:30 p.m. at the Congregation synagogue, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines.

Rabbi Robert Devine, spiritual leader of House of Israel Hebrew Cultural Center, Chicago, will be the featured speaker. A native of Port Gibson, Miss., Rabbi Devine attended the Ethiopian Hebrew School and Loop City College in Chicago. He is the father of nine children, all of whom attend Jewish parochial schools.

Rabbi Devine has been a guest on Kuy's Show. He is president of the United Leaders Council of Hebrew Israelites and spiritual leader of temples in Gary and Indianapolis, Ind. The meeting is open to the community.

Stork Myth Has Some Basis

by PATRICIA MC CORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most urgent questions that preoccupy little children is — "Mommy, where do babies come from?"

Sigmund Freud said the origin of babies "is the oldest and most burning question that confronts immature humanity."

More often than not in unenlightened homes, it's the fable of the stork that's to the rescue of the mummies of the world when the question first rolls off tot's tongue.

The stork fable, amusingly enough, seems to more completely relate to the true biological facts of childbirth than to infantile sexual theories, two psychoanalysts reported at the annual meeting of the American Psychoanalytic Association.

Drs. Marvin Margolis and Philip Parker, of Detroit, Mich., gave, among other proofs, the following:

"THE STORK is said to find babies in caves, wells or ponds. These are common symbols for the vagina and uterus in particular, and mother-woman in general."

Because of the revolutionary changes in child-rearing practices in the past generation, and especially with the more frank and biologically correct explanations of conception and birth given to children, the use of the fable of the stork has been gradually declining.

"Yet," the psychoanalysts reported, "the fable still is almost universally known at all levels of our culture."

Dr. Margolis is director of research and training at the Detroit Psychiatric Institute, a part of Wayne State University School of Medicine.

During their examination of the stork myth from a variety of considerations, Drs. Margolis and Parker discovered that the stork fable has found wide acceptance even in countries in which the white stork is not native and can be seen only in zoos.

THE ORIGINS OF the myth can be traced back to the days of antiquity. The stork was dedicated to Juno, a mother goddess, by the Romans. Juno was the goddess of fertility and protector of women. Women who were barren prayed to her.

In the legends, according to the doctors, storks are billed as being warm, providing parental care, possessed of marital fidelity, filial concern and longevity.

"In addition," they said, "they are regarded as the harbinger of spring and the bringer of good luck. Storks are said to be extremely devoted parents. Their offspring are said to remain very attached to them and, in turn, to take care of them when they are aged and infirm."

Stork lore aside, reports from the ornithologists in birdland demonstrate that the legends have some basis in fact, according to Dr. Margolis and his associates.

—THE WHITE stork is found in most parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. Those that nest in Europe during the spring and summer migrate southward to Africa during the winter.

—Generally it is true that they faithfully care for their young. However, at times they may act in a very hostile manner toward them.

—There is no evidence that the adult stork is capable of recognizing its parents. Therefore there is no basis in fact that the younger storks take care of their infirm elders.

—Their reputation for lifelong monogamy is also in question. One researcher says in reality a stork is not very fond of his wife and it is doubtful he would recognize her away from the nest.

"For the stork legend to have become so fixed in man's imagination as an explanation of the origin of babies, it must be answering many complex psychological needs," Dr. Margolis said.

Good Retirement Hobbies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you ever see a row of bottles, all shapes, hanging on a line in the sun, sitting on a wall in the sun, or standing on a table in the sun — you might think they're where they are because someone is planning target practice.

Wrong. The bottles are in the process of being sun-tinted into lovely shades of lavender, amber, green and purple. The sun does it over a period of time, weeks or months. Older bottles take on the lovely shades faster than younger ones.

Tinting bottles via the sun is one retirement hobby suggested in "Retirement Hobby Guide," published by the American Association of Retired Persons.

The booklet describes 13 hobbies, selected for appeal to both men and women and for retirees who either remain active or confined to their homes.

RETIREES WHO face confinement and have access to a tape recorder can broaden their horizons, the guide suggests, by exchanging recordings with "tapespondents" around the world.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: You may think me a scatterbrain. You once had an item in your column on removing brown stains on white acoustical ceiling tile. It appeared at a time when we were mystified as to what to do with several spots on our ceiling as the result of a leaking roof. I followed the method suggested; it worked perfectly. Now I need it again and even though it was simple I've forgotten, do you mind repeating it? —Mrs. S. E.

We all forget. There were two other letters in the same mail with similar requests. Delighted to hear it worked so well. The advice came from a painter who used a cup of white vinegar and a small paint brush. He worked on the stains three or four times, applying each treatment on a different day. We're told the stains disappeared and your experience confirms it.

Dear Dorothy: I have an old dinette suite with chrome legs. I am moving into a modern apartment and this furniture will be visible from the living room. Do you know any way I can update this set until I can get something more suitable? —Bonnie S.

Round tables are fashionable today so why not put on one of those round tops and use a deep circular tablecloth. A good looking tablecloth will not only hide the chrome legs, but enhance the room's decor.

Dear Dorothy: I want to tell you that I tried cooking a pot roast all day in a warm oven, after browning it — and found it delicious. I went one step further. I added canned whole potatoes, canned whole onions and canned carrots, put them on top and added a little water. When I got home from work, all I had to do was to make the gravy. — Dorothy Alvey.

Dear Dorothy: I had a large family group for dinner and used paper plates. When I removed the linen cloth, there was a white spot at each place where a paper plate had been. Apparently the heat of the food went right through the plate. I've tried to remove the stain but no luck. Any suggestions? —Mrs. R. E. Thompson.

The only way any remedy — home or commercial — will work is if the wood has a highly polished, waxed finish. If you have removed this in working on the stains. There may be nothing more to be done. If the finish is still all right there are good commercial stain removers on the market. Readers have reported using simple home remedies like putting on white petroleum jelly and letting it stay on for several hours. One tried a mixture of salt and olive oil, leaving it on overnight. One mixed cigarette ashes with mayonnaise, rubbed it on, then wiped it off. You may want to try any of these on a tiny, unobtrusive spot but it has to be stressed that nothing may work if the methods you have already employed have taken off the finish.

Dear Dorothy: To keep celery nice and crisp, I put it in a long plastic bag (formerly used for bread) and seal with a plastic wire, then store in the hydrator pan in the refrigerator. Celery seems to keep longer and crisper than just putting it in the hydrator. — Mrs. H. J. S.

Fashion

by GENIE

Fashion is going to the birds... literally.

Bird prints, bird appliques and bird feathers are all flying onto the fashion scene for spring.

Nobody is quite sure how the birds suddenly entered the picture. Some designers say it's part of the ecology theme; others think it has something to do with the peace symbol of the dove. Whatever, the birds are replacing the butterflies which replaced the snakes. Any bets on what will replace the birds?

Another sign of spring fashion is the huge triangular-shaped fringed shawl worn over most everything... evening and day dresses, pants and, of course, hotpants, known also as cool shorts and city shorts.

THE SHAWL will be scooping up the business from the long capes. Many are equal in length with back pants reaching the hem of ankle length dresses. Women who knit and crochet are currently in demand.

A basic theme for spring and summer of '71 is the World War II look. It includes short puffed sleeves, football shoulders, ankle strap wedgies, white stockings and splashy artificial flowers.

The fashions are teamed with platform-sole shoes and fluffy side-parted wigs, some with big "Baby Snacks" bows tied to the side of the head. Lips and nails are bright red.

"Have you heard of the latest fancy in wigs and are you 'up' on what is to be the fed for the summer... This interesting departure is no less than the preparation of shirtwaists for the different months."

SOUNDS LIKE TODAY. Shirtwaists will be popular this spring. They were also popular in 1902. The quote above is from the 1902 Chicago Chronicle which also mentioned the emphasis on hand embroidery and madras too. Just another example of the fashion cycle.

A picture in that same 1902 Chronicle depicted a stylish blouse with big collar and loose billowy sleeves. It was a pattern selling for 10 cents. Styles may come back, but prices never do.

Another basic message that rang through Paris during the recent spring showings is that hemlines don't count. Even some minis sneaked through. This could be caused by the refusal of many women to midis.

A RECENT NATIONWIDE survey carried out by Virginia Sims indicated that American women dress for themselves. According to the survey, today's female views herself as an individual when it comes to style of dress. She wants to wear what makes her happy and comfortable, not what fashion dictates.

By almost two to one, American women are still playing it short in favor of the mini.

New fashion, women seem to feel, is less a reflection of what women are looking for than what fashion designers want them to wear.

Education Co-op Merits Support

The Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), a 10-district cooperative serving northwest suburbs, has come under scattered but sharp fire in recent months from a handful of local school board members.

Representatives of Elementary Dist. 54 and High School Dist. 211 and 214 boards have strongly criticized NEC for a variety of failings.

Primary criticism has included a charge that NEC needs firmer control from its governing board (composed of one board member from each of the 10 districts) and a concern that NEC is taking away control from member districts.

Board members also have asserted that the 18-month-old agency has not cut costs for districts which are supporting cooperative programs through NEC.

In January, the NEC administration presented a cost-effectiveness study to its governing board, whose members studied the report and then reviewed ways of increasing district involvement in NEC activities.

The review was positive and constructive. It was a review for an organization which needs both constructive criticism and meaningful support from member districts as well as the general public.

Executive Director Gloria Kinney stressed in the cost study that NEC's primary purpose is not to save money; rather, it is "educational," she explained in quoting from the group's charter.

"Education" is the method by which NEC can be most effective. In one way, this "education" takes place each month when 10 school board representatives sit down across the table and discuss common problems.

Without NEC, inter-district communication would be limited to superintendents' meetings, newspaper clippings and sessions of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards. In other words, there would be little time for board members and school officials to explore common concerns.

Without NEC, seminars on topics such as negotiations and year-round classes would be difficult to arrange. New board members would not receive the benefits of orientation seminars like the one last spring for just-elected board members.

NEC also has produced cost savings for member districts, although not on the scale anticipated by some educators. For example, a data processing cooperative has produced services 40 per cent cheaper than individual districts could have provided on their own.

A cooperatively-funded transportation study has gathered data for all NEC member districts; that data could not have been collected by smaller, individual districts.

But it is difficult to convince board members — especially those from larger and wealthier districts — that NEC has the potential for saving money and stimulating cooperation.

In fact, NEC dilemma is not unlike that of the United Nations. The UN is viewed by many critics as a failure because it hasn't resolved conflicts, either between superpowers such as the U. S. and Russia or between factions such as in the Nigerian Civil War. Nevertheless, the UN has developed UNESCO and other organizations providing a host of valuable services to all participating nations. And a world forum for rational discussion and debate is available for those who wish to use it.

Likewise, NEC hasn't resolved conflicts between suburban school districts, nor has it blessed districts with cost-cutting methods which ultimately might eliminate often-defeated tax referenda.

But for those districts which have participated in the cooperative, it has offered some cost-reduction and a forum for resolving disputes. The Rolling Meadows border issue involving High School Dist. 211 and 214 could have been at least partially resolved if both boards had utilized NEC to clear up misunderstandings.

Most important in our judgment, however, is that educators can exchange ideas and problems through NEC and thus educate each other. For this reason if no other, we believe the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs and merits the support of all persons concerned about education in our communities.

Suburb Influence Grows

Congratulations are due to two Northwest suburban members of the Illinois House of Representatives.

Last week, Speaker W. Robert Blair appointed State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, was named chairman of the House Executive Committee.

We believe the appointments reflect the hard work Regner and Juckett have put in during their years in Springfield; but more important, they reflect the continually-increasing influence of suburbs in the General Assembly.

This is a good sign. As the population of the suburbs increases, there will be a need for good suburban representation in the legislature. The appointments of Regner and Juckett are a step in that direction.

We wish them well in their new duties.

Helping To Relieve The Crunch

Suburbs Face School Votes

by TOM WELLMAN
Education Editor

It is not the purpose of this column to inflict unnecessary pain upon citizens and educators by bringing up topics which cause pain, teeth-grinding, ulcers and general nervousness.

Nevertheless, a few words must be written about the referendum.

It's an important topic simply because, before summer vacation, area voters are going to face five of them. By fall, all residents will have been faced by a sixth as Harper College in Palatine seeks a hike in its education and building (maintenance) fund rates.

Before the last vote is counted at Harper, citizens are going to be subjected to coffee mugged by well-groomed and articulate school officials, earnest pleas in print for passage (or defeat) and, of course, the post-vote congratulations or tear-shedding.

The parade to the polls began Saturday, as residents of Dist. 23 (Prospect Heights) went to the polls. Later, elementary districts 25, 26 and 59 and High School Dist. 214 will seek tax hikes or building bonds for new schools.

Before the thousands of words about deficit spending, tax anticipation warrants, state aid and budgets are written, two thoughts need to be expressed.

First, there's a good chance, because of inflation, the recession and a growing voter wariness towards school districts, that some referenda may get voted down.

For those who vote against tax hikes and bond issues as a rule-of-thumb, it should be pointed out that no local school district in recent years has gone out of business as a result of a referendum defeat.

Of course, students have been deprived of individual attention, recreation and the rooms for recreation, adequate classroom space, and even basic programs which make high school and college education easier.

Perhaps they've also gained a certain cynicism towards voters who don't intelligently examine the needs of education and don't consider what role public education has played in their lives.

Second, teachers have a vested interest in the outcome of referenda to boost the education tax fund, which is the source of teacher's salaries.

The importance of education funds will be stressed this year, as educational associations become more active in demanding more from school boards. If voters reject tax hikes, the teachers will face even less response from board members to their pleas for a living wage.

In Arlington Heights Dist. 25, for teachers there's a real and specific concern about gaining voter approval for a 50-cent tax hike. Without the added revenue, the district is going to slash funds. A first casualty, naturally, would be teachers and their salaries.

Thus teachers in the district have indicated strong support for the tax hike. How far they'll go to work for its passage remains to be seen in the five weeks before the referendum.

Support of a referendum also would give teachers in Dist. 25, or any district, a certain leverage in salary negotiations. Teachers who have supported a tax hike could argue that a reward is due for aiding the district's money-raising efforts.

It will be educational to watch how teachers regard their "vested interest". As both they and citizens consider referenda, both parties should take time to examine carefully how much education matters to them and to their children.

Uncle Sam As Croupier?

by DON OAKLEY

The states have often been called "social laboratories" in which experiments in social change are conducted on a small scale. If they prove of value, they may later be adopted by the nation as a whole.

A classic example is Wyoming's granting of female suffrage way back in 1890 when it was still a territory. Other advances pioneered by individual states include wage and hour, child labor and pure food and drug laws and a whole list of reforms now administered by the federal government on a national level.

Because in recent years we seem to have come to depend upon federal leadership — and federal funds — for everything, the "social laboratory" description is not heard so much any more. Yet the test tubes are still bubbling, and one state where they are bubbling quite vigorously is New York.

Not that New York has always been a pioneer. For years it resisted, bringing some rationality to bear upon its archaic divorce law. Of late, however, a kind of dam seems to have burst.

Following the lead of New Hampshire, New York has instituted a state-run lottery for education. It has one of the most liberal abortion laws in the nation. Most recently, it has legalized off-track betting on horse races.

Now the majority leader in the state senate has introduced a bill that would legalize Nevada-style gambling casinos to boost state income.

Formerly an opponent of legalized gambling, New York State Sen. Earl W. Brydges reasons that "we've come so far down that road that there is no turning back, and I think as a pragmatic, realistic matter we should tap other sources."

They're being pragmatic, realistic and/or experimental in neighboring New Jersey, too, where a state lottery, overwhelmingly approved by voters, has just been launched.

A senator in that state's legislature is now offering a bill to amend the state constitution to permit casino gambling in

Viewpoint

Atlantic City, with dice tables, roulette wheels and all the other paraphernalia that have made Las Vegas a mecca for millions.

In both New York and New Jersey, opposition to legalized gambling is based both on moral grounds and on the fear that organized crime would take over. Proponents say this need not happen if casinos are closely supervised by the state, or better yet, run by the state itself.

People are going to gamble anyway, they argue. It only makes sense for the state to benefit from this inescapable, if lamentable, fact.

Will these "laboratory" experiments ever boil over on a national scale? A straw in the wind may be a little-noted statement made a few months ago by Carl M. Loeb Jr., president of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Testifying before a House government operations subcommittee, which has been conducting a continuing investigation on the federal effort against organized crime, Loeb recommended flatly that the government legalize, computerize and run gambling at all levels throughout the nation in order to deprive the underworld of a major source of its income.

"I don't mean licensed gambling — which merely attracts organized crime because it is a license to steal — but actual operation," he explained.

"The billions which could be diverted to government," he said, "could help fight the poverty now a result of the widespread betting in the ghettos, and the thousands of law enforcement personnel now involved in arresting petty gamblers could divert their efforts to more important violators."

The possibility of Washington becoming the nation's crapsier and bookie is an unlikely one. But don't bet against it in the long run, especially if more states begin experimenting with legalized gambling and it works.

As for the odds of his bill being approved in the New York "laboratory," Senator Brydges says, not entirely in jest:

"Three to two and take your pick."

Expert Report On Phosphate

In a recent article covering the village finance committee's hearing dealing with environmental problems, Mrs. John Macko again urged village trustees to prohibit the sale of high phosphate detergents in Arlington Heights. At the hearing, Trustee Frank Palmatier said he feels the non-phosphate detergents are "inferior" and he does not want to "unduly penalize the housewives of Arlington Heights."

I am a housewife. I have no fancy science degrees; however, I have quite a few hours of laundry time to my credit. I recently switched from one of the whiter-than-white, super-enzymed, phosphate-filled, powerhouse detergents to a low-suds, phosphate-free detergent. My white clothes were still white (although I must confess I must do something wrong on wash day — they never have been whiter than white). Heavy soil and stains were removed as completely as with my phosphate-filled detergent.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

You can imagine my surprise when I read Mr. Palmatier's verdict that my clean clothes weren't really clean! Perhaps Mr. Palmatier shares some wash-day knowledge with Arthur Godfrey, Eddie Albert, and many other of the television personalities who undoubtedly have spent a great deal of their time washing clothes with many combinations of detergents and additives until they could come up with just the right type to do the very best job (a real public service). If this is so, it would be greatly appreciated if Mr. Palmatier would share the results of his testing with the community. Until that time, however, I believe I will go my merry, phosphate-free way in my white as white, bright as bright attire.

'Y' Is A Way Of Life

My name is James Hinde. I am 37 years of age; my wife is, well, she is over 18. We have three children: Pat, Debbie and our youngest Pennie. We like to think of ourselves, as an average West Suburban family. Active in several organizations, members of the P.T.A. and attend church. We were content with our lot. However...

A little over a year ago we joined the North Suburban Y.M.C.A. in Des Plaines. We were given the usual tour; that was very impressive. After which, we were introduced to a program of events and available activities. Well, Sirs! We have become a Y.M.C.A. family. My children are active, as well as my wife and myself. The most enjoyable part of the year 1970, was the wonderful people that we met there. The fellowship, the warmth and the many kindnesses that were given to all. Not because it was part of their jobs but a part and way of their lives.

It is everyone, not only the staff. There are the Nickie Doehlers, the Helens, the Walls, the Arts, the D.J.s, the Cliffs, the director Mr. McClellan, the Life Guards, the girls at the counter, the Jacks and the men in the back. It is also the volunteers, the Caryl Crouches and her helpers, the Renees, the Lauras and the Sues. There is no end to the fine, warm people who collectively have made our lives a more full, enjoyable and healthier one.

As a member of the Y.M.C.A., on behalf of my family and I am sure the many hundreds of members, a big thank you for your devotion to a job well done.

Request Is Rejected

The Board of Directors of the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County voted at its meeting Jan. 26 to continue its policy of serving only non-profit agencies, and turned down the request of the Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine to become an agency registered with the Bureau.

We are disappointed that we cannot work with the Volunteer Bureau in our local community because of their restrictive policy. They should understand that they are discriminating against the ill and aged, not against the institution.

The trend in the United States is away from these restrictions in favor of encouraging all institutions to meet basic standards set by the Volunteer Bureau for the proper use and supervision of volunteers. The Chicago Volunteer Bureau accepts all agencies which meet its criteria. They sent a volunteer to Plum Grove several years ago and have since invited her to participate in their training program for new recruits.

The American Hospital Association and the American Nursing Home Association endorse the policy of appropriate use of volunteers in all long-term care facilities. The ANHA says in their Volunteer Service Corps Handbook: "A nursing home's structure — proprietary or non-proprietary — has no bearing on a volunteer program. In essence, the nursing home's role is to act as a catalyst for patient-community interaction... which paid personnel, professional or non-professional, categorically cannot provide."

Plum Grove has been providing an organized volunteer program in Palatine for over 10 years, and we will continue to bring the community to our patients through volunteers.

West Rolls While Maine South Falls

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

At first it appeared that Dennis Willison was going to have another one of those games where nothing went right.

Friday night against New Trier West Willison had the poorest night of his high school career, hitting only one of 15 field goal attempts while being limited to two points.

At Glenbrook North on Saturday night, the Central Suburban League's fifth leading scorer had problems finding the range during the pre-game warmup and then missed his first three shots in the first quarter.

But midway through the first period Willison finally found the range — and consistently disturbed the nets throughout the remainder of the contest to spark Maine West to an 81-54 Central Suburban League victory over the Spartans.

Willison connected on better than 50 per cent of his shots, making 13 field goals and two free throws to pace the Warriors with 28 points.

The 6-5 senior forward had an outstanding supporting cast and the Warriors particularly pleased coach Gaston Freeman with their overall teamwork on offense and while employing the full court press.

Most of the Warrior roster had a hand in the victory as the Des Plaines squad outplayed Glenbrook North in every department.

Besides getting 28 points, Willison also had two steals and two rebounds. Teammate Tom Kummer contributed 17 points, six rebounds, three steals and blocked four shots. Fred Horn threw in 17 points, nine rebounds, one steal and blocked one shot.

George Woodley had 10 points, three rebounds, two steals and blocked one shot. Bruce Kerr contributed six points, two rebounds and two steals.

Although scoring few points, a host of other Warriors aided the cause with Bill Besenhofer getting two rebounds and two steals, Mark Tuttle four rebounds, Rick Wolgram three rebounds and Jim Hanselmann, who had been injured two weeks ago, came in and came up with a steal.

Maine West's full court press gave Glenbrook North fits throughout the contest, forcing the Spartans into numerous turnovers. In all, Warriors stole the ball 11 times.

For Glenbrook North Steve Goreham did some scaring and Jon Moe, a 6-6 center, did about everything else but they had little support from their teammates. Moe played a fine game, getting 12 points, 15 rebounds and blocking seven shots.

A pair of buckets by Kerr and a free throw by Kummer got Maine West off to a 5-0 lead in the first minute. From there the Warriors were never behind and added to their lead throughout.

Glenbrook North, with the fine early play of Goreham, came back to within one point at 5-7 with 3:43 remaining. But the Warriors reeled off seven straight points to make it 15-7 at 1:48.

The first quarter ended at 17-9.

Glenbrook North managed to connect for only one field goal and Moe was held without a rebound in the second quarter as Maine West broke the game wide open.

The Spartans scored the first three points of the second period but then Maine West rolled for five straight points to take a 10-point lead at 22-12 at 5:50.

Two minutes later the lead was still only 10 points at 24-14 before the Warriors really went to work.

Tuttle threw in a jumper, Woodley tossed in a pair of 12-footers, Willison drove in for two points and then added a long jump shot as Maine West streaked for 10 straight points to make it 34-14 by halftime.

Maine West's defense was outstanding in the first few minutes of the third quarter, holding Glenbrook North without a field goal for four and a half minutes. Meanwhile, the Warrior offense was coasting along, building a 45-22 lead.

But the Warriors nearly coasted themselves into a mild scare.

Glenbrook North started to find the range in the latter half of the third period and reeled off nine straight points to cut the Warrior lead to 48-31. After Horn tapped in a rebound, the Spartans streaked to four more points and the Warrior lead was down to 50-35 going in the last quarter.

In the fourth quarter, however, Maine West played its finest basketball of the season.

The Warriors stole the ball five times from Glenbrook North and all of them led to fast break baskets. Maine West also dominated in the rebounding department and many of these rebounds led to more fast break buckets.

Glenbrook North closed the spread to 13 points in the opening seconds of the final stanza before the Warriors got rolling.

Maine West clicked off three straight buckets with fast breaks to make the count 58-37. After Glenbrook North came to life a bit to make it 58-43, the Warriors proceeded to bury the Spartans.

Two free throws and a long jumper by Willison and a layup by Kummer made it 64-43. After Glenbrook North scored on a free throw, Woodley was credited with two points when Moe was guilty of goaltending. Willison threw in a basket from the key, Kummer sank a free throw, Willison hit another from the key, Kummer drove for a pair of points and Kummer hit two free throws to make the score 74-44 with three minutes to play.

It was all over from there for the Warriors as they eventually raised their lead to 81-48 before the final tally of 81-54.

The Warrior defense was so outstanding in that last period that Glenbrook North did not score a single field goal in the last 5:50. In fact, in the final 5:50, the Spartans managed to score only seven points, all on free throws.

The win was Maine West's 12th of the season against only three losses.

The Warriors are 9-1 in Central Suburban League competition and, thanks to Deerfield's Saturday night victory over Maine South, Maine West is now in first place all by itself in the CSL. Deerfield and Maine South are one game behind at 8-2.

Kummer, Woodley Spark Charge

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

With one half of the game completed, it appeared that New Trier West was on the way to pulling out the biggest upset of the Central Suburban League basketball season.

Maine West, which went into the game on top of the Central Suburban League standings, trailed New Trier West 26-24 at halftime.

But the Warriors, paced by Tom Kummer and George Woodley, rallied throughout the third quarter and went on to post a 66-54 victory. The win was Maine West's 11th of the season against three losses.

Kummer tallied 17 points in the second half and Woodley had 13 points in the final two periods to pull the Warriors out of the threat of tumbling out of first place.

The Warriors led at one point in the second quarter 23-14 but the host team ran into a streak of poor shooting and managed to score only two points in the two six minutes of the stanza. New Trier West, meanwhile, rallied throughout, and took a 26-24 lead at halftime.

While driving in for a bucket, Kummer was fouled in the opening minute of the third period. Kummer sank that free throw to give Maine West a 27-25 lead but the Warriors were hard pressed to keep in the lead.

The score was tied 27-27 and 29-29 before a layup by Maine West's Fred Horn made it 31-29.

Two buckets by Woodley within a minute and a half kept Maine West on top 34-31. After New Trier West closed the gap to 35-34, Kummer tapped in a rebound to give Maine West back its three-point lead.

A pair of buckets by Jerry Karzen knotted the score at 38-38 with 2:24 remaining in the third quarter but Kummer again came up with a crucial three-point play to make it 41-38.

After the Cowboys came within one point at 41-40, Kummer gave his team-

Explosive First Half For Maine East

by JIM STUART

Paul McClelland has had his share of troubles this season with his Maine East basketball team.

Saturday night at Riverside-Brookfield he faced a new dilemma: having to play the entire fourth quarter without a center.

But for once things turned out all right. The Blue Demons, after building up a tremendous early lead, were able to hang on in a 74-71 victory, their first in six West Suburban League encounters.

The "no center" situation came about when reserve pivotman Al Makas fouled out with 43 seconds remaining in the third period. Starter Mark Bondeson had long since departed on personnel, picking up his fifth at the 5:32 mark in the same quarter.

In fact, Bondeson had somehow managed to pick up both his fourth and fifth fouls in the same second. Impossible? Not when the Demons are involved.

He opened by simply fouling Mike O'Toole under the Bulldog boards. But when O'Toole missed the shot, Big Mark grabbed the rebound and in some way hacked Bob Raso before a single second could be ticked off on the giant Riverside scoreboard.

Fortunately, for Maine East, the visitors at the time held an 18-point lead, and the lack of a center did not present as big a problem as anticipated. McClelland simply went with a front line of forwards Dale Des Champs, Frank Knopf and Jack Anderson and the outclassed Bulldogs were never able to get any closer than the final margin of 13 points.

The turning point of this one had to be somewhere near the opening minute of play, when Maine rattled off the first seven points and jumped to leads of 17-4, 21-8 and a first-period edge of 33-11.

It was Russ Anderson who put the first five markers on the board with a three-point play and a 15-footer. After Frank Knopf hit from the corner to make it 7-0, Des Champs and Bondeson took over and accounted for the final 18 points of the period.

Des Champs had an outstanding evening with 27 points to lead all scorers, 23 of them coming in the red-hot first half. For the second straight night the Demons had five players in double figures with Bruce Potenza hitting for 14, Knopf for 13, Bondeson for 12 and Jack Cronin for 10.

After the first period onslaught, it was more of the same in the second quarter as Des Champs hit five buckets from the field and the Demons were giving their opponents fits with their perfectly executed zone press.

With a minute to play in the half, Maine doubled R-B's score at 43-21, and another Knopf fielder and two free throws by Potenza made the score 46-25 at the intermission.

McClelland started both Bondeson and Makas as the second half got underway, but that experiment was short-lived when both started collecting fouls in rapid succession.

But if the Demons were hurt by the loss of their two big men, the Bulldogs certainly didn't fare any better in the battle of the whistle. The hosts were called for 30 personals of which Maine cashed in on 36 of 47 shots, certainly a very respectable total.

R-B, on the other hand, could only convert on 20 of 39 attempts from the line, so the contest was literally decided on the charity stripe.

If the sweet smell of victory is intoxicating to the Maine East cagers, they will have to sober up in a hurry. The Demons' next three opponents are Hinsdale Central, York and La Grange, the three toughest teams in the WEL.

Quite an appetizer for the March tournament.

But It's Not So Explosive On Friday

by JIM STUART

A game-long comeback, a picture-book blocked shot with 12 seconds to play, a hockey-type brawl with six seconds left — what else could a Maine East basketball fan ask for?

Just a little old win! For the fifth straight time Friday night the Blue Demons went down to defeat, this time to a Proviso West outfit they had handled previously on the Panthers' home court. The final score at Maine on Friday was 75-71.

But this time the Demons literally did not give up without a fight. The extra-curricular activities took place in the final six seconds of play and capped a wild and woolly last minute that saw the home team barely miss pulling the affair out of the fire.

With that magic minute showing on the scoreboard, Maine East trailed by five points, 72-67. But Proviso's top two scorers sat harmlessly on the bench with five fouls, and things looked bright for East when Russ Anderson narrowed the deficit to three with two free throws.

Jack Anderson was charged with an offensive foul, but Maine's pressing defense forced another turnover with 24 seconds left. Eight ticks later Anderson, Russ that is, connected from 15 feet out and suddenly the Demons trailed by only one.

Then came a most spectacular effort on the part of Mark Bondeson, Maine's junior center who is improving each week at both ends of the court. Proviso broke the by now frantic Demon press and got the ball upcourt to Bill Suva, who was all alone — and all of a sudden not alone.

From out of nowhere came Bondeson to knock the would-be crib shot out of Suva's astonished hands with only 12 seconds to play.

But unfortunately for the win-starved Demons, Panther guard Jeff Person was subsequently fouled and he cashed in on both ends of the one-and-one to clinch, finally, the see-saw scorcher.

That about finished the basketball for the evening, but there was still plenty of action on the court. A Maine shot went awry, and when most of the 10 halflayers on the floor went for the rebound, a pretty good melee broke out with both benches emptying.

The referee must have seen Keith Magnuson wearing a Maine East jersey and thus he called a penalty — or, technical — on the Blue Demons. But the successful free throw by Rich Hesser mattered only to the scorekeeper.

The long comeback was necessitated by the Panthers' excellent shooting in the first 10 minutes of play. The visitors simply waited for the good shot against Maine East's zone defense, and when they got it, they hit it.

Led by Bill Sykora, who ended up the game's high scorer with 21, and by his running mate Bob Ziemba, Proviso was able to take an 11-12 first period lead and then lengthened it to 23-14 about two minutes into period two.

But the Demons soon began picking holes in the Proviso zone with Bondeson doing the job inside and Dale Des Champs and Frank Knopf burning the Panthers from without, and with 1:44 left in the half the hosts had their first lead of the night at 30-28.

East kept the advantage in the exchange that followed, and a pretty tip-in at the buzzer by Jack Cronin gave the Demons a three-point lead at halftime.

Things looked up for Maine for a change, but something just had to go wrong and it did. This time it was foul trouble, with Bondeson and Knopf, two thirds of the Demon front wall, as the victims.

Big Mark, who had amassed three personals in the first half, collected his fourth halfway through the third quarter. Knopf, on the other hand, came on strong in the period with fouls number two, three and four in fairly rapid succession.

As a result, both starters were forced to the bench and Proviso was able to move to a 53-43 lead at the end of three stanzas, increasing that edge to eight as the fourth quarter got under way.

East was still on the wrong end of a six-point margin when Knopf and Bondeson re-entered with six minutes remaining, but Des Champs quickly remedied that with a three-point play triggered by a Demon fast break.

Proviso kept its three-point lead for four minutes, until Person hit two from the line to make it 70-65 at the 1:44 mark. Knopf hit from the corner to narrow the gap to three again, but when Hesser was fouled and converted both penalty shots to set up that final minute that seemed like an age.

Maine East had its best balanced scoring of the season, with all five starters hitting in double figures. Des Champs was high with 18 followed by Knopf and Russ Anderson with 13, Bondeson with 12 and Cronin with 10.

Dandy Dons Roll Over St. Viator

by ED MURNANE

The curtain comes down next weekend on the Suburban Catholic Conference's regularly scheduled season and for Notre Dame and St. Viator, the final loop contest is being eagerly awaited.

But that's about the only similarity between the two Northwest suburban entries in the SCC and the differences were very obvious in the St. Viator gym Saturday night as Notre Dame coasted to a 73-47 romp over the Lions on route to a title showdown with St. Patrick Friday night. The win, following a 72-57 defeat of Holy Cross Friday, gave the Dons a 10-2 SCC mark to put on the line against the 10-1 Shamrocks.

And the loss by St. Viator, following a rugged Friday night show at St. Patrick, put the Lions at 4-8 in preparation for the final league clash at Carmel of Mundelein Friday, a squad that already handled the Lions with ease once this year.

At least the misery is almost over for St. Viator.

Saturday night's match had all the makings of a rough and tumble battle between two feuding neighbors — for the first eight minutes.

The score was tied six times and the lead changed hands five times as the Lions held their own on the boards against the bigger Dons.

St. Viator sharpshooter John Lohse found the range three times on long shots from the far corner of his forward position and Notre Dame's Greg Strattan and Bill Hillinger scored 11 between them, most coming on nice moves under the basket.

Adding to the excitement and the potential of an even match was the last second 35-footer dropped in by St. Viator's Mike Pettenuzzo, which tied the score at 15-15 at the buzzer.

But the tempo changed rapidly as the second frame began and the Dons raced to a 35-19 lead in a little over five minutes.

The Lions were guilty of four turnovers in the span while missing eight of nine shots and Notre Dame outrebounded St. Viator, 9-2.

The half ended with Notre Dame on them from 20 feet away. Les finished as high scorer in the contest with 24 points while Pettenuzzo, who still has a chance at the league scoring

THE BEST IN Sports

top, 37-21, and that was the ball game. The Dons duplicated their 22 point second quarter effort in the third period as upstart Tom Les sank six buckets, five of title, paced St. Viator with 22. Strattan also hit 20 for Notre Dame while none of the other Lions were able to get into double figures.

19-Year-Old Hits 703

Keith Clark chalked up a goal that is every amateur bowler's dream — a 700 series.

Clark, 19, of Buffalo Grove came up with a 703 series last week in the Wednesday Night Industrial League at the Rose Bowl in Buffalo Grove. Not bad for a 179 average bowler.

He needed a double in the 10th frame of his final game to crack the 700 mark. He did just that. Clark opened with a 213 game, followed that with a 265 including six straight strikes and then a 235 finale.

He also bowled in the Buffalo Grove Men's League on Mondays.

Sam Rice, a Baseball Hall of Famer, commenting on Frank Howard's reported bid for a $150,000 salary for the 1971 season: "I started adding up my major league salaries in bed the other night, finally fell asleep about 5 a.m., and never did reach $150,000."

Sportsmen's And Vacation Show Scheduled Feb. 19-28

A favorite harbinger of spring for Chicago's vast army of outdoors enthusiasts is the annual Chicago Sportsmen's and Vacation Show. The lavish 1972 edition of Tom Durant's exposition is coming up Feb. 19 through 28 at the International Amphitheatre, already established as the largest of its kind in the world and expanded even more this year.

The Amphitheatre complex of halls will be transformed into an exhilarating world of woods and waters, where hours of enchantment will be spent by the entire family in pursuit of favorite sports, recreation and pastimes.

It will all be there to delight — Fishing Tackle Row, boats and marine accessories, a great Travel Hall, a complete camping area including tents and recreational vehicles, hunting gear and sports paraphernalia of all sorts.

The show visitor will have the opportunity to participate himself while at the same time receiving instruction from experts — in fishing, casting, archery, skiing and other favored occupations. The live trout pool, where the angler can take home his catch, is back as an annual feature of the show.

The largest travel section in the show's history will have many states, including Alaska, represented. Here vacations can be planned with advice from resort owners, state reps, guides, trappers, Indians and others in attendance.

Durant's fine stage and water production in the center arena — "Parade of Outdoor Champions," starring John Bromfield — will have a stellar array of performers. It will be presented once opening night at 8 p.m. when exposition hours are 6 to 11 p.m. and twice daily the other nine days at 2 and 6 p.m. The show will be open on those days from 12 noon to 11 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. remaining weekdays.

There will always be 6,000 free seats available to "Parade" for show visitors already in the building.
